July milk output jumps 8 percent

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

WASHINGTON — The nation's milk production rose to 12.4 billion pounds in July, exceeding year-ago totals by eight percent and setting an all-time high for the month.

Last month's increase in output was the latest in a series of large production increases, which have been recorded since the dairy diversion program ended April 1

The July increases, however, were the largest in recent months and gave further indication that production is continuing to build momentum

'We always had the capacity there,' said Lackawanna County extension Director Tom Jurchak 'We didn't lose that many cows during the diversion program So, now, the feed is cheap enough, and they can pour it to them and you'll get more milk."

Cow numbers were up 2.8 percent, to 11 1 million, while production per cow climbed 5.3 percent to 1,120 pounds, according to Charles Cunningham, deputy director of USDA's Commodity Analysis Division.

In Pennsylvania, milk production went up seven percent, to 858 million pounds, while per-cow production jumped 5.4 percent to 1,160 pounds. Cow numbers were up slightly less than two percent, to 740,000.

Around the region, New York recorded a four-percent increase in July over year-earlier levels, while Maryland dairymen recorded an 11 percent increase

And while most experts believed that falling milk prices would eventually bring production into line, Jurchak noted that milk output will continue to rise as long as the cost of feed remains relatively low

The price of milk has been going down, that's true," said Jurchak "But the feed's going down in price even faster."

Asked what he thought would have to happen to slow down the flood of milk, Jurchak said a good grain harvest and ample supplies of cheap feed probably mean production will continue to increase.

"I don't see anything in the woods to drop it down any," he added.

The timing couldn't be worse, he added, coming as it does as the Congress is preparing to go back in session to resolve farm policy for the next four years.

"With so much at stake," he said, "this thing's going to stick out like a sore thumb."

Block says Reagan to press Congress on Farm Bill

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary John Block said the Administration will put the pressure on Congress to write a Farm Bill before current legislation expires Oct 1

The Administration, including the President, will be pushing hard to get the job done on time," Block said at a telephone press conference Tuesday in Washington

He used the term 'cruel" to describe the effect of the indecision on farmers who must make crop decisions for next year, based on a farm policy that has yet to be drafted

'We started this year with a lot of high hopes, about helping to boost our exports, and ending this buildup in stocks of grain, and backing away from acreage controls and reducing the cost of government and writing a sound farm program to help this industry out of some of the problems we face

For the most part, he added, I'm not sure how much closer we are now than we were two, three or four months ago "

The Reagan Administration, he said, will insist that Congress stay within its budget resolution on spending. And that means, he said, that legislators will have their work cut out for them when they return from their recess next month

Farmers, he said, want less government involvement in agriculture And the Administration is attempting to cut down that involvement, and make American products more competitive on world markets, by gradually cutting back on farm spending, though in a compassionate way

The Farm Bill budget figure accepted by the legislators and the administration, he said, would include "a considerable amount of money as an income transfer to farmers during this transition period."

That $35 billion spending level, he said, is "a record amount of money It's not chintzy, it's generous and if it is spent properly, we'll be able to help farmers during this transition "

The money, he added, will be directed toward family-size farms, with a payment limitation of $50,000 per farm.

Block said he is convinced that Congress can create "a program that looks toward growth, looks toward exports and still is within the budget guidelines "

On other topics, the USDA secretary made the following comments

Livestock prices: "I am very much aware of the depressed state of livestock, beef in particular, and as a hog farmer myself, I'm not that excited about the hog prices

Pa. peach crop smallest in years

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — This year's Pennsylvania peach crop is one of the smallest in recent history due to extensive frost and hail damage in some counties

Peach production in the state is forecast at 30 million pounds this year, far below the 85 million pounds produced in 1984, said Wally Evans, director of the Crop Reporting Service

We wind up with a crop for Pennsylvania this year that would probably be the smallest crop since 1967," he said

Pennsylvania is the fifth largest peach producing state in the nation, following behind California, South Carolina, Georgia, and New Jersey

Peach production in the nation is expected to be down about 20 percent from normal

For Pennsylvania peach producers, the frost damage translates into approximately a $6 million loss in income, according to Larry Yager, Penn State Extension marketing agent.

The small crop is primarily the result of winter freeze and frost damage and some hail damage in the spring Adams and Franklin Counties, the state's two largest peach producers, were the hardest hit, while Lancaster County's peach crop received less severe damage, Yager said.

A warm Christmas season, followed by severe cold in mid-January, killed many of the early-

Market Comment: Prices were unchanged under a fully steady market tone. Cartoned egg demand ranged poor to good; however, some large volume distributors noted advance interest as improved, and heavier orders for deliveries through the next couple weeks. Graded stocks were in irregular balance, but overall supplies of extra large were just adequate, large were adequate and mediums were adequate to fully adequate. Nest run interest had waned in some quarters but offerings were light and confidently held in most instances.

Pennfield Dairy Programs Maximize Profits With Your Top-Notch Silage

Coarse Chop — Best

Make Top-Notch Corn Silage

Corn silage harvesting season is here, and it's time to fill your silos with high-quality corn silage. Since any feeding program (which is designed to allow cows to produce to their maximum potential) must be based on excellent forages, Pennfield would like to review some of the fundamentals of making top-notch corn silage.

1. The corn must be in the dent stage of maturity to assure maximum energy yields, and the moisture level should be between 62% and 68%.
2. The chopper must cut the corn cleanly and uniformly without chopping it too finely - Silage that is not coarse enough can lead to problems with rumen acidosis and depressed butterfat. The theoretical cut should be at least ½ inch, and a recutter screen should never be used. Also, the knives must be sharpened frequently.
3. Fill the silos as rapidly as possible and be sure to distribute the silage evenly in the silo. If the material is being stored in a pit or bunker silo, better packing can be achieved using a wheel tractor rather than a bulldozer.
4. Seal the silo as soon as possible after filling to avoid spoilage.

Time To Harvest

One good method of determining when maturity of your corn is to look for the "black layer" in the corn kernels. When corn reaches the point where all of the yield is made, several layers of cells near the tips of the kernels turn black forming a "black layer."

To find this, break an ear, remove a few kernels, and split them lengthwise. If mature, a black layer will be visible near the tips of the kernels.

Your corn is mature about 55 to 60 days after the corn is 75 percent silked. At this point, the kernels contain 30 to 35 percent moisture, the ear corn will contain 40 to 45 percent moisture and the whole plant will contain 62 to 68 percent moisture or 32 to 38 percent dry matter.

More Energy Per Acre

In a 100 bushel per acre corn crop, the grain harvested alone yields about 4,500 pounds of TDN, while the same 100 bushel per acre harvested as corn silage yields 20 tons of silage containing 8,000 pounds of TDN. Corn silage provides all the nutrients stored in the grain, plus all the feed value available in the stover, which is about 57 percent digestible.

1. Reach their lactation peak faster
2 Peak higher.
3. Sustain a longer lactation peak.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Prepare For Local Fairs

We are rapidly approaching the time for local fairs. These times should be happy events–but once in a while they are not because planning was not done ahead of time. This is the time to take necessary precautions to help prevent the possibility of your taking disease to the fair with your animals or poultry or bringing infection home to your farm.

Many fairs require health charts and specific tests or vaccinations for animals and poultry. Be sure to read the health regulations carefully. And, it doesn't hurt to be more strict than what the regulations may require.

Animals or poultry with any form of communicable ailment should be left at home.

When animals or poultry leave the fair and go home, it's important to have a place where you can isolate them and observe them closely for a period of time before returning them to their herd mates. If in doubt, consult your veterinarian for advice.

To Be Alert For Silo Gas

We are fast approaching silo filling time; in fact many farmers are servicing their equipment now. This is one of the best methods of harvesting the corn crop to obtain maximum feed nutrients. With our large tower silos, the danger of poisonous gases becomes more important.

We urge our farmers to discuss this hazard with their employees and all family members. These gases can develop from one day to 14 days after the silo is filled. Most of these gases have a chlorine or laundry bleach odor and irritate the eyes and respiratory system. Some are yellow and some are colorless. Don't take any chances–warn all your people of this danger.

Never enter a partly filled silo without running the blower for at least 15 minutes. These gases are heavier than air and will come down the chute and into the barn. Be careful around recently filled silos.

To Determine Fertilizer Needs

The early fall months are good times to do soil testing and learn what plant nutrients will be needed for the 1986 cropping season. When the plant nutrient needs are known this fall, some of them can be applied to the soil, and others can be ordered. Be sure to include the nutrient value of manure when planning your fertilizer needs. The approximate nutritive values of the different manures are listed on page 15 of the 1985-86 Agronomy Guide.

With fall application, the plants will have time to absorb some of the plant nutrients and strengthen it for the winter. This is especially true with alfalfa and some of the perennial grass crops. When soil tests are made in the fall, the land owner has more time to locate and deal for his lime and fertilizer needs.

To Keep Stand-By Generators In Order

The value of stand-by generators is evident when power failures occur from lightning or flooding conditions. The important thing is to have a generator that is in good working condition. We never know when we will have additional storms (rain, snow or ice) that will take away our regular power source.

Highly mechanized farmers are urged to test their generators and be sure they are in top condition. If the generator is old, or not in good condition, it might be wise to invest in another one. Some losses have been very high due to the lack of electricity for a short period of time. Planning for emergency action when electric power is off is very good management.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

LIFT YOUR EYES ...AND SEE! August 25, 1985

Background Scripture:
Malachi
Devotional Reading:
Malachi 1:6-14.

One of the biggest problems with human nature is that we see things differently than God does. And sometimes those differences can be vitally important.

This is particularly apparent in the Book of Malachi. For example, Malachi begins his book with one of these important differences: "I have loved you very deeply," says the Lord. And the people reply, "Really? When was this?" (1:1). God and his people looked at the same data, but each saw it differently. To God, his acts were the proof of his love. But obviously, the people saw these same acts differently. So, Malachi proclaims, "O, Israel, lift your eyes to see what God is doing all around the world; then you will say, 'Truly, the Lord's great power goes far beyond our borders!'" (1:4).

WHO? US?

Malachi passes on quickly to another area of misunderstanding: what constitutes sin? God says, "I am your Father and Master, yet you don't honor me, O priests, but you despise my name" (1:6). And the priests reply incredulously, "Who? Us?...When did we despise your name?"

Through Malachi, God says that when they made offerings of lame animals (thinking God didn't really mind if they gave him less than their best), they were, in effect, making polluted sacrifices. Once again they saw it one way and God saw it another. So they need to "lift" their eyes and start "see" as God does.

Another area: in Malachi 3 the prophet foresees the coming of God's Messenger. "But who can live when he appears?" asks the prophet, "Who can endure his coming?" To God's children, the coming of his Messenger seems to be an ominous event. It is seen as a time of punishment and retribution.

A REFINER'S FIRE

But even this God sees differently. The purpose of his coming will be salvation, renewal, not punishment and condemnation. Yes, the Messenger will come like a fire, but it will be as a refiner's fire–a fire to burn away the sin and the dross. As in refining silver, the finished product is not something broken, but purified.

Things haven't really changed all that much since Malachi, have they? Like the people then, we look at our lives and say, "What has God done for me lately?" We wonder how it could be that he is dissatisfied with us. And when we are called to face tribulation, we complain bitterly, even though it is a refiner's fire.

So, also to us: "Lift your eyes...and see!"

Pa. peach crop

swelling buds, Yager noted. In December and early January, "the buds had actually started to soften," he said. "They didn't have their normal winter hardness."

So when January brought temperatures in the single digits and wind chill factors well below zero, the peach trees were especially susceptible.

The cold was so widespread that peach producers were unable to use the smudge pots that sometimes save them from pockets of frost, Yager said. "At those extremes, there was probably nothing they could do," he added.

For consumers, the poor crop means higher prices at the fruit market. A half bushel of plump, juicy peaches that usually sells for $6.50 to $7, is bringing about $9 or $10 this year. Some peaches from New Jersey are filtering into the state to meet the demand, Yager said.

For some peach producers, the crop loss will mean belt tightening in the months to come, Yager said. But, he added, "Most of them are diversified enough that they will pick up income from other fruits."

Bill Peters, general manager of Mountain Orchard Cooperative in Adams County, said they lost about 95 percent of their crop to the January freeze.

"It's the first time it's been this severe in about 40 years," he said. The temperatures also had some effect on cherries, plums, and nectarines, "but the biggest effect was on peaches," he continued.

For most of the co-op's 30 producer-members, the full force of the damage won't be felt until later, Peters said. "The true effect won't be felt until the apple season when we see if they have a cushioning effect," he explained.

Nonetheless, many have been tightening belts since the freeze in January. "We don't spend as much because we don't have it," Peters said.

For many Lancaster County producers the picture isn't quite so grim. Dick Haas of Cherry Hill Orchards in Lancaster said that while they have less than a full crop, they do have an average of two thirds to three quarters normal production. And the peaches they do have are good quality, he continued.

However, other Lancaster County producers, especially those in higher elevations, suffered more damage, he said.

PFA creates 'Friends of Ag'

CAMP HILL – Pennsylvania's leading farm organization, the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA), announces the creation of a charitable foundation dedicated to preserving agriculture and agribusiness as the number one industry in Pennsylvania.

Keith Eckel, president of PFA, said, "Our Board of Directors has approved plans to establish a foundation to be called Pennsylvania Friends of Agriculture which will provide an opportunity for farmers and other businessmen to contribute to efforts to promote and sustain agriculture as a leading economic force."

PFA is a voluntary, general farm organization representing 23,313 farm family members.

Eckel, a Lackawanna County dairy and vegetable farmer, said the ultimate goal of the foundation will be the preservation of agricultural land in the state. The foundation will also be used to fund programs to provide economic, scientific, educational, informational and other benefits for the agricultural community.

"The major goals should include improved production and growth of Pennsylvania agriculture products," Eckel said, "thereby increasing Pennsylvania employment."

Other goals of the foundation will be in the direction of consumer education and marketing. Another goal will be to promote better understanding between producers of different farm commodities. Farmer education in the latest developments and use of high technology will also be a goal of the Pennsylvania Friends of Agriculture foundation.

"The foundation will also be used to channel funds to programs such as the 4-H, FFA and college scholarships to help Pennsylvania develop a new generation of agricultural leaders," Eckel said. In addition, conservation and environmental projects will be targeted for foundation help.

"The foundation will be working in a lot of areas to improve agriculture and our state's economy," Eckel said. "In the next few weeks we will be putting the just-approved plans into action. We hope to be able to begin accepting charitable contributions by our Annual Meeting in November.

Contributions to the Pennsylvania Friends of Agriculture will be tax-exempt.

Egypt plans wheat buy

WASHINGTON - Deputy Secretary of Agriculture John R. Norton announced today that the government of Egypt has issued a tender calling for offers from U.S. exporters for 150,000 metric tons of U.S.-produced wheat flour. The tender was made under the export enhancement program announced by USDA on July 29.

Norton said this is the first U.S - origin wheat flour tender by a target country under the Export Enhancement Program, which offers government-owned commodities as bonuses to U.S. exporters to expand sales of U.S. agricultural products to specified countries to counter unfair trade practices.

The bonus will be made in the form of wheat from stocks of the Commodity Credit Corporation to enable U.S. exporters to compete at commercial prices for wheat flour in the Egyptian market

Egypt is expected to purchase 75,000 tons of wheat flour for delivery in November and 75,000 tons for delivery in December on a cost and freight basis.

Norton said additional information may be obtained from the Embassy of the Arab Republic of Egypt, Commercial and Economic Office, 2232 Massachusetts Ave N.W., Washington, D.C. 20008.

Throngs view "state of the art" at Ag Progress Days

Crowds surround the food stands at lunchtime on Wednesday.

ROCK SPRINGS — Penn State's Ag Progress Days met the expectations of young and old, producer and consumer, dairyman and vegetable farmer.

Attendance was expected to at least match last year's 75,000, and perhaps, surpass the figure.

With programs and tours to equipment demonstrations and great food to eat, the university's College of Agriculture managed to entertain, if not inform.

The educational programs had a lot of offer, while a survey of the equipment offered a view of the state of the art in agriculture today.

For those who missed it, Ag Progress Days combined artifacts, equipment and products into a heady mixture of past, present and future. It was truly an event worth repeating, and one that shouldn't be missed by those who make up the world of agriculture.

The Sniders have won these two awards several years in a row at the district championship show.

Shi-Har Builder Alanna, a five-year-old owned by Kenneth Mowry of Bedford County, won the grand championship. An upstanding, open-bodied cow with dairy character, she was described by judge John Marchezak as "the kind of dairy cow we should be looking for today."

A Tiho Kit Builder daughter, Alanna also won the best udder award among the five-year-olds.

Following closely behind to win the reserve champion honors was Singing Brook Astro Patty, a Paclamar Astronaut daughter. Owned by Singing Brook Farms, this seven-year-old also received best udder of the aged cow class, and was also named best female bred and owned by exhibitor.

The junior championship went to Globe Run Sexy Darlene. The Ocean-View Sexation daughter is a senior yearling owned by Globe Run Farm, Petersburg.

An intermediate yearling, Allenor Reliance Patty, was named reserve junior champion. She is owned by Charles Baker of Allenor Holsteins, Bedford.

Elmira supermarket wins ADA cheese contest

SYRACUSE, NY — Tops Supermarket of Elmira, N.Y., was named the grand prize winner in a national cheese display contest sponsored by the American Dairy Association.

This year's contest offered dual win opportunities for contestants. Fifteen hundred participants were named instant winners for early registration, and all entries were automatically entered in the national contest for natural real domestic cheeses.

During March and April, food retailers and cheese industry representatives were encouraged to construct an out-of-position merchandising display featuring real cheese. Each display was required to show a minimum of four natural domestic cheeses such as Cheddar, Blue and Muenster. A panel of American Dairy Association representatives judged each entry on imaginativeness, creativity, merchandising effectiveness, and attractiveness.

Dan Parsons, Dairy Manager of Tops, and creator of the display, was awarded the grand prize for his display depicting the Lincoln Memorial. "It took a lot of work and time to put the display together," said Parsons. "Not only did it take time to dream up the initial idea, but also over 70 working hours to construct."

According to Parsons, an award winning display gives a store a quality reputation in today's consumer market. "The publicity is well worth the effort," said the six year Tops' employee. "We sold a lot of cheese because customers just couldn't miss it."

Pat Allan of Blackman and Ebsary was named by Tops as the participating cheese industry representative. He received a matching identical prize to Parsons.

The quality of winners in this spring 1985 competition was the highest recorded by similar contests sponsored by the American Dairy Association. Upstate New York has the highest percentage of entries nationwide. Coupled with entries from New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the Empire state and its neighbors accounted for over 40 percent of the total number of entries, and earned a record 180 early entry awards.

Check-in deadline for the show is September 4. Exhibitors must furnish their own hay and straw.

Branstetter consignment brings top Ag Progress Sale bid

Bransdale Valiant Raylene brought the top bid of $4,700 at Tuesday night's Ag Progress Sale in Centre Hall.

BY WENDY WEHR

CENTRE HALL — A crowd of onlookers filled the bleachers, but bidders were cautious at Tuesday evening's annual Ag Progress Sale. The high bid and sale average were down considerably from last year's figures.

Topping the sale was Bransdale Valiant Raylene, consigned by Erin Branstetter, of Tyrone. Daren Brown placed a $4,700 bid on the December 1984 calf to take her home to Boalsburg.

Last year's top seller, also a Bransdale consignment, went for $7,700 to a bidder from California.

Auctioneer Art Kling described the show-bound Raylene as "one of the deepest pedigreed animals here tonight," as he called off her credits to the crowd. The Valiant heifer is out of Bransdale Elevation Rosa-ET, a VG-85 Elevation daughter projected to almost 18,000 pounds milk on her second lactation.

The Raylene calf comes from five generations of very good and excellent dams. The fifth dam is the Ex-97 Kings Artic Rose, who produced 35,276 pounds of 3.7 percent milk at seven years and eight months.

The sale average for the night came to $1,116 on 59 head. Last year's average on the Centre County club sale came to $1,542.

Two other animals brought bids over $2,000 this year. Second high selling consignment was Huntsdale Pete Dusty-ET, purchased by Guy Hammond of Carlisle for $2,500 from the Huntsdale Stock Farm, also of Carlisle.

Dusty is a May 1983 heifer by Straight-Pine Elevation Pete. Her dam is Huntsdale Deety Magnet, a VG-87 cow with a third lactation record of 20,200 pounds milk and 798 pounds fat.

Safe with calf by Huntsdale Messenger-ET, a Marshfield Elevation Tony son, Dusty comes from four generations of Very Good dams.

Third high of the night was Tussey-View Pabst Lyni, an 85-point Char-Sam Elevation Pabst daughter. She was consigned by Tussey View Farms of Centre Hall and purchased by Mount Supreme Holsteins, Boalsburg, for $2,400.

Fresh July 15, Lyni gave 89.9 pounds on her last test. As a two-year-old she produced 17,720 pounds milk and 598 of fat. Lyni is out of Tussey-View Pacemaker Lale, and her granddam is Tussey-View Chief Lila, an Ex-90, 32,000 pound producer.

Sponsored by the Centre County Holstein Club, the sale was managed by Kling's Auction Service, Landisburg.

Cost effect of aphid control

LINCOLN, NB. — "It takes 79 pea-aphid days to cause enough economic damage to alfalfa to justify the cost of controlling the insects," says USDA entomologist George R. Manglitz, with the Agricultural Research Service, Lincoln, Nebraska.

In three years of tests University of Nebraska and Agricultural Research Service researchers reared pea aphids on three alfalfa varieties–Baker, Dawson, and Vernal–under caged conditions and evaluated the damage.

Of the three varieties, the greatest loss of forage yield and protein content was $39 per acre on Vernal, a susceptible variety, when exposed to 475 pea-aphid days, Manglitz says.

"A pea-aphid day is the number of aphids found on a stem times the number of days," says Manglitz. For example, six aphids on a stem for 2 days would equal 12 aphid days.

Calculations to determine threshold for treatment were based on alfalfa at $50 per ton and treatment cost at $8 per acre. The plots were treated with methoxychlor to eliminate lady beetles, the major predator of pea aphids.

"Resistant varieties provide a definite advantage over susceptible varieties because they support fewer aphids, so populations are less likely to build up to the threshold level," Manglitz says.

Gor-Wood-D Acres keeps Northeast Holstein titles

BY WENDY WEHR

WHITNEYVILLE — As the show progessed, some spectators predicted Gor-Wood-D Acres would be the easy winner. After all, their first-rate show string included last year's grand champion and a host of winning entries.

While Gor-Wood-D Acres did, indeed, return to the winner's circle and capture the premier banners at this year's Northeastern Pennsylvania Holstein Championship Show, the outcome of the contest for grand champion was somewhat less predictable.

Stepping into the grand champion position was Gor-Wood-D Apache Margo, the first-place aged cow and the best female bred and owned of the show. In claiming the championship, Margo upstaged her herdmate, Gor-Wood-D Elevation Libya, who reigned as grand champion of the Northeast show for two years running.

"I guess this cow's finally put it together," commented Ron Wood following the naming of the champion. The Ex-91, 2E, Margo is by Chapel-Bank Apache and out of Mt-Glen Wetonia Marie

While Margo has always stood second to Libya, this year the tables were turned, with Libya standing second to Margo in aged cow competition. But Margo has a good share of winnings to her credit as well.

The seven-year-old Margo stood as first-place aged cow and was a member of the first-place best three females at this year's State Spring Show. She was reserve champion at last year's Northeast District Show.

Ron Wood said he expects Margo, a consistent producer of more than 20,000 pounds of high-test milk, to compete in the 100,000 pound production class next year.

With top placings in the cow and group classes, Gor-Wood-D Acres, owned by Gordon and Dorothy Wood and family, of Mansfield, easily garnered enough points to take home the premier breeder and premier exhibitor banners. They also earned those honors at the Holstein State Spring Show in Harrisburg this year.

Miller wins

"I really love this white cow," remarked judge Dave Houck, of Unionville, Ontario, about the Gor-Wood-D grand champion, "and this (reserve champion) is a dead ringer for her."

While Houck liked the winning Margo, he had equal praise for Lynn and Bonnie Miller's reserve grand champion, Royal-Haven Quality. He described her as having a great combination of angularity, strength and balance as he pulled her into first-place among the three-year-olds.

A home-bred entry, Quality is a Quality Ultimate daughter out of Royal-Haven Rockette Queen. Scored Ex-91, she was all-American heifer calf in 1982 and an all-Pennsylvania senior yearling.

The Millers, of Towanda, also exhibited the reserve junior champion at Tuesday's show. A senior calf, Royal-Haven Threat Bloom is a Hanover-Hill Triple Threat daughter out of Royal Haven Blossom-ET.

Lynn Miller reported that this was the calf's show debut. From the Millers' Bell family, Bloom's dam is scored excellent.

Simalot Holsteins, of Mansfield, showed the show's junior champion, an intermediate yearling heifer. Simalot Trust Frosty is a home-bred entry out of Spring Belle Fury Flossie.

Champions in junior division competition were also named during the Northeast show, held Tuesday in Tioga County.

Paul W. Moyer, of Roaring Branch, showed his C. Graylou Telstar Tessa, a four-year-old entry, to the grand championship. By Vic-Ray Telstar Citation Jet, Tessa is out of C. Graylou Man-O-War Ida. She was bred by Robert T. Gray, of Dunnville, Ontario.

Reserve grand champion in the junior competition was Cherry-Acres Adeline Elevation, an aged dry cow shown by William Hembury, Dushore. An Elevation daughter, Adeline is out of Cherry-Acres Dandeline Hagen.

The Jennie C. Groover, Canton, showed the junior champion. Her intermediate calf, Hickory-Swamp Jen, is a Coldsprings Hamlet daughter out of Rag Apple Galaxy.

Hermandale Stewart Jenifer, shown by Heather Kilbourn, Roaring Branch, earned the reserve junior champion rosette. Jenifer is a Hermandale Astro-Adam Jeanie daughter by Breezyview Job Royal Stewart. She was bred by Larry and Mary Herman, of Roaring Branch.

Following are the top three placings in each class for the junior and open competition of the Northeast Championship Holstein Show.

The whole family can take credit for the continued success of Gor-Wood-D Acres as premier exhibitor and breeder of the Northeast Championship Holstein Show.

Cyst nematodes increasing

NEWARK, DE — Soybean cyst nematodes (SCN) are showing up with increasing frequency in Delaware soybean fields. Growers should be checking fields with yellow stunted plants now.

"Don't presume the stunting is from some other cause unless you're absolutely sure," cautions University of Delaware extension plant pathologist Bob Mulrooney. "Some cyst-damaged fields have been incorrectly diagnosed as having high pH, herbicide damage, fungus disease, insects or moisture stress."

Because cyst nematode damage resembles symptoms of these other problems, the specialist says it is important to check soybean plant root systems for the presence of cysts.

Fields that have been in continuous soybean production for several years are the most likely to become infested. If infestations are not properly identified and the correct controls used, further losses can be expected.

Once SCN has been identified in a field, the grower must either rotate the following season to a resistant crop such as corn or sorghum, or plant a resistant soybean variety. Double-cropping with resistant wheat or barley is not an effective rotation, the plant pathologist says.

To KBJ Ranch in Ohio, E.T. is where the money is

Staff Correspondent
BY DEBBIE STILES-RENZI

XENIA, OH – Dave Greenhorn, manager of KBJ Ranch near Xenia, Ohio sees dollar signs in the future through practice of transferring live embryos from one cow to another.

"That's where the money is," he comments, referring to the three embryo-transplant (ET) moneymakers for the KBJ: club calves, ET fullblood heifers, and the sale of frozen embryos.

KBJ Ranch, a purebred/fullblood Simmental breeding operation, bears the distinction of being the site of the first embryo transfer east of the Mississippi. In cooperation with Ohio State University, the new surgical procedure took place July 4, 1975. Now, over ten years later, the nonsurgical technique of flushing donor cows is performed for the KBJ Ranch by Select Embryos of Plains City, Ohio.

The ranch now runs 250 commercial cows for both club calves and the ET program. They have no bull on the place, per se; everything, including the ET donors is bred artificially. Signal and Big-N-Tall are popular bulls here. Annually, about 100 ET calves are dropped.

"Last year, we sold 42 heifers at show time," Greenhorn reports. Fullblood heifers are their top profit item. In 1984 they sold weaned females for an average of $1578 each.

"We've got a real good heifer market," says Greenhorn. He claims even in years when the economy is poor their top heifers do well regardless.

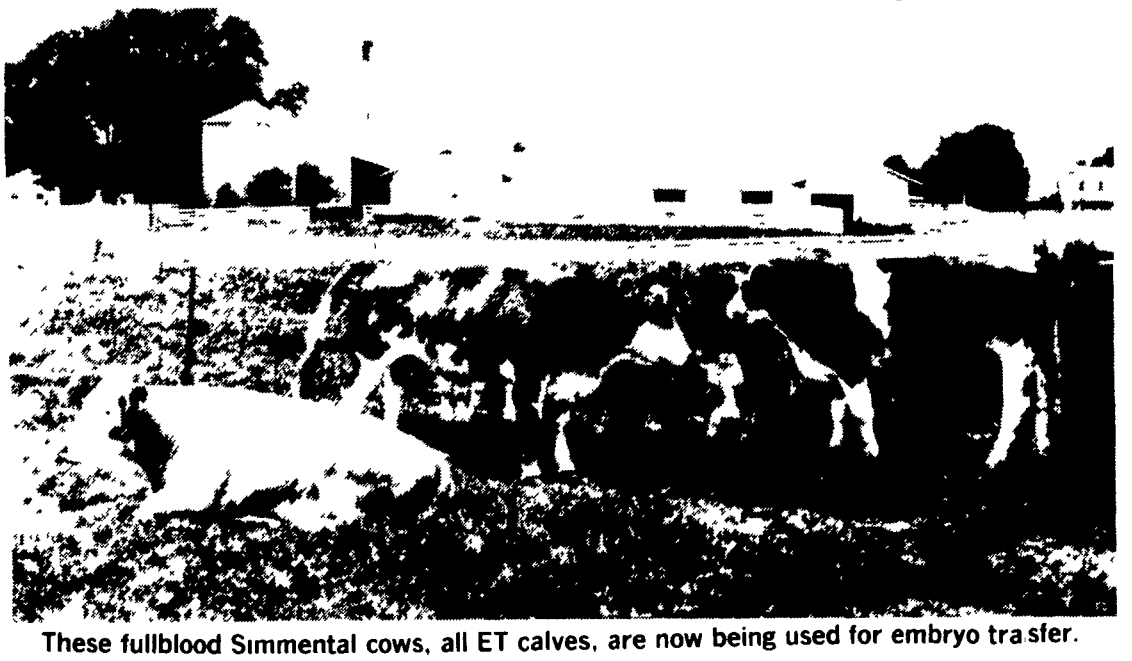
KBJ also sells bulls, although usually only about 15 head per year. According to Greenhorn, there just isn't the market in bulls as there is for heifers, especially fullblood ones, as opposed to purebreds. In the Simmental breed purebred means 15/16 Simmental, etc.

Out of every ten "superior" embryos transplanted, seven become pregnant, Greenhorn estimates. Their conception rate at KBJ has been running a little better than 70 percent. Select Embryos charges them a flat fee of $300, whether one egg or 30 are obtained in the flushing. In addition, KBJ pays $225 per cow, later guaranteed pregnant.

"If you can merchandise a calf, then, for fifteen hundred dollars, you've made your money," sums up Greenhorn.

Over the years, KBJ has built up a reputation for quality Simmental and Simmental-Chianina cross club calves. Their work with ET has enhanced this reputation. Greenhorn lists club calf sales as the number-two moneymaker for the KBJ.

More sales of frozen embryos to domestic and foreign buyers are what the KBJ Ranch is aiming form. Predominantly a fullblood Simmental breeder, KBJ animals are somewhat in demand by foreign breeders for use as foundation stock. Greenhorn acknowledges this fact is partly due to the KBJ's own marketing efforts.



These fullblood Simmental cows, all ET calves, are now being used for embryo transfer.

Shipping live cattle overseas remains a risky and sometimes impossible proposition. Though there are still mountains of red tape to be gotten through in order to ship even frozen embryos, Greenhorn and KBJ owner Erv Nutter feel the ultra-tech route of transporting frozen embryos versus live cows is the way they should go.

Last year the KBJ shipped embryos to Colombia, South America; those same buyers are coming back again this year, Greenhorn reports. "And we've got more leads," says Greenhorn. Now they'll also be shipping frozen fullblood Simmental embryos to China.

The Simmental Association has established rules on the registration of ET calves. "Both the mother and the father must be blood-typed before the calf can be registered," Greenhorn explains. One convenient factor is that the Association has an open AI book.

Greenhorn feels the careful planning of matings is very important to the success of ET. At the KBJ they use all available resources and structure matings meticulously, matching matings sometimes to several generations. "We use the Simmental Sire Directory, and we try to put that all together with matched matings," says Greenhorn.

For their recipient cows the KBJ uses half-blood Simmentals and Holsteins. The two are separated since the Holsteins require more feed for maintenance. Winter rations for the entire herd consist of corn silage and hay.

Most of the cows in the ET program had their first calf naturally. One exception in the KBJ herd is a 4-year-old cow that has never had a calf. She keeps having good ET calves, so they continue to use her. "But we try not to flush a cow more than three times before letting her have a calf again." says Greenhorn. They take pains to ensure their ET cows' health by having them checked regularly by a vet.

Since their best market is for heifers, the KBJ hopes to be able soon to sex embryos, and thus transplant primarily heifer embryos. Greenhorn is confident they will have a market for these extra females.

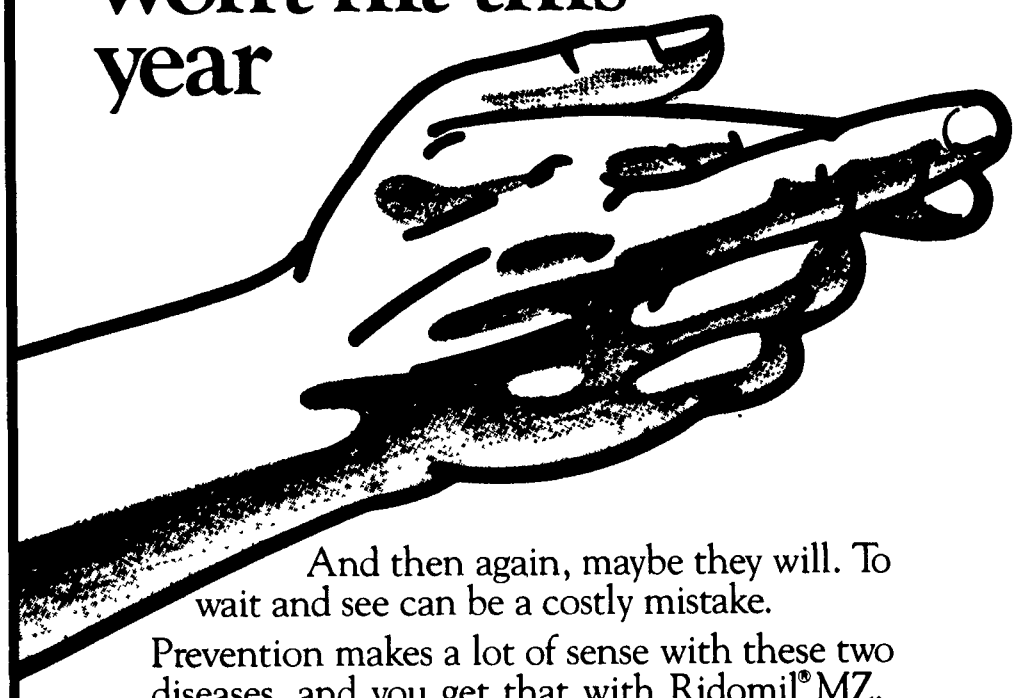
Greenhorn believes it is economically feasible for a small breeder – one with only ten cows or so – to consider ET as a means to increase profits from top-notch cows. But he stresses the quality aspect: if a breeder (and he must be a breeder, not just a hobbyist) isn't selective in his matings of donor cows with bulls, he will end up with the added expense of ET and even more unmarketable animals. And there is a risk factor, when using the best stock. Of the ET offspring, Greenhorn admits, "They're not all good." Grand champions mated to grand champions can sometimes produce a dud – or in the case of ET, a whole litter of dud calves.

"We've had some bad ones here," says Greenhorn, despite the care they take.

Right now, ET is the "in" thing in the beef breeding industry Everyone – with the excpetion of a few cautious research animal scientists and husbandmen – is jumping on the ET bandwagon Some investors, and cattlemen, too, have profit, rather than breed improvement as their primary goal. The gloom-and-doomsayers of ET might not be far wrong in predicting disaster for those greedy individuals or even the entire industry should this trend continue.

Greenhorn, with ten years background in ET, realizes this danger of money over common-sense improvement. "They don't know what they're getting into," he warns.

Maybe Late Blight and Tuber Rot won't hit this year



And then again, maybe they will. To wait and see can be a costly mistake.

Prevention makes a lot of sense with these two diseases, and you get that with Ridomil® MZ. Ridomil MZ knocks out disease on contact. Then it moves inside the plant where it continues to protect against late blight and tuber rot.

For best tuber rot control, spray Ridomil MZ at flowering. Then make one or two more sprays at two week intervals.

If conditions favor the development of late blight prior to flowering or late in the season, make one or two applications of Ridomil MZ as part of your standard fungicide spray program.

Ridomil® is a trademark of CIBA-GEIGY

At Lancaster's 4-H Pig Roundup

Nestleroths are back in 'show business'

BY JACK HUBLEY

N&N Incorporated might be an appropriate name for the group of 4-H'ers that fielded the grand champion market hog in this year's Lancaster County 4-H Pig Show on Wednesday.

Though Beth Nestleroth found herself in the winner's circle at show's end, she was quick to point out that she simply happened to pick the right one from the group of seven pigs exhibited by herself, her sisters Carolyn and Stacy and their neighbor Tod Neifert.

The daughter of Manheim pork producers Mark and Hazel Nestleroth, Beth finds that the family's cooperative arrangement not only helps to keep the peace among a family of swine exhibitors, but also ensures that everyone gets a piece of the pie. When one of the Nestleroth pigs comes out on top, all those who contributed to the effort share the winnings.

A four-year veteran of the 4-H showring, Beth says that suits her just fine. "Cause then if they have a grand champion, I can have some of the money, too," she points out.

And with Hatfield Packing offering the top bid of $3.10 for the 235-pound champion Duroc, none of the "stockholders" in N&N Inc. are likely to be disappointed

Beth's father, Mark, seemed pleased with the outcome, as well. "It's (champion) from the very first litter we had out of our new herd," notes Nestleroth, recalling the bitter pill that the family had to swallow last fall when their herd was hit hard by pseudorabies virus and ultimately depopulated. The swine producer reports that his herd has risen to 130 sows and will eventually reach 250.

Beth Nestleroth's 235-pound Duroc proved unbeatable at this year's Lancaster Co. 4-H Pig Club Roundup. Buyer, at $3.10 per pound, was Ezra Good of Hatfield Packing.

Sheldon Heisey's reserve champion went to Ken Hershey of Leidy Packing, Souderton.

And show judge Cheryl Fairbairn demonstrated her approval of the champion litter once more, when the Chester County Extension agent gave the nod to one of the top pig's littermates, exhibited by Tod Neifert, for reserve honors in the lightweight division.

Reserve grand champion honors went to Sheldon Heisey, 15, the son of Warren and Beverly Heisey of Elizabethtown. This was Heisey's second reserve champion win in seven years of 4-H competition.

Heisey's winning barrow was one of nine pigs that the Elizabethtown High School sophomore raised for this year's show season. The young showman bought the 230-pound Hamp-Duroc-York cross from Larry Mullen Jr., of Bainbridge.

Despite a slumping hog market, the reserve champion brought a healthy bid of $2 per pound from Leidy Packing Co. of Souderton. With an eye to the future, the young exhibitor plans to invest his reserve champion check in pork...for next year's show season.

Overall, the sale "went pretty well", according to Lancaster Extension livestock agent Chet Hughes. The show's 31 contenders sold their 94 hogs for $11,945, for a sale average of 56 cents counting champions, and 51 cents not counting the top two pigs.

The sale's most active buyer, Amos Stoltzfus Meats, Intercourse, took home 31 head, with Hatfield Packing and Leidy Packing accounting for 26 and 12 head, respectively.

Kenneth H. Evans, an official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said developers of the new varieties will have the exclusive right to reproduce their products in the United States for 18 years. Certificates of protection are granted after a review of the breeders' records and claims that each new variety is novel, uniform and stable.

The following varieties have been issued certificates of protection:

— the Apex and Bellona varieties of barley, developed by Cebeco-Handelsraad, Rotterdam, the Netherlands; and the Premier variety of barley, developed by Busch Agricultural Resources,Inc., Berthoud, Colo

Maryland plans Ag Field Days

COLLEGE PARK, MD. – WESTERN MARYLAND AG FIELD DAYS are to be held on Sept. 4 and 5 at the University of Maryland's Research and Education Center near Keedysville. The two days of tours and demonstrations will review the University's current research in fruit and field crop production and additional educational exhibits and machinery demonstrations.

Beginning at 9 a.m. the presentations on Sept. 4 will feature alfalfa fertilizer management for higher yields and integrated pest management. The UMDAIR Program, the University's least-cost dairy ration balancing computer program, will also be demonstrated.

Later in the morning the use of hay drying chemicals will be a part of the hay mowing/conditioning field demonstrations. The afternoon program includes field demonstrations on hay raking, tedding, baling and bagging. One of the highlights will be the prototype of a hay swath inverter developed by a farmer from Garrett County, Maryland. This simple machine will lay down a dinrow or a swatch of variable width, ted a thick windrow or neatly and gently invert a swath of hay to allow the underside to dry.

Demonstrations for fruit growers will begin at 3:30 P.M. with sprayer and wind generating machinery and a computer analysis of fruit production costs. Evening wagon tours of research plots will include apple/rootstock variety interactions, summer shearing of apples, peach training studies and Magness pear production. The Research Center's new table grape plants will be examined in addition to small fruit breeding.

The 'Corn Showcase' will be open for tours both days-displaying 54 varieties from fourteen seed companies.

The second day, Sept. 5, will begin with wagon tours of the agronomy research plots. These will include the University's corn variety tests, high yield small grain studies, in addition to nitrogen fertilizer placement in no-till corn, tillage effects on grey leaf spot and weed control studies. The afternoon program will be field demonstrations of forage harvestors, no-till drilling of soybeans and small grain and tillage equipment.

The research and demonstrations currently underway and others planned for the Western Maryland Research and Education Center are tailored for the needs of the diversified agriculture of the Piedmont region. The Annual Ag Field Days are presently one of the University of Maryland's major efforts to pass current research information on to agricultural producers.

SILAGE CONDITIONER PRESERVATIVE and NUTRIENT BALANCER

MOPRO
THE PROFIT MAKER

MOPRO 100
LIQUID SILAGE FORTIFIER

has been used by progressive farmers for over 16 years. University tested and proven MOPRO Liquid Silage Fortifier is formulated to balance the major mineral and protein deficiencies of silages. It also prevents loss from mold and rot after being removed from the silo or trench. MOPRO is added at the time of ensiling and is applied by metering equipment with very little handling cost. MOPRO will not corrode mild steel tanks or brass fittings and has no free ammonia odor to irritate the eyes or skin. MOPRO is a homogeneous solution of ammonia salts, urea, cane molasses, and minerals (except salt and calcium) in an efficient liquid carrier. It provides nitrogen for improved fermentation in the rumen and contains a mineral balance of phosphorous, magnesium, and trace elements including selenium. MOPRO 100 will give a resulting silage of up to 14.3% protein.

Farm surpluses: temporary or permanent?

BY KATHY E. GILL
Special to Lancaster Farming

"It's about time that farmers learned how to survive on their own."

"I'd like to see farmers become more independent."

"Like any other business, they should learn how to survive on their own."

"Sure it's tough - but it's tough for everyone. Farmers aren't alone in that respect."

These comments from the August 16 issue of USA Today opinion page deal with the "farm crisis." Historically, Gallup Polls have shown consumers to be sympathetic to farmers, but these comments give another glimpse.

These sentiments are not limited to consumers. Congressional agricultural committees recessed for the summer without finishing a farm bill. The conflicts involved opinions such as those above combined with the financial pressure squeezing the ag sector this year.

Competing forces push this way and that, with Ag Secretary John Block publicly opposing supply controls, a dairy diversion program and income supports based on cost of production.

But all sides seem to agree that net farm income is disasterously low; the argument centers on how to "doctor" the situation. Underlying the debate is a massive supply of foodstuffs, from cheese and butter to corn and wheat.

But the question that no one seems willing to ask is this: Is American agriculture in a temporary over-supply situation, or has the industry evolved into one with permanent over-capacity?

Your answer to that question fundamentally alters the way you can doctor the problem.

Over-supply is the problem

Ag economist Brice Ratchford, the University of Missouri, answers with a resounding "yes."

Speaking at the recent National Institute on Cooperative Education at Kansas State University, Ratchford – in a controversial stand – estimated that production agriculture excess capacity exceeds 10 percent.

In his opinion, "it should be self-evident" that agriculture is in a permanent over-capacity situation. The number of years "when production agriculture has yielded the opportunity cost for labor and capital can be counted on one's fingers; indeed, almost those on one hand." Opportunity costs are defined as the prevailing wage and interest rates.

According to Ratchford, "almost everything conceivable has been blamed for the 'temporary surpluses'." He notes demand failure, a "cheap food policy" and government policy.

Do American farmers have the right "to expect the world to take all the products (they) want to produce at a fair price?" he rhetorically asked. His answer is "no."

What about dairy?

A look at recent dairy statistics should convince the most stouthearted that the dairy industry is as susceptible as grain.

Milk production in June totalled 12.4 billion pounds nationally, the highest June production since 1947, according to National Dairy News. This figure was six percent above June 1984 and 1.4 percent above June 1983. July statistics for Federal Order 4 indicate production is up 10 percent.

In fact dairy farmers are the beneficiaries – or victims – of the oversupply situation in the grain business. Despite lower milk prices, depressed grain and concentrate prices have kept a favorable milk-feed ratio, according to Robert Cropp of the University of Wisconsin.

Thus, dairy farmers find themselves in the classic "nearly perfect competitive" economic model articulated by Adam Smith. Just like their grain counterparts in the mid-west, individual Pennsylvania dairy farmers see their only route to higher income as increased production.

Ironically, this economic model postulates that with an inelastic demand such as that faced by almost all farmers, the easiest way to increase collective income is to lower volume and thus increase prices.

Ratchford illustrated this condition by explaining that if agriculture were under one management, rather than the 2.3 million managers now making decisions, that one manager would idle the least productive and most costly acres.

Also, this manager would be tempted "to take advantage of the inelastic price elasticity and reduce" supply just a little to earn exorbitant profits, Ratchford said.

Solutions varied

What are the solutions, if indeed you accept Ratchford's premise that agriculture has excess capacity?

"There has never been any question in the mind of any economist that an absolutely free market would correct the situation in the long run," he said. But he contends the process would be very "long in agriculture because eliminating farmers does not solve the production problem."

"If one farmer leaves voluntarily or is forced out, his land is immediately picked up by another and often more productive farmer. In sufficient time, however, restrictions of labor and capital would bring down the size of the agricultural plant," Ratchford continued.

"The only realistic solution I see is a massive public program to reduce the acres in agriculture in addition to whatever else is done to stimulate demand and supplement income," he said.

If Ratchford's plan were to be implemented, both farmers and land would be removed from agriculture. Because marginal land does not yield the volumes that productive land does, hundreds of thousands of acres would have to be idled.

As a result, the farmers remaining would (1) have good domestic prices and (2) have few export markets. American grain is already over-priced on the world market, in part due to the value of the dollar.

Can we – as a nation – afford to lose those export markets?

Luther Tweeten, ag economist at Oklahoma State University, notes that agriculture accounts for about three percent of the national income but for a whopping 20 percent of the nation's exports. As currently structured, agriculture relies much more heavily on ex-

State projects grain records

HARRISBURG – Pennsylvania farmers will harvest record yields of wheat, oats, barley, rye and other hay, and smaller production of corn, soybeans, tobacco and alfalfa than last year based on August 1 conditions.

According to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, acreages to be harvested, yield per acre, total estimated production and percentage change from 1984 are as follows: Oats-300,000 acres, a record high 673 bushels per acre, 18,900,000 bushels, up 18 percent; Barley-70,000 acres, a record high 62 bushels per acre, 4,340,000 bushels, up 19 percent; Rye-20,000 acres, a record high 40 bushels per acre, 800,000 bushels per acre, up 38 percent; and Other Hay-1,150,000 acres, 2.1 tons per acre, a record high 2,415,000 tons, up one percent.

Corn-1,370,000 acres, 105 bushels per acre, 143,850,000 bushels, down three percent; Wheat-210,000 acres, a record high 39 bushels per acre, 8,190,000 bushels, down two percent; Soybeans-170,000 acres, 29 bushels per acre, 4,930,000 bushels, down 17 percent; All Tobacco-11,500 acres, 1,914 pounds per acre, 22,015,000 pounds, down two percent; and Alfalfa-840,000 acres, 3.1 tons per acre, 2,604,000 tons, down three percent.

Pennsylvania apple production is forecast at 475 million pounds, down 17 percent from last year. Peach production is forecast at 30 million pounds, far below the 85 million pounds produced in 1984. This small crop is primarily the result of winter freeze and frost damage and some hail damage this spring. Indicated pear production for 1985 is 2,800 tons, down 15 percent from 1984; and grape production at 55,000 tons is eight percent below last year's level of 60,000 tons.

The total number of farms in the Commonwealth as of June 1, 1985, is 58,000, unchanged from last year. Land in farms also remained unchanged from 1984 at 8,700,000 acres.

At the United States level, corn for grain production is forecast at a record high 8.27 billion bushels, eight percent above last year. Oats production is forecast at 519 million bushels, up ten percent from 1984. Barley production at 599.7 million bushels is up one percent from last year.

All wheat production is forecast at 2.38 billion bushels, eight percent less than 1984. Rye production at 19.3 million bushels is 40 percent below 1984 production. Soybean production is forecast at 1.96 billion bushels, five percent above last year. All tobacco production is forecast at 1.51 billion pounds, 12 percent below 1984. Alfalfa production is forecast at 84.5 million tons, six percent below 1984 production. Other hay production is forecast at 64 million tons, five percent above last year.

Commercial apple production is forecast at 8.07 billion pounds, three percent below last year's production. The number of farms in the United States is estimated at 2.28 million, down two percent from 1984. Land in farms declined 3.8 million acres from 1984 to 1.015 billion acres. The average farm size increased from 438 acres last year to 445 acres in 1985.

Ag enrollment up at Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK – The College of Agriculture at The Pennsylvania State University is beginning the 1985-86 academic year at full strength.

"Although we won't have final enrollment figures until late September or early October, we have a sizable increase in our paid accepts this fall," says James S. McCoy, director of undergraduate student affairs for the college.

"We are expecting about 500 new students in Ag at University Park this week," he continues. That figure includes about 250 freshmen, 55 transfers from other colleges and universities and about 200 upper class students from Penn State's Commonwealth Campuses. In addition, about 240 new students are expected to enroll in agriculture at the Commonwealth Campuses.

"To make our students feel welcome, we have planned a full afternoon of special orientation activities at the Ag Arena on August 19," says McCoy. The program is designed to help new students get off on the right track with their studies and to help them get involved in college activities.

Students will meet in small groups with college faculty and university staff on subjects such as: What's a College Education Worth?, Overview of the University, Working with an Advisor, and sessions on student life and clubs. They will also be guests of the college at a picnic supper before joining other new Penn State students for additional orientation activities.

Commodity groups agree on market strategies

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA – Investing in market development for U.S. farm commodities must be a top priority, agreed leaders of five major commodity organizations who gathered here recently to discuss the impact of the 1985 farm bill on the farm economy.

Speakers represented at the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) recent annual meeting included Roger Asendorf, American Soybean Association (ASA) president, Henry Neshem, National Association of Wheat Growers (NAWG) president, Varel Bailey, NCGA president, John "Duke" Barr, National Cotton Countil chairman, and Jim Phillips, National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) chairman of government relations.

All of these industry leaders agreed that market development efforts, such as Velsicol's Operation Trade Expansion program (V.O.T.E.), are critical in ensuring strong market demand for U.S. farm commodities. In place of declining government supports, aggressive producer self-help program will play an increasingly larger role in keeping agriculture competitive and providing profits for the nation's farmers.

Speaking at the NCGA meeting, Secretary of Agriculture John Block emphasized markets can be built at home as well as abroad. He praised the corn growers for their work in developing U.S. markets for corn through their ethanol and corn sweetener promotions. "I strongly support research on (domestic) utilization of product," said Block.

Nearly $100,000 of the 1984 V.O.T.E. monies were applied by NCGA toward domestic corn market development–ethanol and corn sweeteners–last year. NCGA estimates without this effort, the current value of corn would be 15 cents per bushel less than it currently is. NCGA is targeting use of 1985 V.O.T.E. monies for expanding domestic use of corn for ethanol to one billion bushels by 1990.

Market development efforts undertaken by other groups participating in Velsicol's Operation Trade Expansion include:

- ASA is developing a soybean food product for the people of India, which will increase their demand for soybeans.
- Cotton Incorporated is investing V.O.T.E. funds in its ongoing "True Performance" campaign, which identifies cotton products and cites cotton's benefits to consumers.
- NAWG is providing funding to U.S. Wheat Associates to sponsor trainees from the People's Republic of China to the American Baking Institute and brings foreign buyers for the NAWG annual meetings to promote purchases.
- NPPC promoted pork as lean and healthful among junior and senior high school students and teachers, as well as food editors. V.O.T.E. funds will also allow them to sponsor a food editors' conference to encourage them to reach the readers of popular women's magazines with the "lean on pork" message.
- NCA distributed "Myths about Beef" brochures to media, health professionals, the food distribution industry and key influencers in government with V.O.T.E. funds. They have plans for a food editors' conference to present the "facts on beef."

Leaders of the organizations at the NCGA meeting urged growers who purchased Velsicol products to participate in V.O.T.E. Under the terms of the program, Velsicol donates 50 cents in the grower's name for specific market development projects--and stronger markets.

The grower selects the commodity group when they fill out a ballot. Ballots must be submitted prior to November 1, 1985, on product purchased between October 1, 1984, and September 30, 1985. Growers wishing to V.O.T.E. can contact their local chemical dealer, their state or national commodity organization, or call 1-800-558-0108 for ballots. (In Wisconsin, call 414-674-4026.)

either. . . The meat prices are not good. If you look at the total meat supply, we're looking at an increased supply of meat. The red meats are suffering more than the rest of them under the current circumstances."

The Farm Credit System: "Just because there's a loss doesn't necessitate a federal bailout. However, I am gravely concerned about the Farm Credit System because it is so important to us in agriculture." Adding that the Administration and the management of the system believe that Farm Credit can solve its own problems if it commits its reserves, Block said, "The system is going to have to accept some additional regulatory oversight if it's going to be accepting any help from the federal government."

This year's corn and soybean crop: "It is a great crop, and it does pose some problems for us, because there's going to be too much of it going under loan. Prices are going to trend lower – I don't know if they'll trend lower from here, because they're already pretty low, but they may, they could. But there's going to be continued price pressure, and I know that the USDA analysts are telling us we're looking at lower prices for the year, compared to this year. . . But given the fundamentals we're looking at now, and the carryover that we'll be looking at in '86, there's no question about it, across the board, we're going to be looking at prices that are weaker than we would like to see. But we've raised it, and now we need to try to sell it."

The big crop, and the large payments, he admitted, would be a needed shot-in-the-arm for some producers.

"This is going to help a lot of farmers," he said, "I'm not saying it's going to heal everyone up, because one crop won't do it. But a big crop is good news."

New Farmers Home Administration borrowers: "I have said that we cannot accept any new borrowers in FmHA. We can't handle any more, and so we'll be looking to the guaranteed loan outlet to service new customers, and be asking the banks to do this for us. We ended up with about a billion dollars in guaranteed loans. The debt restructuring loan, per se, which is the one where the banks were asked to write off part of the debt, in return for the guarantee, we didn't get very many takers on that, or nearly as many as we hoped we could get, because the banks didn't want to write off any debt."

Outlook: "I guess I'd have to say that I know it's going to be a difficult winter and spring again this year. But we're starting very early to try to make it work as smoothly as possible, and accommodate all the farmers that we can that have any hope of survival."

Increase in farm spending: "I know this is going to surprise some people, but we really haven't taken a second place in the budget. The spending on agriculture in the last four years has gone up substantially faster than the spending in defense, faster than the average of the rest of the budget. And when we talk about spending in the next three years, in the range of $35 billion, which is the range we spent in the last three years, we're talking about spending at a record level. I don't think agriculture's taken a back seat in terms of spending, but I would want to add that I don't think it's healthy for agriculture to be looking towards government for more and more money in direct support and direct subsidy. We need to find a way to get away from this monster, because it is 'hooking' us on government support. We've become dependent on government, and that's not healthy for the industry."

Fertilizer demonstration

Farmers in Lancaster County saw how fertilizer materials can become concentrated in layers, despite mixing, if the chemicals in the mixture are not of the same size and shape. For more information on the demonstration at the P.L. Rohrer field day near Manheim, turn to page E-2.

Farm Bureau experts see beef price up, swine down

PARK RIDGE, Il. – Cattlemen can expect some much needed price improvement in the fourth quarter of 1985, but hog producers will have to look at a fairly flat price situation on into 1986, said speakers at Farm Bureau's beef cattle/hog cycle forum.

Ed Uvacek, Texas A&M University economist and professor of livestock marketing told an audience of livestock producers and Farm Bureau commodity and marketing specialists that price spreads between what consumers pay and what farmers receive at their feedlot reached record highs last April.

Despite a 2 percent decline in the number of cattle slaughtered, production increased 2 percent during the first half of 1985 because feeders were marketing their cattle at heavier weights as they attempted to wait for price improvement.

Herd numbers and placement of cattle in feedlots continue to decline, Uvacek said, predicting that prices could start to improve in the third quarter and could work back up to around $60.00 per hundredweight by December.

He said feeder cattle prices would improve as markets strengthen for finished cattle, suggesting that this may be the year for cow/calf producers to hold ownership of their calves longer, getting into backgrounding or even feeding, if they are equipped to do so efficiently.

Uvacek and other speakers, Wayne Purcell, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and Glenn Grimes, University of Missouri, emphasized the wide margins to retailers and the opportunity they provide for merchants to pay more for meat without raising prices to consumers.

Purcell, professor of agricultural economics at VPI, said that farm-to-retail price spreads tend to increase during periods of heavy supply. He urged producers to stick with their marketing plans and ship their animals when they reach optimum market weights. "Despite weak demand for beef," Purcell said, "the current poor performance of the cattle market is a supply phenomenon, because producers have been keeping their cattle to heavier weights."

It is in a producer's own self-interest to work with retailers to find ways to reduce uncertainty regarding long-range supplies and to find some way to transfer risk, such as a futures contract for boxed beef, for example.

"Producer groups will have to take the lead in putting up research and development capital for new product development, market research, new packaging and other marketing innovations, because it is not being done by others in the industry," Purcell said.

Concentrating on the hog situation was Glenn Grimes, livestock economist with the University of Missouri, who blamed a very negative attitude toward red meats by consumers and wide retail marketing margins for the sharp drop in hog prices in the past month. He said the drop of $8 per cwt. in a month was nearly equal to the entire drop between the summer high month and the winter low month in each of the last three years.

"Marketing margins during the second quarter of 1985 were sufficiently higher to reduce the price of live hogs by over $4 per cwt. If this is the correct scenario then there is a possibility hog prices in October or November will be close to the same or slightly higher that they are right now," Grimes said.

He called it premature to say the recent drop in hog prices is the result of a drop in demand. For the first five months of this year, total supply and consumption of pork were almost identical with 1984. Even though slaughter was down, the supply of pork was up slightly from last year as a result of increased imports.

Noting the larger share of U.S. markets being filled by imports, Grimes said, "Hog imports have increased from 3.2 percent of the market share in 1979 to 7.6 percent of the country's consumption in 1984."

He said a large corn crop that seems to be on the way will mean continued low feed costs and predicted that $2.00 corn at harvest time could result in some herd building near the end of the year. Hog slaughter will probably be down for most, if not all of the next 12 months, but added, "I expect hog prices to average $2-$5 below year earlier levels for the next year." He expects the average price of barrows and gilts in the fourth quarter of 1985 to fall within the $42 to $45 range.

Grimes said declining numbers in the swine breeding herd nationally is a misleading statistic, because improved production technology and better breeding stock has resulted in increased domestic production of hogs per animal which, in 1985, will be between 20 and 25 percent higher than 10 years ago.

port markets than do most other sectors.

Any program that would eliminate export markets would even further cut into the dwindling numbers of farmers remaining under Ratchford's plan.

And dairy farmers? Rising feed costs would change the milk-feed price ratio. Inefficient producers would be pushed out by market forces, assuming milk prices do not increase in the near future.

Adding to the complication, a report by the National Corn Growers Association warns that farm income cuts will lead to higher short-term consumer and business interest rates and unemployment, according to the July 29 Food and Fiber Letter.

"If loan losses from bankruptcies hit $20-25 billion, short-term interest rates could increase enough to 'add $80 a month to a consumer housing loan,' according to NCGA President Varel Bailey," F&FL says. In addition, 175,000 to 275,000 people could be added to unemployment lines, total GNP could be reduced $30-50 billion over eight years and the federal debt could be increased $14-21 billion by 1993.

The bottom-line, according to F&FL, is that a market-oriented farm policy such as that proposed by the Reagan Administration would wreak havoc not only on the farm economy but the urban economy as well.

Tweeten summarizes the conflict by saying that "society will have to determine whether to let the family farm fade away under a market-centered policy or preserve the family farm by income transfers targeted to mid-sized and smaller farms."

Is society willing? USA Today feels farmers "in the middle still need help. We should stop payments to giant corporate farms that don't need subsidies. We should stop propping up marginal farmers against the realities of life. We should continue to help the farmers in the middle deal with the vagaries of nature and the world economy."

Leaders face challenge

That is the challenge facing House and Senate agriculture committees when they return from their summer recess.

But how do you structure income enhancement programs that take into account the fact that "larger than family-size farms accounted for six percent of all farms but nearly half of the farm output in 1978," according to Tweeten. Larger than family-sized is defined as a farm hiring more than 1.5 person years of labor.

The mid-sized family farm accounts for a declining share of farm output and numbers. Despite this economic reality, Tweeten feels that "family farmers will be a continuing source of political agitation because in equilibrium the average mid-size family farm will not earn a return covering the opportunity costs of resources."

It sounds like it will be a long fall in Washington.

USDA charges packer in meat-weight fraud

WASHINGTON – The U.S. Department of Agriculture has charged Harry Brody & Sons, Inc., a meat packer in Philadelphia, Pa., and its owner, Herbert S. Small, with fraudulently increasing the weight of meat sold to its customers from January 1981 through September 1983.

They were also charged with making secret payments to customers' employees to gain unfair preference in the sale of meat.

B.H. (Bill) Jones, head of USDA Packers and Stockyards Administration, said their customers included hotels, restaurants, schools and hospitals in the Philadelphia and Atlantic City, N.J. areas.

Small and the firm have a right to a hearing on the federal administrative charges filed by USDA under authority of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

If the charges are proven, they will be placed under a cease and desist order, similar to a permanent injunction. They could also be ordered to pay a civil penalty.

The Milk Check

TOM JURCHAK
County Agent

Final Decision

Back in November 1981 petitions were made to the Dairy Division of USDA to expand the marketing areas of Federal Milk Marketing Orders 2 and 4 into more Pennsylvania counties. After 24 days of hearings from July to October in 1983, a "recommended decision" was issued in March of this year.

Since then, all parties involved in the hearings had opportunities to file briefs if their conclusions from the testimony were different from those in the "recommended decision." After the briefs were studied a "final decision" was given on August 9.

It's called the "final decision," but that is really up to the producers in Federal Orders 2 and 4 when they vote on the question of expanding the marketing area into 15 Pennsylvania counties for Order 2 and five for Order 4. As in all federal milk marketing orders that regulate the handlers, the final decisions is up to the producers. This time the decision is whether those handlers selling milk in the 20-county expanded marketing area shall be regulated by Order 2 or 4 or whether each federal order should be terminated.

While it seems to be one referendum, it is actually two. One for Order 2 and another for Order 4, so the decision in each case could be different.

In Order 4 there will also be a referendum of producers to decide if they wish to continue their own advertising and promotion program using 10 cents of the national 15-cent deduction in the Order 4 marketing area. They will probably get two ballots in the same envelope—one for the Order 4 marketing area expansion and one for the advertising and promotion program in Order 4.

Of course, we also have started a national referendum to decide if producers want to continue the 15-cent deduction for advertising and promotion after September 30. These ballots faced an August 20 deadline, but those voting on the two Federal Orders have until September 8 to mail their ballots.

To make matters more interesting, modified bloc voting is allowed on the advertising and promotion referenda but not on the changes in the Federal Orders. This means that on the vote for expanding the marketing areas producers cannot vote contrary to their co-op's vote if they are a co-op member.

To make matters even more interesting, some producers will get ballots on the expansion of marketing areas in both Order 2 and Order 4. The reason for this is simple. Not only will the producers now shipping to Order 2 or 4 handlers receive a ballot for the market area expansion, but also those producers now shipping to handlers who would be affected by the change will have an opportunity to vote. In some cases it's unclear in which marketing order some of these handlers will be regulated, so a producer shipping to one of them could get a ballot from Order 2 and Order 4.

Don't Panic

It's unfortunate timing to have so much decision making to do at one time, but it isn't all that complicated if you just keep in mind what each vote is for. For Order 2 producers it will be simpler because their vote on the 15-cent national advertising and promotion program was due before August 20. Now they, can turn their attention to the Order 2 marketing area expansion before September 8.

For producers now shipping to Order 2 handlers the change will be easier to take than for producers not regulated by Federal Orders. For many of these it will mean combining their fluid milk sales in a federal order pool, so that all handlers operating in the same marketing area will have nearly the same acquisition costs and producers will have nearly the same prices. This is sometimes called giving the greatest good to the greatest number, but it doesn't make it any easier for those who are doing the giving. A similar situation exists in Order 4 with a marketing area expanding into Carbon, Schuylkill, Berks, Lehigh and Northhampton counties.

Remember, it's a basic concept of federal orders to regulate handlers selling milk in the same marketing area. It doesn't matter where the processing plant is located or where the producers live. It's the regulation by producers of handlers selling milk in the same marketing area. Now the referendum of producers is to decide if they want to expand the marketing area to include more milk and more handlers. If you don't know how your handler (or your co-op) and you will be affected by the change, there's still time to find out and, in the process, learn how federal orders work.

Record High

By now everyone in the dairy business must know that in May you produced more milk nationally than in any other May in the past. Well, from my unofficial tally it appears that you did the same thing in Order 2 in July. It wasn't a record high month, but it was the most milk shipped to Order 2 handlers in July since the Order started back in 1938. We came close a couple times, like 948 billion pounds in 1965 and 995 billion in 1983, but this year you topped them all for July with 996.6 billion pounds.

However, you did sell more fluid milk than any July since 1976, but you got the lowest blend price since 1979. For 3.5 milk at the 201-210 mile zone it was $11.93, which sounds a lot better than the $11.21 for June, but you gained 40 cents in July because there was no Louisville Plan pay out. It was 91 cents less than a year ago, but the 50-cent assessment in 1984 would raise the loss to 41 cents a big difference with more cuts to come in future months.

In July you were still feeling the effect of an $11.46 Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series from May in your July Class I price of $13.71. Since May the M-W has dropped 36 cents to $11.10 and shows no sign of improving this fall. With a support price of $11.31 for 3.5 test milk and an M-W of only $11.10, it must make you wonder about the criticism of the M-W for a pricing vehicle for Federal Orders.

Many people seem to feel it's open season on National Milk Producers Federation proposal for a dairy price support program, but one thing I like about it is their economic formula for setting the support price. I believe we could use the price support program to help us develop an economic formula that could be used to replace the M-W in federal order pricing, after we've had some experience with it in a price support situation. It couldn't hurt the support price too much while we get it fine-tuned because it would be tied to a supply/demand adjuster based on CCC purchases of dairy products and an annual hearing to determine its effectiveness.

Some criticize it because it's too complicated, but if the M-W is an example of what a simple formula can do, perhaps we should have something more complicated. I don't think you can avoid it unless you expect to let the support program set your prices forever into the future. What do you think?

Central Pennsylvania dairymen invited to ADA/DC meeting

WILLIAMSPORT – Local dairy producers from the District 19 area of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council are encouraged to attend their fall district meeting. It will take place on September 4, at the Mifflinburg Community Park beginning at 7:00 p.m.

The meeting will review the milk promotion activities of ADADC over the past year. During 1985, dairy producers will invest over $200 million nationally in the promotion of their products. This has resulted in major developments in national and local dairy promotion programs. Producers can learn about these activities as well as look ahead to 1986 by attending the meeting.

District 19 is directed by Fred Epler from Lewisburg. It includes the counties of Bedford, Blair, Centre, Clinton, Columbia, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Lycoming, Mifflin, Montour, Northumberland, Perry, Snyder, and Union. All dairy producers are encouraged to attend.

Barbequed chicken will be served at a cost of $2.00 per person Everyone is asked to bring a dish to pass and their own table service Milk and ice cream will be provided by the committee.

For further information and tickets contact Charlie Kier at (717) 323-2552 or any of the following district committeemen: Fred Epler (717) 524-9708; Leon Musser (717) 524-4361; Owen Heiss (717) 966-1566; Robert Pardoe (717) 524-7625; Theodore Shuck (717) 966-2053; John Walter (717) 523-6315; James Sanders (717) 922-1218.

RCMA renews bid for over-order pricing

SYRACUSE, N.Y. – With farm milk prices predicted to be $1.75 per hundredweight lower this fall than in 1984, dairymen throughout the Northeast should consider a program of over-order pricing now, according to Arthur D. Little, Executive Director of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency, Inc. (RCMA).

Little said that lower prices, coupled with a probable government-mandated assessment to pay for a national program to reduce milk production, will create "crisis level" economic pressures on dairy farmers in the coming months.

In a statement released recently, Little urged milk producers to sign up with RCMA, a farmer-owned organization which is set up to sell milk at above the minimum price level set under federal and state milk marketing orders. RCMA contends that, in many instances, the value of milk for fluid purposes exceeds the federal order minimums. Through collective action, says Little, realistic prices can be established that reflect these values.

"Over-order pricing exists throughout the United States," said Little. "Milk producers here in the Northeast are practically the only dairy farmers in the country that are not benefiting from it."

The USDA has published Class I (fluid) over-order prices that were in effect in July in 34 areas in the U.S. The prices ranged from a low of $.15 a hundredweight to a high of $2.79 in Miami, Florida. The average over-order price for the 34 areas was $.84 per hundredweight.

Little has been assigned the job of leading the campaign to sign up milk producers and/or their cooperatives throughout the 11-state northeastern region.

"We must have at least 95 percent of all producers in this program in order for it to be effective," said the RCMA executive. "It is critically important that every wholesale buyer of milk have the same cost for his product so that no one buyer will have an unfair advantage because he is able to buy milk below the RCMA price. Our objective is to provide producers with additional income while maintaining equal costs to processors."

Under the RCMA program, the above-order charge would be paid directly to RCMA, which would blend it all together, divide it by the total hundredweight of all milk in the region and pay an RCMA check to milk producers. Administrative costs of RCMA are estimated to be less than 5 cents per hundredweight to be paid from the over-order charge.

Little said that, based on the amount of milk sold in the 11-state region, in both Class I (fluid) and Class II (manufacturing) categories, with the U.S. average Class I over-order price of $.84 per hundredweight, producers could receive about $.42 per hundredweight more for all their milk. On an annual basis, this represents about $100 million additional income for Northeastern milk producers.

RCMA was founded in 1973 to improve farm milk prices at a time when farmers were also undergoing severe financial strain. During a period of about 15 months, RCMA returned some $22 million additional income to producers in New England and western New York, the only areas in which it was then operating.

Order 2 milk $11.93 for July

NEW YORK – Dairy farmers who supplied milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during July will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $11.93 per hundredweight (25.7 cents per quart).

Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson also stated that the price was $11.47 in June 1985 and $12.84 in July 1984. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive plan does not affect the uniform price for the month of July.

July's uniform price was lowered $.018 per hundredweight because $180,707.51 less was available in unreserved cash from the June 1985 pool. Failure of the following handlers to pay their pool obligation for June accounted for the shortage: Northeast Dairy Cooperative Federation, Inc. ($134,648.17); Stokes Dairy, Inc. ($28,971.81); and National Farmers Organization ($17,086.53).

A total of 16,496 dairy farmers supplied the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area with 996,600,104 pounds of milk during July, an increase of 4.9 percent (about 47 million pounds) from last year.

The gross value to dairy farmers was $119,822,718.08. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers (handlers) used 370,722,974 pounds of milk for Class I, 37.2 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test, and skim milks. For July, handlers paid $13.71 per hundredweight (29.5 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $14.33 a year ago.

The balance (625,877,130) pounds or 62.8 percent) was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream, and yogurt. Handlers paid $11.13 per hundredweight for this milk.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For July there was a price differential of 16.3 cents for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received within the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

MAMMA hosts cow milking contest at Phillies game

PHILADELPHIA – Television sportscasters and radio disc jockeys from Philadelphia entertained Phillies fans recently as they competed in a cow milking contest on the Astro Turf in Veterans Stadium.

The cow milking contest was part of the pre-game activities planned by the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area (MAMMA) for the 31,000 fans waiting for the start of the Phillies vs. St. Louis Cardinals game.

Sportscasters Howard Eskin (Channel 3) and Scott Palmer (Channel 6) came back to defend their title of champions they earned in last year's competition. Claude Osteen, pitching coach for the Phils joined Palmer and Eskin to make up the TV team. Their opposition was a radio team comprised of three spirited air personalities from WFIL. They were Casey Gineski, Tony Rimar and Joey Reynolds. Phillies Glenn Wilson served as the radio team's captain; Kevin Gross was the player captain of the television team.

Each team received instruction in the proper milking technique prior to the contest from Lynette Loper, the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess. Miss Loper also served as the official umpire for the contest. The television team retained their champion titles by obtaining the most milk in the allotted time. Miss Loper presented the four members of the winning team with trophies.

Holsteins used in the contest were Minta and Favorite, from Caernarvon Farm in Morgantown. They are owned by Andy Stoltzfus, who serves on MAMMA's Board of Directors.

MAMMA was the promotional sponsor for "Wristwatch Day." All fans 14 and under were given a sports wristwatch compliments of MAMMA and the Phillies. The wristband of the sportswatch is embossed with the "Milk. It's Fitness You Can Drink" slogan that has been popularized by MAMMA milk spokesman, Mike Schmidt.

Earl Forwood, president of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative and a director of the National Dairy Board, presented Mike Schmidt with a silver milk pitcher prior to the game on behalf of the dairy farmers of MAMMA. Eastern is one of six cooperatives joined together in the MAMMA program. Forwood also threw out the first ball to start the game.

Fans to the game were also given the chance to win an all-expense-paid weekend for two to this year's World Series by guessing who will drink more milk during the baseball season, Mike Schmidt or Orioles Cal Ripken, Jr. Entry forms for the contest were in Phillies Today, the Official Scoreboard Magazine.

Schmidt and Ripken are currently featured together in television and radio commercials for milk where they challenge each other's playing record and make a toast to the World Series. MAMMA has chosen the two baseball greats to represent dairy products, because they set good standards for the children who admire them and imitate their actions.

MAMMA is a dairy farmer funded and directed, promotion agency responsible for advertising and promoting milk and dairy products in the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area (Federal Order #4).

PFA opposes House dairy plan

CAMP HILL – The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) said today that it would oppose any federal farm program that forced dairymen to pay assessments for the cost of a dairy support program. That is the message Keith Eckel, PFA president, is sending to all congressmen from Pennsylvania.

"We know that the best way to balance supply and demand is to make certain that dairy prices automatically reflect purchases made by the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC)," the farm leader said.

"Some people in the dairy industry are advocating diversion programs," he said, "but similar actions have been dismal failures because they are not market oriented. We also know that assessments are extremely unpopular with dairymen.

What's needed in the dairy industry right now is a simplified dairy support program, basing price on CCC purchases," Eckel remarked.

He gave high marks to the Senate version of the farm bill because it accepted the concept of gearing price supports to the amount of CCC purchases.

Eckel classified the House version as another complicated dairy support program that would cost dairymen further assessments to finance bureaucratic diversion programs.

"Only through market-oriented milk support programs will farmers be able to restore a strong economic base for their industry again," Eckel said.

PFA will be seeking amendments in line with PFA policy, he said, to both bills now being considered that will (1) bring supplies down to demand levels, and (2) automatically adjust the support price level according to the amount of net dairy products purchased by the federal government, and (3) eliminate all assessments against producers.

Mid-Atlantic dairy managers win ADA contest

TOWSON, Md. – Seven Mid-Atlantic food store dairy managers were recently selected winners in the "Have A Dairy Good Summer" retail contest sponsored by the American Dairy Association (ADA) Dairy managers in three Safeway stores, two Giant Food stores, one Acme food store and one High's Dairy Store were winners in the Mid-Atlantic

The contest was part of ADA's overall "Have A Dairy Good Summer" promotion which featured point-of-purchase advertising at the dairy case and ice cream freezer, six weeks of non-brand television advertising, and a free standing insert of June 9th Sunday papers and milk carton side panels, plus a consumer photo contest. Results of the consumer contest are not yet available.

To enter the retail contest, dairy managers simply had to agree to keep up the "Have A Dairy Good Summer" P.O.P. material from June 1 through the end of the promotion on July 15. The P.O.P materials were installed by the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area, a local unit of ADA

Winners were selected from a random drawing of retailers who maintained their displays. Nationally ADA gave away two first prizes of a cruise for two to Mexico, ten second prizes of a Marcy em/1 complete home gym, and 100 third prizes of Ricoh AF-5 35 mm cameras.

Olde Tyme Days to showcase historic equipment, crafts

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

MT. WOLF — Robert Rentzel has a dream.

In that dream, a northern York County farm has become a living museum of the county's rich agricultural heritage. Steam tractors belch smoke and hiss with wood-fired pressure power. Smaller engines sputter noisily while grinding corn, sharpening tools, or powering early versions of modern electrical household appliances.

Rentzel's dream has tales, lore and working knowledge of farming past being handed down to youth, preserving for future generations the precious resource of America's rural roots.

No one is working harder to make that dream come true than Rentzel himself.

Barely a half-year ago, a dozen York County ag history buffs organized the South Central Penn Historic Lifestyle and Power Society. Robert Rentzel is the group's founding president.

Over Labor Day weekend, this hard-working core of ag heritage boosters will sponsor their Olde Tyme Days '85, an ambitious showcase of steam machines, classic tractors and automobiles, heritage crafts, folk culture, historic fashion and oral history presentations.

Plans focus on a projected 10,000 daily attendance for the show's four-day run, Aug. 30 through Sept. 2, centered at the Blaine Rentzel farm and adjoining acreage as needed.

Rentzel grew up on the farm where he and his wife Susan now spend endless hours planning the logistics to make Olde Tyme Days work. Born and raised on the 20-acre plot, which he purchased in 1972 from his grandfather, Rentzel by profession is a mechanical foreman at Pennsylvania Power and Light's Brunner Island plant.

But by avocatin, he's a historian, a calling that took root at age 15. Rentzel vividly recalls his first trip to Williams Grove park near Mechanicsburg, where steam tractor buffs regularly met to display their equipment and trade local ag remembrances.

It was the big Rumely tractors which initially fascinated the young farm boy, who had grown up helping run equipment on the family farm.

When the president of the steam association lent young Rentzel a steam machine to care for, "I got really hooked," he confesses. For many years, he remained actively involved with the Williams Grove Historical Steam Engine Association.

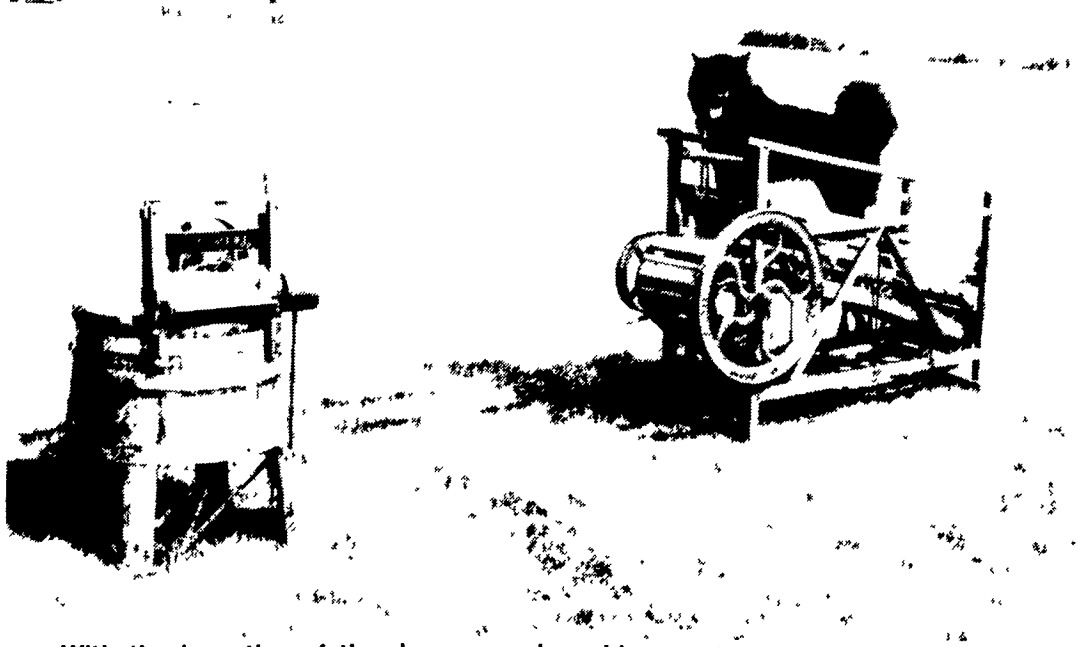
Now, though, the dream to establish an historic ag center for the county and immediate surrounding areas has captured his seemingly boundless energies and enthusiasm.

"We really want to advocate this for youth," Rentzel says, emphasizing the fledgling historic organization's goals.

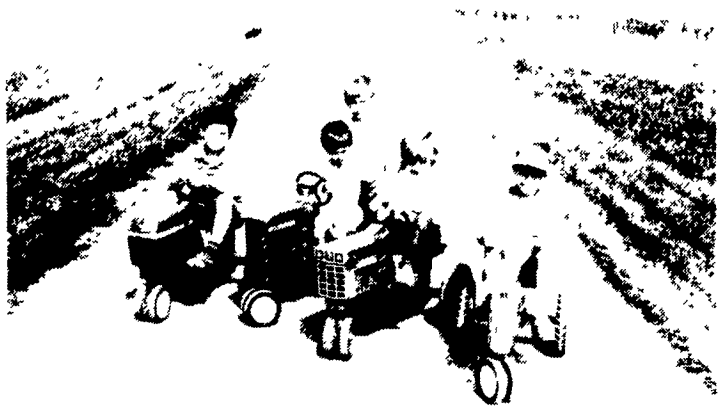
A stated by-law first priority of the Society is "stirring interest in the youth of the area and bringing them into contact with the outgoing generations, whereby past and present skills, crafts and articles can be preserved for all present and future generations."

Other goals are to stir and enrich interest among all groups to preserve past lifestyles, and to preserve and annually display crafts, art, recreation skills equipment, household articles, tools and all types of paraphenalia related to historic everyday life.

Robert and Susan Rentzel sort publicity photos for Olde Tyme Days in their "office," a delightfully restored 1947 Ford school bus.



With the invention of the dog-powered washing machine, man's best friend also became woman's best friend-especially on wash day.



Olde Tyme Days will feature pedal tractor games for the kids, including a rough terrain riding course.

It was a steam machine, something like his prized Rumely Oil Pull Tractor made in LePort, Ind., which first captured Robert Rentzel's interest in ag history.

Since the Society's chartering in December 1984, with that initial handful of 12 founders, the roster has steamrolled to over 400 family and individual memberships.

To further stimulate interest, the Society plans a drawing during Olde Tyme Days for a 1948 Cadillac. The winner will be selected from member enrollments up to Labor Day. Fee is $6 for families, and $4 for individuals.

Now Rentzel has turned his enthusiasm into an invitation to the rural public, offering owners of classic tractors and related farming equipment the opportunity to display their machines at Olde Tyme Days.

"There'll be plenty of room for exhibiting, making it a good place for showing steam engines and early gas tractors," he says. "We'll take entries right up to the last day. And we're especially appealing to people who own York Manufacturing Machinery items, produced right here in the county."

Secured space is planned through fencing of the display area. While there are no entry fees or cash prizes for judging, exhibitors will receive a brass commemorative plaque for their participation.

Small engine exhibitors are being asked to have their machines powering some piece of equipment. Such engines routinely ran vintage "chore" machines, anything from washing machines to home ice cream freezers.

Culture and entertainment heritage presentations planned for the spacious, enclosed stage area range from folk and square dancing to today's popular "breakin." In another area, a working craft shed will allow native craftsmen to practice and display their trades on site.

Old-tyme fashions will have their part in the festival as well, in an open-to-all fashion show set for opening day. Friday attendees who arrive dressed in early-era garb will receive free admission. At 2:30 p.m., they'll be asked to line up stageside for a fashion review before a panel of judges.

Nor is the military forgotten, since three Civil War re-enactment groups, two of them scheduled to camp on-site, are registered to participate.

On the strictly humorous side is the "out-house contest." Owners of these once-familiar little houses are asked to bring them before 11 a.m. on Saturday, August 31. However, those arriving early, before noon on Friday, earn two free show passes. Judging for the best in "out house alley" is in two categories: a "single-holer" and a "double-holer" division.

An owner who enters an outhouse for judging, then decides not to haul the item back home, might consider consigning it to Monday's giant consignment sale.

That's one of the more commercial aspects of the show, along with a large flea market planned with both under-roof and open air spaces available through the weekend.

Those ages six through ten are urged to bring along their pedal tractors to compete in various games and a Baja — or rough terrain — riding course. Other attractions are a petting zoo and horse-drawn hayrides.

Various shows are booked for entertainment throughout the four-day event in the theater area. An Olde Tyme religion musical worship service is scheduled for 10 a.m. Sunday morning, September 1.

Equipment collectors interested in more information about displaying their machines at Olde Tyme Days '85 may call 717-266-7045, 717-235-5003, or 717-766-3007.

Olde Tyme Days '85 is accessible from Exits 10 through 13 of Interstate 83.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"Surpluses" continues to rank right up there as a buzz word of the year.

Farmers across the country sit on piles of three-dollar wheat, and ready bins for promises of a bumper batch of two-dollar corn.

Beef prices are stagnant, pork swings like a seesaw and our poultry-producing neighbor back the road laments that egg prices remain cracked.

Now ponder this problem. Even the government has planted its own unique surplus.

Some years back, unknown Washington wizards proclaimed that the traditional production from the U.S. mints was lacking. Down the road, if America was to remain a mighty leader, the standard paper greenback just wasn't going to cut the mustard.

No, indeedy. What this country needed, besides those long-established standards of a five-cent cigar and chicken-in-every-pot, was a shiny, coin dollar piece of currency.

This would be a dollar that would jingle musically from our pockets. No longer would we have to deal with dirty, crumpled, paper bills that wore out from repeated hand-to-hand combat.

It would even work handily in those monsters known as vending machines-making it infinitely simpler to lose a full buck, rather than just two or three quarters at a clip.

What we got, of course, was the multi-cornered Susan B. Anthony, so similar in shape, size and feel to a quarter coin that Mr. and Mrs. America simply hooted with disbelieving laughter and refused to use them. Only coin collectors showed the slightest interest.

Thus, poor Uncle Sam has been stuck with pockets bulging uncomfortably with some 500 million of the jingling dollars. Another 300 million are reportedly cached away by speculative collectors.

I can't remember when I last received one in change. Can you?

It goes without saying that it not only cost a fortune to design and print the "bomb" buck coins, but it's costing a bundle just to keep them safely stored in Treasury vaults.

Even melting them down, according to reports, would cost something like 97 cents on every dollar, running up the national debt by yet another $485 million.

I, for one, feel a patriotic duty to do my part to help.

Like many farmers, we have grain storage bins. A couple of silos, too.

So in the interest of giving Uncle Sam a hand with this puzzling surplus problem, I'll offer to empty our bins of whatever might be out there stored in them, and take a good-sized pile of those unwanted Susan B. Anthony dollar coins.

I'll even chip in the cost of the hauling.

Just consider it a citizen's contribution to helping solve a national problem.

MEETINGS

to cash flow agriculture

Four meetings for action have been scheduled in the Northeast to express the need for higher farm prices. All farmers, lenders and agribusiness people are urged to attend.

Currently, all of the legislation under serious consideration at the Federal level will serve to drive prices down. We have witnessed five years of decreasing commodity prices. Contrary to the many assertions that this decline will result in economic prosperity, we have seen a dramatic rise in farm foreclosures, a new high in bank failures, uncontrolled debt in all sectors of the economy, record budget deficits which would have been unimaginable a few short years ago and a serious weakening of our rural economy.

It is up to agriculture and related industries to reverse this trend. Come and hear what you can do!

The following meetings have been scheduled in your area:

Crochet a place mat with lovebird design

By Wendie R. Blanchard
Copley News Service

Victorian lace curtains and tablecloths are becoming all the rage for both traditional and contemporary room decors. Adding a little romantic lace from the past creates a light and airy look for bedrooms, baths, kitchens and living areas.

Here is a quick filet design that can be modified for use as a curtain insert or pillow cover. It uses DMC pearl cotton No. 5 in ecru and a No. 1 US crochet hook.

One place mat will use 200 grams of pearl cotton. The finished place mat will measure 30 by 37 inches, but can be made larger by increasing the net border around the edges.

Stitches Used: Chain stitch (ch). Slip stitch (sl st). Single crochet (sc). Double crochet (dc). Picot: Ch 3. 1 sl st in first ch Net st: Dc in dc, ch 2 skip 2 sts, (one space made). Dc in dc, dc in next 2 sts, (one block made).

Always ch 1 instead of first sc or ch 3 instead of first row. End with 1 sl st in third (dc) ch at beg. or round.

Directions: Ch 346 +3 (first dc) +2 (first space).

RFow 1: DC in ninth ch from hook, ch 2, skip 2 ch, dc in next ch, rep from * to * across (115 spaces), turn. Continue to work in blocks and spaces following chart. After completion, work on round as follows: * (Dc, ch 2, dc, ch 2, dc) in corner spaces. (dc, ch 2, dc) in each space across side*, rep from * to * around. Break off thread and fasten.

Border: Work separately: Ch 2 = 3 (first dc). Row 1: Dc in fifth ch from hook, turn. Row 2: Dc in 2 dc, ch 6, turn. Row 3: Dc in 2 dc, turn. Row 4: Dc in 2 dc, 16 dc in loop of 6 ch, sl st in top of end dc of Row 1, turn, sc in next dc* rep from * to * 4 times, sl st in ext dc, ch 3 (count as 1 dc), dc inlast dc, turn. Rep Rows 2-4 for desired length. End row 4 of last fan with 1 sl st in each of the last 2 dc instead of ch 3, dc in last dc.

Sew border around four sides of finished piece. The border can also be used as a simple edging for towels, bed linens and tablecloths.

Soup — a light, summer meal

Chicken corn soup and August go together like peanut butter and jelly. A big pot of aromatic soup bubbling on the back burner is an invitation to dinner that few can resist.

And, while chicken corn soup is certainly delicious, many other soups will fit the bill just as well. If it's a particularly hot, humid day and your family simply refuses to partake of anything hot, no matter how delicious, surprise them with one of the cold soups listed below.

EASY FRENCH ONION SOUP

4 tablespoons butter in 4-quart pot
7 medium onions
3 10½-ounce cans condensed beef broth
3 cups water
Salt and pepper to taste

Melt butter over moderate heat. Slice onions in half lengthwise, then slice in food processor. Put in fry pan and saute until soft. Add beef broth, water, onions, salt and pepper in pot. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and cover to simmer for 10 minutes. Serve hot

Note: If desired, top each serving with a piece of toasted French bread and sprinkle with fresh Parmesan cheese, grated in the food processor. Soup may be set under a preheated broiler for a moment to brown cheese.

CREAM OF CAULIFLOWER SOUP

½ medium cauliflower, divided in flowerets
Salt and pepper
4 tablespoons butter
2 medium potatoes, thinly sliced
4 to 5 cups milk, chicken stock or bouillon or a mixture of both
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Blanch the cauliflower in boiling salted water 2 minutes and drain. In a heavy-bottomed pan, melt 2 tablespoons of the butter, add the potatoes, and press a piece of foil on top. Cover and cook gently, stirring occasionally, for 10 to 15 minutes or until soft. (Note: Do not allow them to brown; the soup should be light in color.) Add 4 cups milk, stock or a mixture of both, and the cauliflower, and salt and pepper. Cover and simmer 15 to 20 minutes or until vegetables are very tender. Puree the soup in a blender or food mill or mash and pass through a sieve. Add more stock or milk if necessary; it should be creamy but not thick. Taste for seasoning and adjust if necessary. To finish, reheat the soup and stir in the parsley. Take from heat and stir in the remaining butter, piece by piece. Serve with croutons. Serves 6.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from the Cooperative Extension Service's Food Preservation Newsletter. The series, available from the Extension Service, contains information on freezing, canning, jams and jellies, pickling and drying.

Home Canned Blueberry Pie Filling

¾ cup and 2 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup ClearJel
2½ teaspoons lemon juice
1⅓ cups water
3⅓ cups blueberries

Blend sugar and ClearJel together in a bowl. Stir this into cold water in saucepan. Bring to a boil, on high, stirring occasionally. Stir in lemon juice. Boil for 1 minute on high. Remove from heat and gently stir in blueberries. Fill into quart Mason jar. Remove large air bubbles with spatula. Adjust level to ½ inch and tighten lid. Process in boiling water canner for 25 minutes. Allow to cool undisturbed for 24 hours. Then simply pour into your favorite pie shell and bake for 55 minutes, or until golden brown at 400°F.

Note: ClearJel is a modified food starch made by the National Starch and Chemical Corporation. It is used by the commercial food industry to replace cornstarch. It doesn't turn cloudy as the product stands in pie fillings.

It doesn't set like cornstarch but thickens smoothly. It can be reheated and heat processed and frozen without loosing thickening ability. Thickening ability is like cornstarch.

It can be found at stores that re-package bulk foods. Be sure you get regular ClearJel because there in also an instant variety that cannot be cooked.

Proper food preparation saves nutrients

MEDIA — Suppose you are preparing a well-balanced evening meal—roast beef, tossed green salad, mashed potatoes, and mixed vegetables. To save time, you peeled and sliced all the salad vegetables in the morning before leaving for work. You removed the outer leaves on the lettuce and soaked the remaining leaves in iced water to retain crispness. You also took the roast out of the freezer in the morning and put it on the counter to thaw.

That evening you peeled and boiled the potatoes. After thawing the frozen mixed vegetables, you boiled and drained them in preparation for serving. The scene is complete. Just as your family was clamoring for dinner, you got everything on the table—everything, that is, except all the important nutrients that were washed, peeled, soaked, thawed, and boiled away as you prepared dinner, says Greta C. Vairo, Extension home economist.

You might want to consider how you can serve more nutritious meals without even changing your meal planning. Extension nutritionists from Penn State say you can retain vital nutrients, vitamins and minerals by:

- scrubbing (not peeling) vegetables
- Slicing vegetables just before serving
- not soaking vegetables in water
- cooking potatoes in the skin: just scrubbing them prior to boiling
- cooking frozen vegetables without first thawing them
- steaming vegetables (not just boiling them)
- saving vegetable water and using it as a stock in soups and gravies

Include these methods in your meal preparation routine and guarantee your family well balanced meals from start to finish.

ANSWER - Mrs. Mary Sweigard, Halifax, requested recipes for dainty, delicate cookies suitable for serving at a reception with a punch bowl Thanks go to Mrs. Judy Stayman, Chambersburg, for her Cream Wafers recipe and to Mrs. Barbara King for her Sugar Plum Puffs recipe

Cream Wafers

2 cups flour
1 cup softened butter
⅓ cup whipping cream
Sugar

Mix flour, butter and whipping cream. Cover and refrigerate at least one hour. Heat oven to 375°F. Roll about ⅓ of the dough at a time 1/8 inch thick on floured, cloth-covered board (Keep remaining dough refrigerated until ready to roll). Cut into 1½-inch rounds.

Transfer rounds with metal spatula to piece of waxed paper that is heavily covered with sugar; turn to coat each round Place about one inch apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Prick each round with fork about 4 times. Bake just until set but not brown, 7 to 9 minutes. Cool. Just before serving, put cookies together in pairs with Creamy Filling

Store in tightly covered container with wax paper between layers. Can be made 3 weeks ahead of time.

Variations: Instead of M & M's try colored sprinkles, chocolate bits, butterscotch bits, gum drops, cinnamon hearts, maple flavoring. Can be tinted with food coloring

Excess proteins are stored as fat

MEDIA — What builds bodies? Proteins do! Americans are big on proteins and big on bodies—sometimes too big.

Proteins found in meats, eggs, nuts, be[illegible] and other foods are a necessa[illegible]art of our daily diet. They help build and repair tissues. They help form antibodies to fight infections and develop parts of enzymes and hormones. But excess proteins are simply used as energy or stored as fat.

"Too much protein in our diet adds unnecessary calories and are an unnecessary expense," says Extension home economist Greta C. Vairo. "Not only that, eating too much protein-rich food can mean not eating enough from the other food groups. A healthy diet is one that is well balanced."

How much protein is enough? Vairo offers this guide. An adult woman should have about 44 grams of protein a day. Men need only slightly more-56 grams. Children need less protein to meet their average allowance of 23 to 34 grams a day, or nearly half the amount listed here. Each of these servings is listed by the approximate amount of protein it supplies to your daily diet.

- One three-ounce serving of cooked, lean meat and poultry such as beef, chicken, ham, liver, pork, turkey and veal supplies 20 to 26 grams of protein.
- One four-ounce serving of cooked fresh fish, or a three-quarter cup serving of cottage cheese also supples 20 to 26 grams.
- These foods supply nine to 14 grams of protein: one cup cooked dry beans, two ounces of Swiss or cheddar cheese, two ounces of cooked or canned salmon, tuna, sardines, shrimp, or oysters.
- These foods supply six to eight grams: one cup of skimmed, two percent or whole milk, one cup of yogurt, one large egg, one cup of soup made with milk, or two tablespoons of peanut butter.

Small amounts of proteins exist in many other foods as well. Vegetables, pastas, cereals, and even cookies have some. So vary your protein foods and remember, enough is enough. Too much simply makes more of you.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

Courageous Kids Go To School

Each year a new crop of courageous kids ventures forth into foreign territory. They leave home to begin kindergarten or first grade.

Most children adjust to school with a minimum of difficulty. Sometimes, however, children are anxious and fearful about going to school and this can be very difficult for parents.

Parents need to understand that there are certain tasks that children need to master at each stage of development in order for them to go on to the next stage successfully. Each period of life brings changes and its own challenges and stresses.

Changes happen in infancy when a baby must learn to trust and in young adulthood when a person must decide on career goals and lifestyles. Five or six-year-olds must cope with going to school for the very first time. In order to cope with this change, children must have mastered other tasks that have come before.

First, they must make the shift from dependency on parents and the home to dependency upon peers and other adults. They need to let other people meet many of their needs. How easily this task is mastered depends a great deal on how secure and trusting early relationships have been and how parents feel about their child leaving home to go to school.

The second task children entering school must master is how to manage separation anxiety. Most children do this with little distress. For some, however, the threat of loss of mother or father is very frightening. Separation anxiety can be a very painful experience for some children. It can also be a baffling experience for parents who can see no logical reason for it.

Finally, school-age children must learn to accept the authority of other adults, namely the teacher, principal and other school personnel. This acceptance is easier if children have learned to trust adults in early relationships.

These are the jobs of your young children. If early stages of development have gone relatively well, the beginning of school should not be too traumatic.

National Brands Or Private-Label Brands?

When you go to the supermarket, do you sometimes feel a little confused? There are so many different types of items to choose from, and then so many different brands of each item. The easy way out is to always buy the same brand, but it may not necessarily be the best buy. In many supermarkets, lesser-known brands are sold at substantial savings.

The USDA recently did a survey that showed that on the average, a national brand was priced about 35 percent higher than a similar private label. The biggest savings were for dog food, but baby powder, dairy products and dry groceries also ran quite a bit cheaper for independent labels. Frozen foods showed the smallest price difference between national and private companies.

Recently the stronger economy and a rise in consumer incomes has meant declining popularity for generics and private label products, but they should be considered when making your shopping decisions.

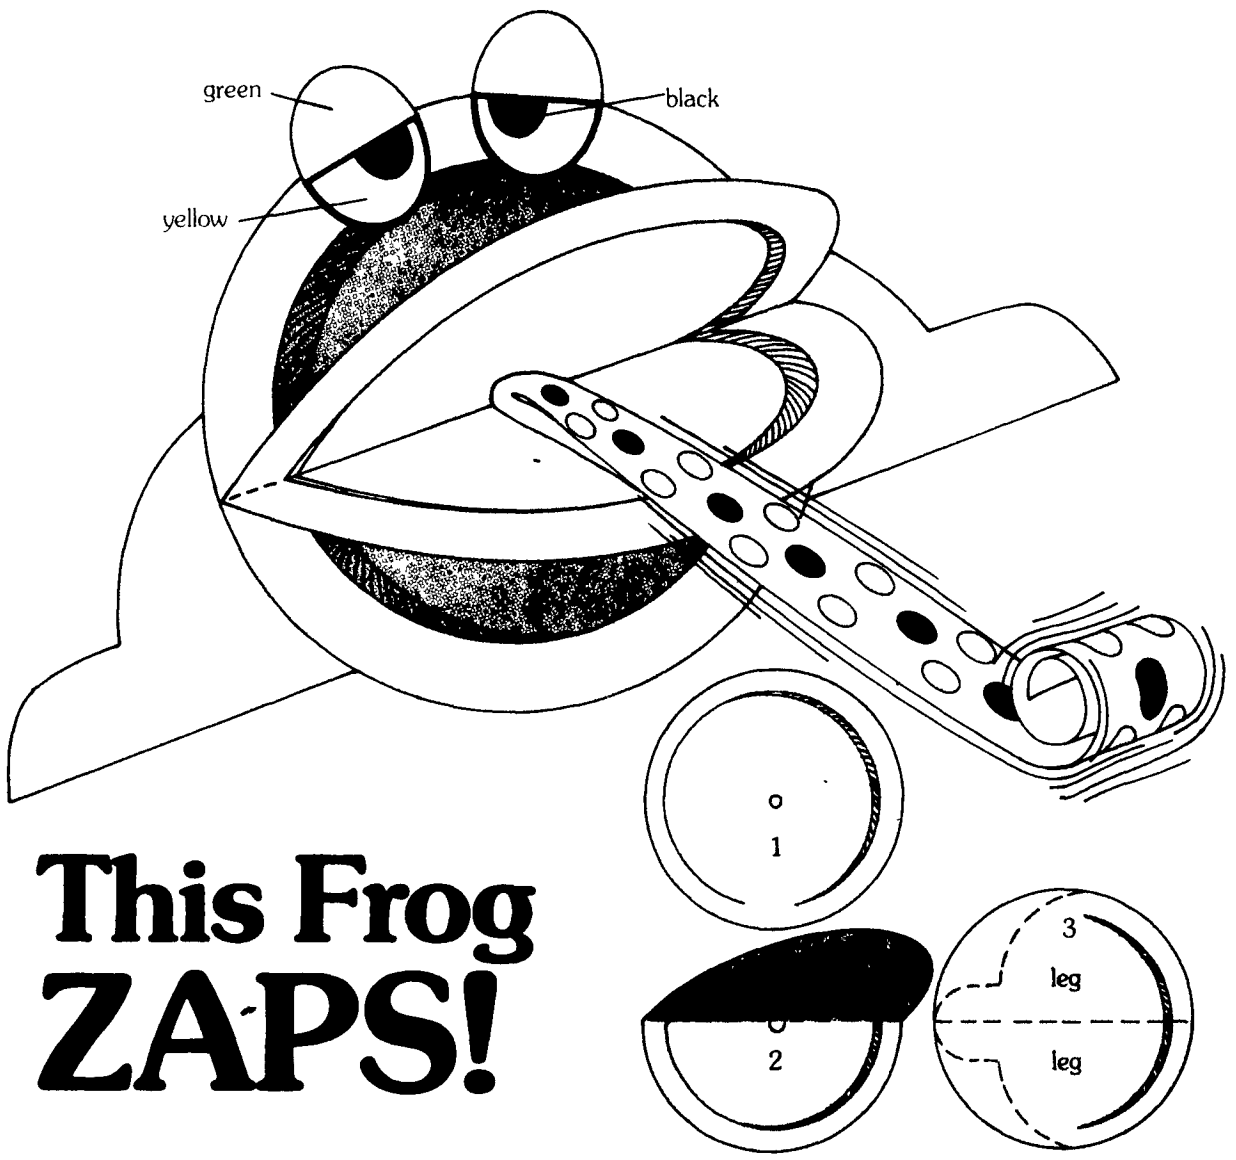
Easy-to-make 'Big Zapper' will delight your friends



Idea by Donna Miller, Drawing by Bob Jackson

Surprise your friends with a frog that has a real zapper of a tongue! To make the Big Zapper, you'll need three paper plates; a blow-out (you can buy one at a store that sells party favors); plain white paper; yellow, black, and green crayons or felt-tipped markers; glue; and tape. Now follow these directions:

1. Use green paper plates or color the front of white ones with a green marker or crayon.

2. Cut a half-inch hole in the center of Plates 1 and 2. Make the holes big enough for the mouthpiece of the blow-out to fit through.

3. Fold Plate 2 in half to make a mouth. Tape or glue the mouth to Plate 1 as shown in the picture.

4. Cut two eyes out of paper and color them as shown. Glue the eyes to the frog's head.

5. Cut legs out of Plate 3. Tape or glue the legs to the frog's body.

6. Put the mouthpiece of the blow-out through the holes and tape it in place. Now put the Big Zapper's tongue to work!

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Generally speaking, I would say that I prefer to get a letter rather than a phone call. The letter can be reread in my leisure time and mulled over again and again.

I am a great "saver" and I probably have stored somewhere every letter that I ever received. The problem is to know where they are stored. I'd like to get my hands on the box of [illegible] them in my attic, I'll give them to the writers as now they would mean more to them than to me. I did share some with the parents of a son who was killed in the war. They were quite appreciative

Half of my children write to me and the other three use the phone. It is an instrument of immediate gratification. But sometimes it is difficult to recall what was said and some of the details of the conversation are lost. Oh, I do enjoy hearing their voices, but it isn't the same as a letter

In a letter the author has time to choose the right word and is not pressured into an instant answer Some things take a lot of consideration before a problem is solved

It is a happy day when the mailbox yields personal letters from family and not simply advertisements. We are spoiled by the ease of using the telephone We tell ourselves that we are saving time. Time to do what?

Rereading old letters is like reading an old diary. It certainly jars the memory and we can relive those years that have gone by Maybe someday someone else will destroy my bundles of letters but I don't think that I could do it. They are a treasured part of my past.

Farmers get 27 percent of food dollar

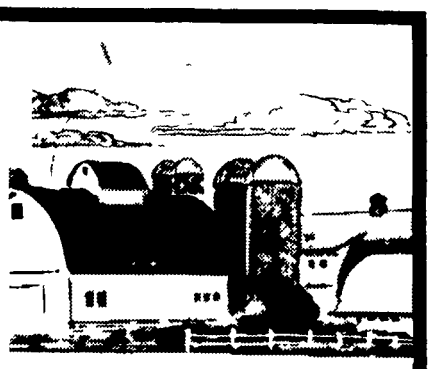
PARK RIDGE, Ill – A dollar spent on food at the supermarket or restaurant in 1984 provided only 27 cents to the American farmer, reported the American Farm Bureau Federation. The remaining 73 cents covered other marketing costs – from packaging to profit. The information appears in a newly released Farm Bureau brochure titled "Who Gets Your Food Dollar?"

For the past several years, labor costs associated with the preparation, shipping and marketing of food have exceeded the actual cost of the food itself. Currently, labor costs represent 33 percent of the consumer price of food. Other major costs include. packaging at eight percent; transportation, five percent; before-tax profits, five percent; rent and depreciation, four percent; energy costs, four percent and advertising two and one-half percent.

The Farm Bureau figures also show that U.S. consumers pay some of the lowest prices for food found anywhere in the world. A sirloin steak which costs $2.93 per pound in Washington, D.C. sells for $14.12 at food stores in Japan and $5.35 in London. Wheat flour costs American cosumers 21 cents a pound, but shoppers in France must spend 62 cents, while the cost in Sweden is 30 cents a pound. Japanese shoppers pay 81 cents for a quart of milk which costs 71 cents in Canada but only 44 cents in the United States.

The U.S. farm share of the consumer food dollar varies a great deal from one product to another. Dairy farmers receive 52 percent of price paid for milk, while wheat farmers earn nine and one-half percent of the value of a loaf of bread. Tomato growers receive nine percent of the sale price of a can of tomatoes and orange growers receive 33 percent of cost of an orange.

Have You Purchased Your SILAGE and HIGH MOISTURE CORN ADDITIVES or PRESERVATIVES For The coming Season?



With the large selection of products available to you today, deciding which way to turn brings important questions to be answered .

? ? The Questions ? ?

1 WHAT AM I GOING TO USE ON MY SILAGE THIS YEAR?
A An Enzyme Based Product?
B A Yeast Preparation?
C A Urea Product?
D A Molasses Based Product?
E A Cultured Additive?

2 WHAT WILL TOTAL COST OF THE PREPARATION BE?
A Cost Per Ton!
B Coverage Per Ton!
C Total Return Vs Dollar Investment!

3 HOW WILL I APPLY THE PRODUCT I CHOOSE?
A Easy Application!
B Requires Special Aplicator!
C Must Be Applied By Hand!

Now Let us give you answers to the above questions in relationship to our product ALFA-ZYME!

!! The Answers !!

1 ALFA ZYME is a fermented enzyme product injected onto a fine grade alfalfa (a top grade carrier of enzymes) We have the ORIGINAL ENZYMES PRODUCT!

2 The COST of ALFA ZYME Vs return for your dollar is fantastic While other products use minimal lbs per ton ALFA ZYME requires 100 Lbs for every 3 tons of silage or high moisture corn A 120 ton silo takes 80 bags or 2 tons of ALFA ZYME

3 We realize we might not have the easiest product to apply, but after application we have that "SOMETHING SPECIAL" that makes better silage and corn! (No, we don't have an "easy applicator" but then again if your results are not satisfactory with "easily applied" products all you end up with is a useless "easy applicator!")

We hope the above information has captured your attention Now we have a few questions of our own. .

1 Do you realize the product you choose will determine the outcome of your silage up to the next filling season? You can change your feeding program often, but the product you apply to your silage or corn must work the coming winter, spring and summer months!

2 Have you already purchased a product because of an early discount or "special deal"? If so, try this test fill ½ your silo with the other product and then add ALFA-ZYME to the remainder Make 1985 the year you make the test!

IN SUMMARY...

Making BETTER SILAGE and HIGHER MOISTURE CORN is our main business. And, ALFA-ZYME has been proven on farms like yours in PA, MD, VA, and W. VA.

NOW...THE FINAL QUESTION!...
Where can I purchase ALFA-ZYME?...Ask your feed dealer, farm store operator, call or write:

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Let's Have An Ice Cream Sundae Party!

A delicious way to end a Labor Day picnic or gathering is with ice cream sundaes. Make several different sauces, and have bowls of fresh fruit, nuts, cherries and whipped cream or topping for your guests to create their own sundae spectaculars! Homemade ice cream would make the dessert even more special.

Homemade sauces are easy and fast to make in your microwave. They cost less than ready made, and taste delicious. Sauces cook quickly without scorching and need much less stirring than when made on a range burner. If you've never made any sauces in your microwave, try one of these ice cream toppers to see how easy they are!

A four-or eight-cup measure is the easiest "pot" in which to cook sauces in your microwave. The handle stays cool and makes it easy to remove for stirring. A wooden spoon can be left in the sauce during cooking if you like. If the sauce must boil in the microwave, use a large container so it won't boil over.

Purchased sauces can be heated right in their jars. Remove the metal lids, heat on high power, stirring several times. Jams and jellies make good ice cream toppers too. Remove the metal lid and heat the jam in the jar or in a microsafe serving dish. Add a little water if you want a thinner sauce.

Do not heat marshmallow cream in the microwave, unless you need a good laugh. It just puffs up! Thin with a little water if you want it thinner for sundaes.

When figuring how much sauce to make, allow about ¼ cup sauce for each serving.

Hot Fudge Sauce

1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
4 tablespoons margarine or butter
1 small (5.3-ounce) can evaporated milk, about 7/8 cup
½ teaspoon vanilla

1. Put sugar and cocoa in a four-cup measure and put the margarine on top. Cook on high for 1½ minutes until the margarine melts. Stir.
2. Stir in milk. Cook on high for 2 minutes, then stir.
3. Cook on high for 1½ minutes longer. Sauce should boil for about 1 minute.
4. Stir in vanilla. Serve warm. This keeps well refrigerated. Reheat on high for 2-3 minutes, stirring several times. Makes 1½ cups.

Honey Nut Fudge

½ cup honey
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
⅓ cup unsweetened cocoa
Dash salt
¼ cup chopped nuts

1. Put honey and butter or margarine in a two-cup measure. Cook on high for 1 minute, stir. The butter should be melted and the honey hot.
2. Stir in cocoa and salt until smooth, then stir in nuts.
3. Serve warm, as this sauce is quite firm when cold. Makes 1 cup.

Butterscotch Sauce

⅔ cup white corn syrup
1 cup brown sugar
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon salt
1 small (5.3 ounce) can evaporated milk, about 7/8 cup

1. Combine corn syrup, butter and salt in a four-cup measure. Cook on high for 2 minutes until the mixture is hot. Stir to finish melting the butter and blend ingredients.
2. Cook on high for 2 minutes, syrup should be boiling hard. Remove and stir, mixture should be smooth and the consistency of thick syrup.
3. Cool for 15-20 minutes, stir occasionally to help speed cooling. Stir in evaporated milk until smooth. (Milk may curdle or separate if the syrup is too hot when the milk is added). Serve warm over ice cream or cake. To reheat, use high for 1-2 minutes, stir once. Makes about 2 cups.

Peach Sauce

1 28-ounce can sliced peaches
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup water
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

1. Drain peach juice into a four-cup measure, and put peaches in a two-quart bowl or casserole. You should have about one cup juice, add water to make 1 cup if necessary.
2. Combine sugar, salt, cornstarch and stir into ¼ cup water to dissolve. Stir into juice, add brandy if desired.
3. Cook on high for two minutes, stir. Cook for 2-3 minutes longer on high, stirring once, until the sauce boils hard and is clear and thick. Stir in butter and nutmeg, and pour over the peach slices. Cook for 2 minutes on high, stirring once to warm peaches. Serve warm over ice cream or cake. Makes 4 cups.

NOTE: The times above are for ovens with 600-700 watts of power. If you oven has 500-600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400-500 W, add 20 seconds to each minute.

Jay Reiff is Lancaster County's Outstanding 4-H'er

Jay Reiff, Lititz, stands at the podium after being selected the Lancaster County Outstanding 4-H'er for 1985.

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

LANCASTER — Lancaster County's 4-H Fair held last week at the Farm and Home Center was the high point of this summer's program as over 1,000 projects were displayed and judged. For the youngsters enrolled in 4-H programs throughout the county it was a day of achievement to show the world what they had learned though hours of work.

Jay Reiff, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Reiff, Hammer Creek Road, Lititz, was named the county's Outstanding 4-H'er during the evening's achievement program, making him one of a select few honored in that way over the last few years.

Finalists in the contest included Dan Forry, a member of the Mountville Community Club, and Deb Bentrem, a member of the Elizabethtown Pig and Rabbit Club, the Bainbridge Sewing Club, Mount Joy Community and Stevens Hill Cake Decorating Club.

A senior at Lancaster Mennonite High School, Reiff is a member of the Red Rose Beef Club where he has a cow-calf project, and the Elm Penryn Club where he took a leadership project in photography.

A larger group of 4-H'ers was selected to the 4-H Honor Roll based on their participation in county and state activities. Named to the senior honor roll were: Jay Reiff, Lititz, Deb Bentrem, Elizabethtown; Tiffany Rohrer, Nottingham; Stacy Nestleroth, Manheim; and Denise Haldeman, Manheim

Those chosen for the junior honor roll were: Beth Nestleroth, Manheim; Heather Haldeman, Manheim; Melissa Harris, Mastersonville; and Lisa Long, Manheim. Those selected for the honor roll will have their names inscribed on a permanent plaque in the lobby of the Farm and Home Center and will receive a 4-H jacket.

In a talent contest featuring seven acts which had cleared an earlier preliminary contest, Lara Bair, Mountville 4-H Club, was named the top winner with her piano solo "Memory" from the Broadway musical "Cats." Second place went to Stacey Goss, Penn Willow 4-H Club, who played Menuet al' Antique by Paderewski, and third place went to Karen Myers, Penn Manor 4-H Club, who did a humorous skit.

Farm Women Society #19 vice president Lavina Musser presented two $50 Savings Bonds from that Society, one to Kerry Freese, Nottingham, for her achievement in foods, and one to Renee Haldeman, Manheim, for her achievement in clothing.

Nine 4-H'ers received scholarships worth $100 each from the Lancaster County Bankers Association. They were: Michelle Dean, Strasburg; Renee Haldeman, Manheim; Gary Hoffer, Manheim; Sherry Goss, Pequea; Heather Johnson, Mastersonville; Jan Waltz, Manheim; Don Welk, Peach Bottom; Esther Wittle, Mastersonville; and Greg Musser, Elizabethtown.

In addition to those honored during the achievement program, 126 4-H'ers received gold ribbons in the judging, signifying perfection in their project work. To get a gold ribbon, they must score at least 98 out of 100 points.

In a new category, nearly 100 4-H'ers filled out "baby blue forms" as records of their 4-H year, and these, along with others who won special awards and state awards winners participated in a candlelight ceremony to climax the evening.

The top winners in the annual 4-H talent program were, from left, Lara Bair, first, Mountville 4-H Club; Karen Myers (and friend) second, Penn Manor 4-H Club; and Stacey Goss, third, Penn Willow 4-H Club.

For Reiff, who has been a 4-H'er for 10 years, being named Outstanding 4-H'er is "a nice way to close out my 4-H work. It is really thrilling to me." Reiff was on the first place meats judging team and will travel to the American Royal in Kansas City for national competition. He was also a member of the junior livestock team which won the state competition in 1982.

Four 4-H'ers were named to the junior honor roll this week for their outstanding 4-H activities. They are from left: Beth Nes...h, Manheim; Lisa Long, Manheim; and Heather Haldeman, Manheim. Absent from photo is Melissa Harris, Mastersonville.

Reiff says, "There were a lot of rewarding 4-H experiences." Among those which meant the most to him were participating in the 4-H exchange to North Carolina. "We met a lot of interesting people and learned how people live in other places. It was a unique experience."

Participating in Capitol Days was also interesting because 4-H'ers got to see how state government functions and Reiff adds, "I got to express my concerns with my local representative."

More importantly, Reiff continues, "4-H helped me set goals in my life and decide about the future. It got me interested in agriculture." Reiff hails from a poultry, beef, corn and soybean farm, and says he'd like to work in international agriculture. He plans to major in animal science and perhaps work in the third world before returning to study veterinary medicine. He maintains a strong interest in journalism as well.

Why did he join 4-H? Reiff says he had three older sisters and an uncle who was a 4-H'er so, "it was just natural." However, he said he quickly learned the benefits and wanted to remain a member

One of his goals as Outstanding 4-H'er is "to encourage younger members to remain in 4-H." Reiff says 4-H'ers often get to the stage after one or two years where they want to quit. He adds. "I will tell them to stay in until they are teenagers and can reap the benefits and find out how broad 4-H really is."

Rabbit Rascals

The Rabbit Rascals 4-H Club held its annual roundup on July 27. Crissy Hoskins won best-in-show with a Rex.

Other winners were: Crissy Hoskins, best and best opposite Rex; Hillary Fakey, best New Zealand; Jody Orwig, best opposite New Zealand; and Ben Lecrone, best and best opposite Mini-Lop.

Other winners were Jason Sprenkle, best and best opposite Satin; Jody Orwig, best French Lop; Melissa Trostle, best meat class; and Eric Sprenkle, best mixed

Contest offers wild horse, burro for adoption

ALEXANDRIA, Va — A wild horse from Wyoming and a wild burro from Arizona are offered free in a contest to two qualified entrants who explain in 25 words or less why they want the animals, announced the U S. Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management.

Persons may enter the contest for either the burro or the horse by submitting their legibly written reasons why they want such an animal to: Adopt-A-Horse and Burro, P.O. Box 22357, Alexandria, Virginia 22304. The entries must be received by Sept., 18 and should include the entrant's address and telephone number. The two winners will be selected by a drawing.

The contest is being held in conjunction with. Wild Horse and Burro Days at the Northeast Adoption Center in Lewisberry, Sept. 27 through 29. The Wild Horse and Burro Days festival commemorates the contribution these animals have made to our American heritage. It draws attention to their current problem of overpopulation and depleted food supplies on the western public rangelands by making excess animals available to the public through an adoption event

The contest is open to anyone who has adequate facilities, means of transportation, has not violated humane laws, and will provide food, water and care for an animal. Parents or legal guardians can sign the necessary papers if children win the contest.

This is the first such contest in the country The idea to hold the contest came when several people in Wisconsin wanted to help the animals, but did not have adequate facilities to actually take a wild horse or burro home. Instead, they donated money to pay the fees for people who could provide proper care.

The fees are normally $125 per horse and $75 per burro. The only restrictions they placed on the recipients of the animals is that the horse be named Second Chance and the burro be dubbed Last Chance.

Jones said special shipments of more than 100 wild horses and 75 wild burros are being brought to the regional center for Wild Horse and Burro Days. He expects the best selection of young animals the Center has offered since it opened three years ago. Besides the animals, which people may adopt and take home, former adopters will show their trained but once wild horses and burros to demonstrate their capabilities which range from pleasure riding to plowing fields.

Films will show how modern-day cowboys round up the animals. Entertainment includes music from a steam calliope, guitar picking, and gospel singers Pennsylvania crafts and foods like turtle soup and funnel cakes will be for sale, while samples from a pork cook-off sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will be offered free.

A highlight of these activities will be the awarding of the horse and burro to the contest winners, scheduled for Friday morning Winners will be notified in advance and must be present to receive the animals and transport them home

For more information about the contest or the Adopt-A-Horst and Burro Program call the Bureau of Land Management at (703) 274-0190

Meats, vegetables most susceptible when thawed accidentally

YORK — If your freezer stops, accidentally thawed meats, poultry, fish, vegetables, and mixed dishes should be your first concern says Extension home economist Joan Lamberson. These foods have a far greater risk of causing food-borne illness when accidentally thawed than do fruits and baked goods.

Two factors–temperature of the product and how long it has been thawing--are important in determining whether accidentally thawed meat, fish and poultry are safe to eat. Food that registers 40°F. or below is generally considered safe. If the food contains ice crystals it is probably safe for cooking or refreezing. But don't expect the food to possess the quality it had before thawing. If you do refreeze the food, try to use it fairly soon.

If the food has an off-odor before or during cooking, spoilage has probably set in. Spoilage bacteria can grow at a temperature of 40°F, but the rate of growth is low. It is when foods are at a temperature above 40°F. for a few hours that the risk of poisoning sets in. Some bacteria double in numbers every 15 to 30 minutes in warmer temperataures.

The two types of bacteria responsible for most food-borne illness are Salmonellae and Staphlococcus aureaus. Salmonellae can be destroyed by cooking food to an internal temperature of 165°F. However, toxins or poisons produced by Staphlococcus aureus are not destroyed by heat.

To be on the safe side, keep perishable food and especially thawed, frozen foods below 40°F. to prevent bacterial growth and potential food spoilage or food-borne illness.

Pesticide poisoning mimics flu symptoms

CREAMERY

Estimates from a study on the number of pesticide-related illnesses among American farmer's may be inflated because symptoms of pesticide poisonings mimic the symptoms of common disorders, says a Penn State Extension pesticides specialist.

"The study from the World Resources Institute doesn't offer enough hard facts to. justify a high estimate, Winard Hock says. "But if there's one case of pesticide poisoning, that's one too many "

The Institute's study, titled "Field Duty U S Farmworkers and Pesticide Safety," quoted an estimate of 313,000 pesticide-related illnesses from a report by the University of California's School of Medicine. The study has attracted considerable attention since an incident of pesticide contamination of California Watermelons in June caused illness in 300 people.

The major flaw in the study's estimate, Hock says, was pesticide poisoning identification. "Unless pesticide usage is specified by a patient, a physician won't diagnose an illness as pesticide poisoning," he says. "Physicians aren't as familar with this type of poisoning as they are with other common illnesses like the flu, heat strokes, colds or stomach pains."

Pesticide poisoning symptoms (headaches, nausea, dizziness, muscle twitching and excessive perspiration) are common to flu and heat stroke illnesses, Hock adds "In most cases, the pesticide sickness used in the survey were probably the result of a multiple effect of pesticides and other things," he says

The farmer could have eaten something bad, stayed out in the heat too long, or caught a cold or the flu "

Lancaster Grange plans auction

LANCASTER – Lancaster County Pomona Grange will hold an auction to benefit Pennsylvania tornado victims.

The Grange has learned that much of the damage from the tornado is not covered by insurance. Many folks have suffered damage which defies the imagination; families will be financially ruined if others don't pitch in and help.

The money we raise will be gratefully appreciated by those families to buy materials to get a fresh start. The Grange has members in these localities and the State Grange will help by identifying those in desperate need, so the funds can be distributed to those truly in need.

The auction will be held at the Quarryville Fair Grounds Oct. 5, 9:30 a.m. Donations are needed to make the drive a success. Items also will be accepted on consignment at reasonable rates, no red tag items.

Watch the newspaper for additional information. The local Grange's have contact persons to arrange for your donation or consignment items. Any saleable item will be accepted except poultry equipment.

Bring or send your surplus, tractors, wagons, antiques, house and garden supplies and we will sell it.

Contact the following person in your area: Fulton Grange-J. Everett Kreider, Auctioneer 786-1545; Pequea Valley Grange-Robert Coates 442-4134 or 291-1542; Elizabethtown Grange-Katie Oldweiler 652-5282.

Lancaster Co. fair season begins at E-town

ELIZABETHTOWN — Six days of family fun and entertainment await visitors to the 12th annual Elizabethtown Fair, which once again kicks off Lancaster County's farm fair season.

A pre-Labor Day treat, the fair runs August 26-31 at the East High Street fairgrounds. Hours are 10 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Opening day on Monday, Aug. 26, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. is the time for bringing in prized livestock, homegrown products and handcrafted goods. The swine show is scheduled for 6 p.m. on opening day.

Tuesday, Aug. 27, is Merchant's Day. After day-long judging, domestic exhibits open to the public at 5 p.m. in the Brethren in Christ fellowship hall, adjacent to the fairgrounds. The youth sheep show and rabbit show are scheduled for 11 a.m. A prize-winning baked goods sale is slated for 9 p.m.

A beef show at 5 p.m. and dairy goat show at 8 p.m. are the featured events on Wednesday, Aug. 28, Senior Citizen's Day at the fair.

On Thursday, Aug. 29, Farmer's Day, the dairy show is scheduled for 11 a.m. Then, in the evening, are the two events which give Farmer's Day its meaning--the Supreme Champion event, when the best of show dairy, beef, youth sheep and swine winners compete for top honors, followed by the Sale of Champions.

Friday, Aug. 30, is Fair Appreciation Day, featuring the open sheep show, slated for 4 p.m. An arts and crafts auction, featuring a drawing of the U.S. Post Office in Elizabethtown by Pat Drybred, will be held at 6 p.m. Then at 7 p.m., the garden tractors begin pulling at the nearby Elizabethtown Area High School track.

Family Day on Saturday, Aug. 31, wraps up the fair in high style with the second annual horse show at 11 a.m.; the pet show at 12:30 p.m., and the ever-popular arm wrestling contest at 2 p.m. at East High Elementary School, adjacent to the fairgrounds.

The Dairy Business

By Newton Bair

DAIRYING IN TRANSITION

Dairying is not alone in this toughest of all transitional periods. All of agriculture is sharing the triumphs and heartbreaks of changing times. The traumatic change is from a production-oriented environment to a strictly business [illegible] there.

Oh, yes, we still have lots of great events that promise greater boosts in production. Growth hormones that will automatically increase production per cow 10 percent or more. New wheat varieties that have already nearly doubled per-acre yields. Corn yields topping 200 bushels. Genetic engineering that is beyond our wildest imagination. All of which adds fuel to an already raging fire of over-production in farm produce.

While it is so easy to get excited about all these great advances in technology, many of us forget that it is also going to take a new and different kind of attitude to deal with the changes. And it isn't always easy to change from strictly production to strictly business.

Now, it sometimes seems that there is too much harping about pencil-pushing and business-oriented decision making. Why not let us get on with the growing of crops and making of more milk, beef, and turnips? Isn't that what farming is all about anyway? These are the things that make farming interesting and attractive. It's no use worrying about making money — there never has been a lot to be made in farming anyway. We farm for the love of the land, love of good cattle and, all too often, the love of riding 150 horses at once. Grandpa farmed the same land with six or eight horses that cost a small fraction of what one of our iron monsters costs. And therein lies the rub.

BUSINESS TERMINOLOGY

Terms like cash-flow, profit-and-loss, financial statements, and budget analysis are only regarded as vague and abstract terms, used only when the banker is looking over his shoulder. The rest of the time, they are shoved to the back of the drawer in the kitchen cabinet with the monthly bills, and other stuff that is of interest only to the IRS.

The biggest change in agriculture is the one that will force cash-flow and all those other business tools right out on top of the desk and give them top priority in our attitudes. They must be the first tools used by today's farmer, before any decision to produce can be faced. We are faced with a world already too full of milk, wheat, beans and beef. They are all needed badly by millions of hungry people, but can only be produced at a price. And the price is a lot more than our time and sweat. It requires capital investment, or in other words money, and money requires a special set of tools to manage it.

Some of the wisest production decisions we can make might be the ones to not produce. Should we buy or rent more land? Can a new tractor pay for itself? Will a new silo write the interest checks for a new loan? How much of last year's bank loan will have to be re-scheduled with a new loan, with more interest to pay? These questions often lead to negative answers, but it is better to accept the negative on paper, than to face the real loss after bad decisions are made.

The farmer who will stay in the business the next ten years is the one who is willing to make changes where necessary. A farm office, equipped with a proper filing and record system is a necessity. A family member must be willing to give ample time and effort to filing and recording. But most of all, the farm manager must be able to use those business tools mentioned above to make sound decisions, both before and after the fact.

Professional accountants, lenders, economists, and farm advisors will be available in profusion. Make sure that you are listening to those with wide vision and experience, and who do not have a personal axe to grind. Decisions should be made only after thoroughly researching the economics, and not in the heat of a sales pitch to act now, or be too late.

Proven Performers

Patz hook-and-eye links have proven their value over the years. The forged steel links provide strength and durability. The Patz link design provides chain flexibility that takes sprocket, corners and elevations smoothly for layout flexibility and minimum wear.

Choose the Model 400 (blue) link with more than 2 pounds of steel, or choose the thicker XH (red) link for longer pulls and heavier loads.

Progression forging builds extra strength into hook-and-eye link contact points. Final heat treating increases hardness, strength and wear resistance. Patz links withstand corrosion for long chain life.

Computers can help build good relations with bankers

NEW HOLLAND, PA – Suppose there are two farms, side by side, with similar operations. But one farmer keeps more accurate records. If the money situation is tight, who'll get the financing?

The farmer with the most complete records, of course!

That's the scenario described by Dave Wolf, computer products manager, Sperry New Holland. "Accurate records are a definite advantage in securing financing, especially in recent years," says Wolf.

Many farmers are turning to microcomputers as a tool to provide financial records. And many bankers are supporting the move.

William Elder, president of North Point Agricultural Resources Inc., is a prime example of a banker who encouraged computerized records.

Elder initiated computerized recordkeeping for farmers as Executive Vice President of a bank in Sullivan, Ill. He's now started a farm commodity sales management company.

"We initiated computerized recordkeeping at a time when the business of agriculture was becoming complex. The need for improved recordkeeping by farmers was very apparent," says Elder. "We thought the recordkeeping focus needed to be changed. It's no longer necessary to keep records only for the tax man. The need is really much broader."

Wolf agrees. "Twenty-five years ago, why did farmers need financial records? For taxes. Now they really need records for their banker–budgeting, cash flow, etc. And records help them do a better job of managing. Eventually, that's the most important reason."

Elder says, "The greatest benefit from records is management–the improved ability of the farmer to receive management information from his records. Computers provide the ability to organize and manage records in a form that assists this management process."

And improved recordkeeping for more profitable management would serve as a big advantage for many computerized farmers.

"One of the biggest problems in agriculture today is the lack of information producers have to use in making adjustments in their operation," says Robert Boysen, marketing director for Norwest Corporation's Agribusiness Group, Minneapolis, Minn.

"And the banks' big problem is usually the lack of accurate and complete information from the producer which is necessary to make a loan," Boysen explains. "In general, farmers now using computers saw the need for accurate records sooner than others. Over the years, they've been able to build a base of information to work from with their lender."

Computerized records have helped Mark Taylor, a Portland, Ind. grain and hog farmer. However, he's quick to point out that he keeps records not only for his banker, but also for himself.

"My business has grown so rapidly that the computer is also a means of helping me know where I stand," according to Taylor. He purchased a Sperry New Holland AG-COMMAND (TM) Computer System for his farm and tile drainage business. "I use the computer to help make decisions of what to buy, sell and how much to spend," Taylor explains.

"Besides, banks today want to know exactly where you stand before they'll loan you money," says Taylor. "They'll hand you a stack of papers to fill out that normally take a couple of weeks to get through. Now, with my computer, I can take a printout of my current standing every time I go into the bank. They keep all my printout updates on file for reference."

Wolf says, "Computerized records definitely help farmers today. There's no question about that.

"Farmers using computerized records aren't necessarily the biggest or smallest, the smartest or slowest, but those farmers who are really interested in knowing their financial situation," Wolf says. "It's critically important for farmers to know what they're doing that's making money and just what's losing money."

Ken Hanus, vice president of LaPort City State Bank, LaPort City, Iowa, says farmers with computerized records make the banker feel more at ease about the loan and repayment. "When a farmer comes in with computerized records, it tends to indicate a quality operation."

Hanus visited Phil Fayhee at Westside Implement, a Sperry New Holland AG-COMMAND Computer Center in Independence, Iowa. Hanus went with an area farmer to learn more about computers and software designed especially for agriculture.

"I wanted to see just what the system would do." He believes that with the constantly changing computer industry it's important to find out what's out there–for himself and his banking customers.

"Time and convenience are definite advantages," says Hanus, to having an area computer center with experts in computers and him–someone who already understands the needs of his operation.

"Computerized records aren't the sole factor. But when a farmer comes into our bank with computerized records, I get the impression that he's probably more efficient, keeps closer track of his operation and has more concern about where he stands," explains Hanus.

Using computers for farm management does take initiative.

Boysen says, "All those who have a computer haven't used it to their benefit. They have the output but don't know how to use it." He stresses financial education. And of course he'd like to see this education process take place through a better working relationship between a farmer and his ag banker.

"Farmers need to be able to put the information together, understand what they have, then use it in their decisions," explains Boysen. He explains that one decision can mean the difference between profit and liquidation.

Once farm records are computerized, they can help farmers build a better relationship with lenders.

"Good and complete information certainly aids a person in obtaining a loan," says Boysen. He sees four main parts to a good credit application.

- a thorough analysis of where you are right now, including a complete balance sheet.
- a detailed account of plans for the coming year, considering credit needs, cash flow and sources of repayment.
- a longer-run analysis of plans under different economic scenarios...often referred to as "what if" scenarios
- a detailed description of the marketing plan–what will be produced, what sold, when, futures, contracts, etc.

Computerized records can produce these four things relatively easily–if farmers input accurate and complete information.

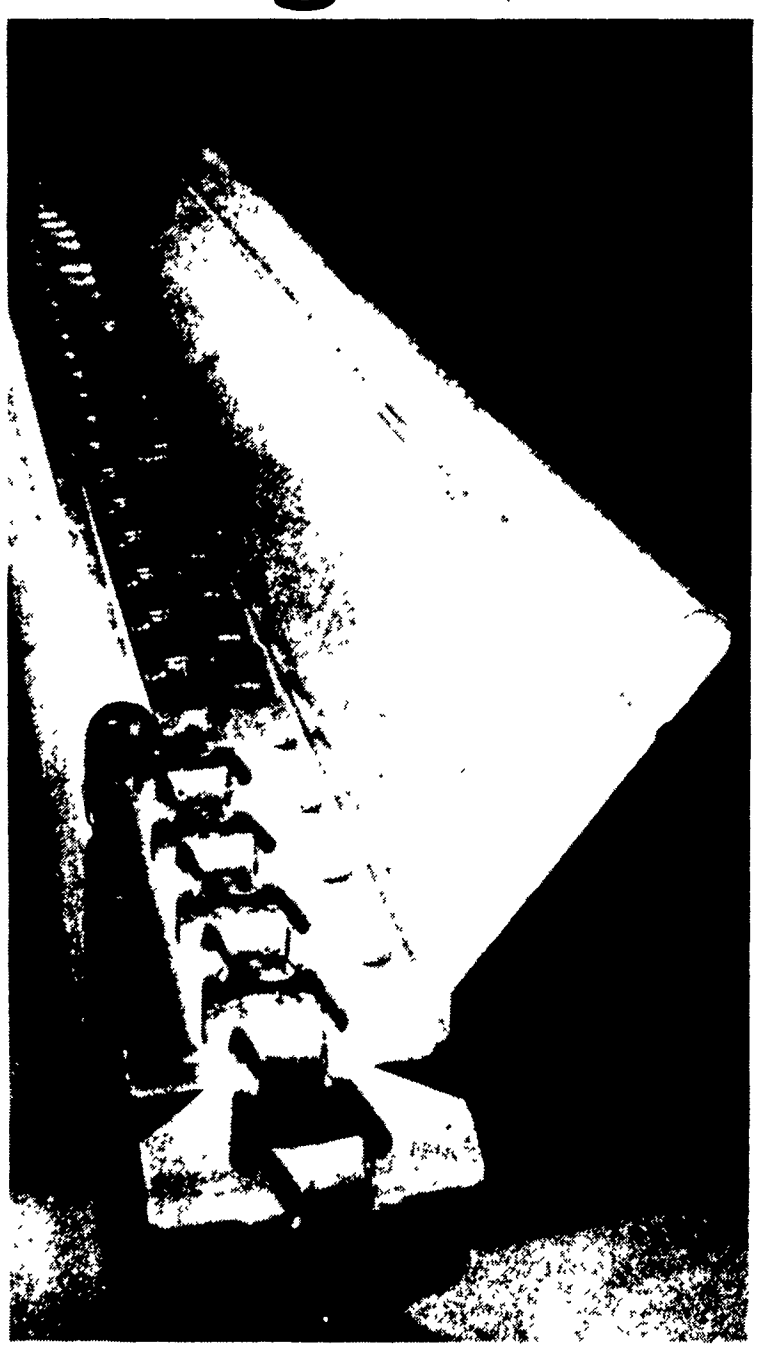
A Cage isn't enough



It takes more than wire to make a cage system More than anything else it takes a feeder.

Sure, other components are important, but mainly it's the feeder that makes the system. That's why Big Dutchman's Systems are equipped with a SPEED FEED chain feeder that feeds every bird the right amount at the right time, without waste.

When you compare poultry equipment remember that the real test of a cage system is its feeder Big Dutchman is ready for the test.

Four Pioneer varieties protected by USDA action

JOHNSTON, IA Four soybean varieties - two each in maturity Groups II and IV - have been protected under the Plant Variety Protection Act (PVP), Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., has announced.

The varieties Pioneer (R) brand 9271, 9292, 9441 and 9471 - were released for commercial sale in 1985. PVP for the varieties was approved by the U S Department of Agriculture this summer A Group V variety, Pioneer 9571, also received PVP

PVP allows the developer of a novel plant variety to protect its right to sell and distribute seed, thus enabling the company or individual to recover research investments

Following is a description of the varieties

9271 is a medium-late Group II bean (relative maturity 27) The plant type is shorter than most indeterminate varieties yet taller than semi-dwarfs, with very good lodging resistance that makes it ideally suited for solid seeding and narrow-row planting

The variety has good tolerance to Phytophthora root rot and iron deficiency chlorosis.

Agronomy studies have shown that 9271 produces its highest yields when solid seeded at 200,000 seeds per acre In on-farm yield comparisons in 1983 and 1984, 9271 was two days earlier in maturity and produced 1 5 bushels per acre higher yields than the average of all competitive varieties tested

9292 is the late Group II variety (RM 29) that matures two days later than 9271 Moderately short and with a moderately narrow canopy, the variety's lodging resistance makes it suited to solid seeding, with highest yields attained at 200,000 seeds per acre

9292 has good tolerance to Phytophthora and very good resistance to iron deficiency chlorosis The variety out-yielded competitives by an average of 1 1 bushels per acre and matured an average of two days earlier during on-farm tests in 1983-84.

9441 is a mid-Group IV variety (RM 44) Its plant type is moderately short with an attractive dark green canopy The variety has good shattering resistance, very good resistance to lodging and good tolerance to Phytophthora.

On-farm yield comparisons in 1983-84 showed that 9441 averaged 1 to 2 bushels higher yielding than Williams, Williams 79 and Williams 82 9441 pods higher than average, making it easier to harvest without los s 9471 is a late Group IV variety (RM 47), moderately tall and with a branching plant type It has good tolerance to Phytophthora adn good lodging resistance.

Outstanding seedling emergence and other agronomic characteristics make 9471 well suited for planting in marginal soils or for double-crop programs Yield comparisons in 1983-84 showed an average advantage of 3 5 bushels per acre for 9471 over Union

The addition of these four varieties and the Group V entry bring the total number of Pioneer soybean varieties protected under PVP to 29 Application for PVP also has been made for six new varieties which will be offered for sale in 1986

Pioneer began its soybean breeding program in 1973 Today, six breeding stations are conducting breeding and performance evaluations at more than 50 nursery locations throughout the U S and Canada Winter nurseries are used in Hawaii and Jamaica, enabling Pioneer soybean breeders to grow and evaluate potential commercial varieties the year around

FAIR DAYS

State's largest street fair opens Sept. 24

EPHRATA — The Ephrata Fair began in 1918 as a homecoming for the return of the World War I veterans. Today it is under the sponsorship of the Ephrata Farmers Day Association and has grown to become the largest street fair in Pennsylvania, attracting over 200,000 people every year.

The 67th annual fair will open officially on Tuesday, Sept. 24, continuing through Saturday, Sept. 28.

A parade will be held on Sept. 25, beginning at 7:00 p.m. (rain date Sept. 26), which attracts approximately 70,000 viewers. The parade consists of many talented high school bands, a variety of marching bands, and special groups, plus a beautiful array of floats, and the presentation of the Miss Lancaster County Scholarship Pageant contestants.

Throughout the week, there will be various displays of needlecraft, models and farm produce entered by exhibitors from Ephrata and the surrounding communities. There will be an art display along with the exhibits of baked goods, canned and dried fruits, jellies, butters and jams, flowers, crafts and photography, which will be located in the Ephrata Pioneer Fire Hall banquet room. Entries will be received on Sept. 23 between 3 p.m. and 9 p.m. A bake sale will be conducted at 11 a.m.

Exhibits of 4-H clothing and needlework will be located in the former Reading Company railroad station on East Main Street. The vegetables, fruits and nuts exhibits will be displayed in the tent located at the rear of the railroad station.

The agricultural portion and the foundation on which the fair was originated, is known as "Tent City" and is located in the Ephrata Community Park. Serving as temporary host to the baby beef, cattle and swine, Tent City becomes the focal point during the judging of the livestock. There is also an open-class dairy show and an FFA-4-H sheep breeding division. Also on display will be exhibits of tobacco, grain and forage, plus the mini-displays of youth groups.

There will be a shuttle bus provided, free of charge, to Tent City to and from the Ephrata Park on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

Among the contests of skill at Tent City will be a tractor driving competition, garden tractor pulling, cow milking contest, ice cream eating contest, and the ever popular pig chase.

Following the tradition of past years, the Baby Parade will be held on Saturday afternoon, September 28th, beginning at two o'clock, consisting of a colorful array of floats and costumes.

The Miss Lancaster County Scholarship Pageant will climax the week's activities and will be held in the Ephrata High School Auditorium on Saturday evening, September 29th, at eight o'clock.

Specialty crops field day

ITHACA, NY. — A special field day for growers of vegetables on small land areas who are interested in specialty crops is slated for Saturday, September 14, at Cornell University.

Types, varieties, and techniques of growing and marketing unusual vegetable crops will be the theme of the field day. These crops include oriental vegetables, pumpkins, garlic, sweet potatoes, and leaf vegetables such as chicories, endive, fancy lettuces, and arugula (roquette).

"Equally important will be the communication among New York's specialty growers so they can exchange views of production and marketing, and help define future directions for applied research at Cornell and on growers' farms," says Roger A. Kline of the Department of Vegetables Crops in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell.

Growers interested in the field day are encouraged to offer ideas of the crops and topics they would like discussed now and in the future. Exact meeting place and agenda for the Field Day will be determined in late August. For more information, contact Roger Kline, Department of Vegetable Crops, 157 Plant Science Building, Cornell University, Ithaca, NY 14853-5908.

Senate Committee completes its version of Farm Bill

The following is a summary of the major provisions of the farm bill tentatively adopted at the Senate Agriculture Committee at this point. Committee Chairman Jesse Helms intends to resume the markup as soon as the Senate reconvenes in September.

EXPORT TITLE

--Expands the intermediate export credit program to authorize the guarantee of loans of 3 to 10 years and requires financing or guarantees at the following levels: $500 million to the extend practicable, for FY 1985, no less than $1 billion for fiscal years 1986-88, and no more than $1 billion for fiscal years 1989-91.

--Requires the Commodity Credit Corporation to make available at least $5 billion in short-term export credit guarantees for each of the fiscal years 1986-89.

--Extends the Agricultural Export Credit Revolving Fund.

–Requires the Secretary to use at least $325 million of CCC funds or CCC commodities in each of the fiscal years 1986-88, and such funds and commodities as the Secretary deems necessary for each of the fiscal years 1989-91, for export assistance for U.S. commodities adversely affected by the price or credit subsidies or unfair marketing arrangements used by other countries.

–Requires the Secretary to sell for export at least 150,000 metric tons of CCC-owned dairy products in each of the fiscal years 1986-88.

–Requires that at least $2 billion for CCC-owned commodities be used to enhance and encourage the export sales of U.S. agricultural commodities during fiscal years 1986-88.

--Exempts certain U.S. Department of Agriculture export programs from cargo preference requirements, including those which use CCC stocks to enhance U.S. agricultural exports, those under which CCC guarantees of commercial credit are blended with CCC direct credits, short-term credit programs, and those undertaken for the purpose of promoting U.S. agricultural exports if the Secretary determines that such activities are necessary to keep U.S. commodities competitive in international trade.

P.L. 480

–Requires that at least 25 percent of the value of title I sales, or 500,000 metric tons (whichever is greater), but not more than 50 percent of such sales be sales for foreign currencies. The foreign currency generated by these sales will be converted into dollars over a 10- to 30-year time period, the conversion to begin on a date 10 years after the sale of the commodities.

–Authorizes the Secretary to enter into agreements with financial intermediaries in foreign countries under which the Secretary would lend the foreign currency generated from commodity sales to the intermediary for the purpose of making loans to finance private enterprise investment within a developing country at reasonable rates of interest.

–Under title II, requires the distribution for nonemergency purposes of 1.9 million metric tons in each of fiscal years 1986 and 1987, of which at least 1.425 must be distributed through nonprofit voluntary agencies. For FY 1987, the levels are set at 1.7 mmt, with 1.275 mmt being distributed through PVOs

--Authorizes the sale (monetization) of commodities provided to nonprofit voluntary agencies and cooperatives under title II.

--Lowers the aggregate minimum value of title III Food for Development agreements from 15 percent of the aggregate value of all title I agreements to 10 percent.

--Broadens the Secretary's authority to distribute eligible commodities under Section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 to include all commodities and products acquired by the CCC.

–Authorizes the President to donate up to 500,000 metric tons of eligible section 416 commodities in each of the fiscal years 1986 through 1989 under a new Food for Progress program to promote private free enterprise policy and development. In return for the commodities, the recipient country must promote economic freedom in the production of food for domestic consumption and must be able to use the donated commodities without disrupting its own domestic agricultural markets.

–Requires the President to designate a Special Assistant for Food Aid to assist and advise the President on U.S. domestic and foreign food assistance programs, to coordinate and streamline the administration of food assistance programs, and to recommend ways to increase and encourage the use and consumption of U.S. agricultural commodities through food assistance.

DAIRY

–Continues the current $11.60 per hundredweight support price for milk until January 1, 1987. On that date, the Secretary would be required to reduce the support price 50 cents per hundredweight if milk price support purchases are estimated to exceed 5 billion pounds milk equivalent for the succeeding 12-month period. On January 1 of succeeding years, for the life of the bill, the Secretary would be required to drop the support price $1 if purchase estimates exceed 10 billion pounds; 50 cents if estimated purchases are between 5 and 10 billion pounds; and authorized to raise the price 50 cents if estimated purchases are 2 billion pounds or less.

–Requires the secretary to conduct a study of the differentials used to adjust the minimum prices for class I milk under Federal milk marketing orders, and report to Congress within 1 year of the date of enactment.

Extends requirements for transfer of dairy products to veterans' hospitals and the military and extends the dairy indemnity program.

WOOL AND MOHAIR

–Extends the price support program for wool and mohair for the life of the bill, continuing the support level for wool at 77.5 percent of an amount determined under statutory formula and continuing the support level for pulled wool and mohair in relation to the level for shorn wool.

–Expands the authority of the Secretary to enter into or to approve agreements for advertising and sales promotion programs which may be conducted outside of the United States, to include programs for U.S. wool and sheep in addition to such programs for mohair and goats.

WHEAT

–Sets the 1986 wheat loan rate at $3.00 per bushel; thereafter, for the life of the bill, sets it at between 75 and 85 percent of the average price received by producers during the immediately preceding 5 marketing years, excluding the high and low years. The loan rate could not be reduced more than 5 percent in any one year.

–The Secretary is authorized to reduce further the loan rates by not more than 20 percent if the average market price of wheat in the previous marketing year is not more than 110 percent of the loan rate for that year. Any such reduction would not be considered in determining the loan level for any subsequent years.

–1986 and 1987 target prices are set at $4.55 per bushel for the first 20,000 bushels of production and $4.00 for the next 40,000 bushels. Thereafter, for the life of the bill, target prices would be set by the Secretary between 110 and 125 percent of the average price for wheat during the previous 5 years, excluding the high and low years, except target prices could not be reduced by more than 5 percent per year.

–If marketing quotas are in effect, the loan rate for wheat would be the higher of 75 percent of the national average cost of production of wheat or $3.55 per bushel. Target prices would be the higher of the national average cost of production of wheat or $4.65 per bushel.

–The Secretary is required to permit the repayment of loans at the lower of (a) the original loan rate or (b) the higher of 70 percent of the original loan rate or the

–Requires the Secretary to make prevented planting and reduced yield disaster payments available to producers for whom Federal crop insurance is not available.

–Authorizes acreage limitation (with a maximum limitation of 20 percent of the acreage base) and set-aside programs. The Secretary must announce any such programs by July 1, with authority to change the program until July 31. The acreage base would be the average acreage planted to wheat in the 5 immediately preceding crop years. Haying and grazing in 1986, and grazing for the life of the bill, of the acreage required to be devoted to conservation uses would be permitted at the option of the State ASC committee.

–Requires the Secretary to conduct a poll not later than April 1, 1986, to determine whether producers favor conducting a marketing quota referendum for wheat. Eligible producers would be those who produced wheat during at least one of the 1981 through 1985 crop years. If 50 percent of those polled favor a referendum, the Secretary would be required to conduct it by August 1, 1986. If approved by at least 60 percent of the producers, marketing quotas would be in effect for the 1987 through 1989 crops.

FEED GRAINS

–Sets the 1986 loan rate at not less than $2.40 per bushel. For succeeding years for the life of the bill, the same formula and limitations would be used as those for wheat.

–1986 and 1987 target prices for corn are set at $3.03 per bushel. Thereafter, for the life of the bill, the same formula and limitations would be used as those for wheat.

–Requires prevented planting and reduced yield disaster payments for producers for whom Federal crop insurance is not available.

–Authorizes acreage reduction (with a maximum limitation of 15 percent of the acreage base) and set-aside programs. The Secretary must announce any such programs by November 15. The acreage base is set in the same manner as that for wheat.

MISCELLANEOUS

–Maintains the $50,000 payment limitation and the $100,000 disaster payment limitation. Exempt from the limit are: any gain realized by repaying a loan for wheat, feed grains, cotton or rice at a level less than the original loan level; deficiency payments for wheat and feed grains received as a result of a reduction in the loan level under the so-called Findley provision; loan deficiency payments received for cotton or rice; and inventory reduction payments received for cotton or rice.

–Provides that CCC may not sell any of its stocks of wheat or feed grains at less than 115 percent of either the current national loan rate or the original loan level where repayment of the loan is at a level less than the original loan.

–Authorizes the Secretary to make advance deficiency payments in amounts he determines appropriate to encourage participation.

–Allows the Secretary to permit a producer to plant a second crop of a commodity on acreage diverted from production if the producer has historically produced two commodities on the same land in the same year.

SOYBEANS

–Continues current program with loan level equal to 75 percent of the average price received by farmers for soybeans during the preceding 5 years, excluding the high and low years, except that it could not be less than $5.02 per bushel.

–Provides that the Secretary may not require participation in any production adjustment program as a condition of eligibility for soybean price support, that soybeans are not eligible for any reserve program, and that the Secretary may not make storage payments to farmers for storing soybeans.

Egypt wheat sale is latest export enhancement deal

WASHINGTON – A wheat offer to Egypt will be the third initiative under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's $2-billion export enhancement program, Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block said.

Block said the offer would provide the opportunity to sell up to 500,000 metric tons of wheat, including a Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) bonus in the form of wheat to be provided U.S. exporters to compete at commercial prices in the Egyptian market in response to future Egyptian tenders for wheat.

Block said Egypt is the third largest wheat and wheat flour importer in the world, with annual imports of 4 to 5 million tons of wheat and 1.8 to 2 million tons of flour. Commercial exports of U.S. wheat to Egypt exceeded one million tons in the 1981/1982 marketing year, but declined sharply in 1982/83 and again in 1983/84. Except for usual Public Law 480 exports, there have been no purchases of U.S. wheat since the autumn of 1984 because of competitive conditions.

Subsidized European Community wheat, especially in the past year, has at times been offered to Egypt at prices as much as $15 to $20 per ton below U.S. wheat on a cost and freight basis, Block said. Australia and Canada are already meeting this subsidized competition in Egypt with bilateral agreements of the type sometimes used to provide special, discounted prices.

"The offer announced today meets the critera of the program which were announced in May," Block said. "It is targeted to the Egyptian market since that is one clearly characterized by unfair trade practices by subsidizing countries."

"While this administration remains fully committed to market-oriented international trade policies, we intend to pursue this and other initiatives in the near future to counter unfair trade practices and increase U.S. exports of farm products," Block said.

The annoucement and invitations for offers from exporters will be issued by the CCC's Kansas City Commodity Office in Kansas City, M

The first initiati[illegible]fered wheat as a bonus for sales of up t[illegible] million tons of nondurum wheat to Algeria. The second initiative offered wheat as a bonus for sales of up to 600,000 metric tons of wheat flour to Egypt. Algeria and Egypt are expected to issue tenders in the near future.

Senate Committee

less than 65.3 cents per pound. For the succeeding crop years during the life of the bill, the loan would be the higher of 85 percent of the average price received by farmers during the five preceding marking years, excluding the high and low years, or 50 cents per pound. The loan level could not be reduced by more than 5 percent in any year.

–Allows the Secretary to permit the repayment of loans at levels the Secretary determines will minimize loan forfeitures, will not result in excessive government stocks, will reduce Government costs of storing honey, and will maintain the competitiveness of honey in domestic and export markets.

–Authorizes the Secretary to make payments available to producers who agree to forgo obtaining loans in return for such payments. Payments would be made in amounts equal to the loan payment rate (the amount by which the original loan rate exceeds the loan repayment level) multiplied by the amount of honey the producer is otherwise eligible to place under loan.

FOOD ASSISTANCE RESERVE

--Current authority for the farmer-owned reserve for wheat and feed grains, the food security wheat reserve, and other reserves is repealed. The Secretary is authorized to establish a food assistance reserve of up to 500 million bushels of wheat and feed grains for humanitarian purposes. 200 million bushels must be used to provide emergency food assistance when P.L. 480 supplies are unavailable, and 100 million bushels of wheat must be included for assistance under Section 416 authority.

CONSERVATION

–Includes a sodbuster provision that provides that any person who produces an agricultural commodity on highly erodible land will be ineligible, as to any commodity produced that crop year, for payments and assistance under government agricultural programs.

–Establishes a conservation acreage reserve program of between 25 to 30 million acres of erosion-prone land. At least 10 million acres must go into the reserve in the 1986 crop year, another 10 million acres in 1987, and an additional 5 million acres by the close of crop year 1989. The Secretary is given authority to enter into contracts with producers a 7-15 years.

WETLANDS CONSERVATION

–Provides that any person who produces an agricultural commodity on converted wetland will be ineligible, as to any commodity produced that year, for payments and assistance under government agricultural programs.

RESEARCH

--Extends the current agricultural research programs. Authorizes the Secretary to enter into cooperative agreements with private agencies, organizations, and individuals on a cost sharing or cost reimbursement basis for the development of new agricultural technology. Includes research to develop new and alternative industrial uses for agricultural crops as high priority research for competitive grants, and designates the Department of Agriculture as the lead agency for establishing appropriate controls for the development and use of the application of biotechnology to agriculture.

CREDIT

–Consolidates the FmHA farm ownership and farm operating loan programs into one leading program with an annual authorization of $4 billion annually for FY 86-88, apportioned as follows: FY 86–$2 billion for direct loans and $2 billion for guarantees. FY 87–$1.5 billion for direct and $2.5 for guarantees; FY 88–$1 billion for direct and $3 billion for guarantees. The Secretary may shift up to 25 percent of the funds for loan guarantees into the insured loan fund.

–Participation in the crop insurance program is encouraged by restricting access to the emergency disaster loan program to eligible producers who have suffered physical losses and eligible produces who do not have access to Federal Crop Insurance.

–Requires the Secretary to establish a 3-year interest rate buydown program for FmHA guaranteed loans, funded at a level of $490 million over 3 years. Eligible guaranteed loan borrowers can receive up to a 2 percent buydown.

Shell hosts no-till event

OCEAN CITY, MD. – Agronomists from across the corn belt interested in conservation tillage met recently to exchange views and share research experiences at a Conservation Tillage Workshop sponsored by Shell Chemical.

The week-long event, called Conservation Tillage Workshop-'85, brought leading weed scientists from 19 central cornbelt, southern and northeastern states to this eastern shore community.

Noting the growth of conservation tillage practices, Dr. Virg Cunningham, Director of Development at Shell's Biological Sciences Research Center in Modesto, CA., discussed research related to weed control in various reduced-and no-tillage farming systems.

Kurt Moller, Shell Chemical Company's Business Manager for Herbicides, talked about the ways Shell's primary herbicide products Bladex, Extrazine, and atrazine fit into no-tillage and reduced tillage farming systems.

Weed control problems and solutions were discussed as they related to both no-till corn and no-till soybean production. Some specific topics covered were: burndown of perennial sods in no-till, split herbicide application, chemical combinations, soil pH and triazine activity, and early preplant herbicide application.

Is your equipment up and running, but running loud?

Then it's time to see your John Deere dealer for quality-built, priced-right mufflers to fit your tractors, cotton pickers, combines, and other equipment.

John Deere mufflers resist heat and corrosion. And have arc-welded seams that are gas tight and water tight.

You don't have to put up with a noisy, loud engine. A new John Deere muffler will help make your engine purr as quietly as the day it was new. See us today.

FEEDING SYSTEMS

The main gathering auger is heavy duty 16" diameter, with 5/16" flighting mounted on a 4" tube. The auger has adjustable front and rear 14 gau. galvanized shields, for maximum capacity. The auger is powered by a 60 lb. gearbox which brings forage to the center for the delivery chain.
To deliver the high volume of forage from the sweep auger to the inside chute, a heavy duty hook chain with hardened cutters is used to convey the forage. The stainless steel top shield is easily removed to adjust the chain if needed. The plate and V pipe keep the delivery chain positioned over the inside chute in the forage.

MASTER MIX
SILO-BOOSTER

Why should you use new Master Mix SILO-BOOSTER instead of another product? SILO-BOOSTER has been proven in 20 years of on-farm use, as well as in continuous university research. With each new discovery in silage science, we have improved the original formula. Today's SILO-BOOSTER gives the most effective silage innoculant yet developed.

Laboratory analysis of both treated and untreated silages confirms the increased production of lactic acid by the bacterial cultures in SILO-BOOSTER.

	SILO-BOOSTER TREATED	CONTROL
pH (average of 11 measurements from day 1 to day 30)	3.98%	3.96%

While both silages showed very similar changes in total pH change; the SILO-BOOSTER treated silage contained more lactic acid. The homofermentive production of lactic acid by SILO-BOOSTER cultures reduces the potential for dry matter losses and the generation of excessive heat of fermentation.

COMPARISON OF SILO-BOOSTER TREATED AND CONTROL SILAGES

Statistics conducted on weekly totals.

SILO-BOOSTER treated silage was able to generate income per ton of forage feed. With milk valued at $ .125 per pound; butterfat at $ .17 per point; forage at $ .045 per pound of dry matter, and the concentrate portions at $ .08 per pound; SILO-BOOSTER silage returned $4.90 for each $1.00 invested in inoculant.

Beam-bred hogs top Chester-Delaware 4-H Show

INTERCOURSE — Club members put show judge Vern Hazlett to the test on Sept. 10, exhibiting more than 100 hogs in the Chester-Delaware Counties 4-H Swine Show and Sale held at Vintage Sales Stables

Topping the show was a 235-pound crossbred gilt shown by Brian Beam, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Titus Beam, Elverson.

Bred by Omar Beam, the grand champion market hog brought the sale's high bid of $3.75 per pound offered by Hatfield Packing.

Though both of Brian's older brothers had logged a combined total of 22 years in 4-H swine competition, this year's show marked the family's first grand champion win.

Exhibiting the reserve champion was Judy Petersheim, also of Elverson, a familiar face in the winner's circle, since taking reserve honors at the 1985 Farm Show. Her 240-pound Duroc cross was also bred by Omar Beam. At $1.75 per pound, Hatfield Packing was also the high bidder for the reserve champion.

Champion and reserve trio honors went to two exhibitors new to the winner's circle. Showing the grand champion threesome was Melissa Stoltzfus of Honeybrook, with Matt Howe of Downingtown coming in at reserve.

Miss Stoltzfus' blue-ribbon pigs were bred by J. Wilmer Stoltzfus, and the reserve trio was bred by Russell Kegg of Bedford Co.

Sponsoring the trophies presented to the top trio winners was the Travaglini family of Thorndale.

In the Chester Co showmanship competition, top honors in the senior division went to Rod Stoltzfus, with Sam Petersheim named reserve champion showman. Champion and reserve junior showmanship honors went to Brian Beam and Jill Burkhart, respectively. All champions received trophies sponsored by the Lancaster-Chester Co. Pork Producers.

In the Delaware County showmanship division, champion and reserve honors went to Mark Umberger and David Trumbull. In the junior division, Chris Umberger took top honors, with Rebecca Adams being named reserve.

Melissa Stoltzfus exhibited the champion trio at the Chester-Delaware 4-H Show. High bidder was Glen Frame of Vintage Sales Stables.

Pricing Market Lambs

Lamb packers begin with a basic economic principle: profit equals total revenue (income) less total costs (expenses). Income comes from sales of lamb carcasses (or cuts), pelts and offal. Expenses include the cost of the live lambs, slaughter costs, transportation, cooler shrink, damaged pelts, and condemned lamb.

Buyers sometimes work forward, meaning they begin with the live lamb price and calculate how much their profit would be if they paid that amount. Buyers can also work backward. They begin with what the lamb is worth at wholesale and a profit target, and estimate how much they can pay for live lambs to meet that profit target.

In either case, several factors influence the bid or sale price for slaughter lambs. Among them are: (1) the weight, grade, and price of wholesale carcasses; (2) grade and price of pelts; (3) slaughter costs; (4) freight costs from feedlot to packer and packer to retailer; (5) weight, grade and yield of slaughter lambs; and (6) price competition among buyers.

Producers need to estimate the live price or market value of their lambs to market their lambs effectively. For example, they need to know the market value of lambs in relation to the costs of producing lambs in order to determine when lambs should be marketed for highest profits.

However, a word of caution is appropriate. The estimate of sale price or market value is only an estimate. Actual prices may be above or below the estimate for several reasons. Among them are: (1) a producer's estimate of weight, grade and yield of lambs may differ from a buyer's estimate; (2) your estimate of packer margins may differ from actual costs and profits; (3) supply and demand conditions of packers may enable a packer to bid higher than the estimate; and (4) the competition for lambs among packers will influence how much packers will have to bid in order to purchase lambs.

Bedford livestock sale ends successful fair week

BY BETSY STITT
Staff Correspondent

BEDFORD — Junior livestock exhibitors at the Bedford County Fair ended an eventful week with their annual sale on Aug. 10.

Market lambs, hogs and steers were put on the auction block by auctioneer Clayton Winebark. Show champions and class winners were named earlier in the week.

Though Bedford Co. Extension agent John Fair expressed some concern over the current livestock market's possible affect on prices, by sale's end, most participants agreed that the sale went well.

James Fisher of Bedford exhibited the show's grand champion steer, then went on to garner $4 per pound for his entry at sale time. Frank Bittner of Gateway Restaurant paid $4860 for the 1,215-pound homebred steer.

Brian Koontz, also of Bedford, sold his reserve champion to American Outfitters for $1.60 per pound. The sale's 64 steers averaged 75 cents per pound, including champions.

Steve Winegardner of Manns Choice sold his 241-pound reserve champion hog to Morrison's Cove Livestock Market for $2.40.

In the hog carcass sale, Richie Emerick sold his 159-pound grand champion carcass to H.J. Beamer Ford for $2.05 per pound. The sale's 32 market hogs, three carcasses and eight lots of pigs sold for an overall average of $1.18 per pound.

Brian Barkley of Manns Choice was the exhibitor of the grand champion market lamb. His 123-pound winner went to Hartley National Bank for $3.20 per pound. The bank then donated the lamb to the Bedford County Memorial Hospital.

Gwendolyn Gray of Schellsburg sold her reserve champion lamb to Fred Claycomb for $1.55 per pound.

H.J. Beamer Ford was also on hand to buy the champion lamb carcass from Eric Brenneman for $2 per pound.

Try these grain alternatives for swine

By Richard Barczewski
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. – Feeding hogs can be an expensive undertaking–especially when grain prices are high and slaughter hogs are selling low. Even though the current price of slaughter hogs is nothing to write home about, at least grain prices are relatively low. But in times like these, it still pays to shop around for the best buy in energy feeds, since finding the cheapest alternative will put more dollars in your pocket at sale time.

The first thing to consider when comparing alternative grain sources is the actual price per pound of the grain. Since many of the grains suitable for swine are sold by the bushel and weights per bushel very depending on the grain in question, it's important to know grain bushel weights. Following is a table which gives the weights of various grains plus their recent costs per pound.

Grain Weights and Prices per Bushel and Pound

Grain	Pounds/ bushel	Price/ bushel[a]	Price/ pound in cents
Corn	56	3.15	5.63
Wheat	60	3.05	5.08
Barley	48	1.55	3.23

[a]Average prices from several sources compiled June 24, 1985.

Every so often one of these grains becomes cheap enough to give it a second look. The only way to know for sure is to call your local grain elevator and check prices.

Cost isn't the only factor to consider in choosing a grain. Barley (on an energy basis) is about 85 to 95 percent of the value of corn in swine rations. It usually contains 12 percent crude protein and can make up to 80 percent of gestation and lactation rations and 85 percent of growing-finishing rations. Because of its lower energy and higher fiber values, don't include more than 25 percent barley in starter rations.

Grain sorghum has a relative feeding value of 95 percent of corn. Like corn, it is low in lysine and can completely replace corn in the diet. Grain sorghum should be ground because the seeds are small and hard. Care must be taken to obtain non-bird resistant varieties since the feeding values of bird resistant sorghums are lower (80 to 90 percent) due to increased levels of tannic acid which reduces palatability. If bird-resistant varieties are available at the right price, however, they may be cost-effective to use.

Wheat can also be used in swine rations. Since this grain is generally used to make flour for human consumption, it's usually priced too high for swine feed. But if priced competitively with corn, (as in garlic/wheat) and an adequate supply is available, it can be substituted for all of the corn in the ration.

With some of these grains, the processing method you use will affect the growth rate and feed efficiency of the animals fed. Grinding corn and grain sorghum results in a three to five percent improved growth rate and feed efficiency. Sorghum should be not be ground fine, as this will reduce palatability. When grinding, use a 1/4 to 3/8 inch screen.

Pelleting grains will improve growth rate by three to six percent to three percent. With corn and sorghum, pelleting will improve feed conversion five to eight percent. Pelleted barley and wheat improve feed conversion seven to 10 percent over non-pelleted grain.

For further information on grains for swine, consult PIH-3 "Energy for Swine" and PIH-71 "Physical Forms of Feed–Feed Processing for Swine" in your Pork Industry Handbook

August 9 is big day for Royal Charolais Co.

Royal Charolais Co., Greensburg, had a blue-ribbon day on August 9, taking top honors in both the Ohio and Illinois State Fairs. In Ohio, judge David Hawkins of Michigan State University slapped RCC Royal Hallmark (left) for grand champion bull honors. Hallmark is a May yearling sired by RCC Royal Constructor I. And a second Constructor I son was named reserve. The same bull also sired the reserve champion female, RCC Royal Charmer, jointly owned by Royal Charolais and Linda Dickerson, Greensburg.

Meanwhile, miles to the west, in Springfield, Ill., judge Jerry Taylor selected RCC Royal Baron 4631 (right) as his Illinois Fair grand champion bull. A March, '84 son of Sir Stone-Del King Jr., Baron is owned by Royal Charolais McFadden Charolais, Ind., and the Dallas Ponder family, also of Indiana.

Angus Futurity logs record attendance

LOUISVILLE, Ky. – Visitors from 41 states and five foreign countries came to the Kentucky Fair & Exposition Center for the All American Angus Breeders' Futurity, August 3 to 6. Over 1,000 guests gathered in Louisville for the 38th Annual Futurity, with attendance reaching an all-time high.

Over 163 head of Angus cattle were checked in at the Futurity, competing for more than $50,000 in premiums.

Several major events highlighted the 1985 All American Angus Futurity. A new supreme champion was named, and top dollars were paid for 10 unborn calves at the 6th Annual Embryo Auction. According to Joe Bill Meng, Bowling Green, KY, manager of the All American Angus Futurity, visitors to this year's All American saw the best Futurity to date.

Supreme Champion

Dr. Bob Kropp, Oklahoma State University, judged the 1985 All American Angus Futurity. His final act at the All American was to choose the supreme champion of the Futurity. Winning the coveted title was Brost Power Drive. Earlier, Dr. Kropp had also selected Brost Power Drive (7/20/83) as the All American grand champion bull.

The Supreme Champion was exhibited by Premier Angus, Inc. of Cloverdale, IN, Brost Angus Farm, Oxford, IN, B&L Properties, Shawnee, OK and Tim Russell of New Zealand. During the Futurity, Tim Russell became the newest co-owner of Brost Power Drive. The bull's sire is Pine Drive Big Sky, and the dam is Brost Elba 916.

Embryo Auction

The 6th Annual All American Futurity Embryo Auction was held Monday, August 5, 1985. When the well-known auction began six years ago, it was the only auction of its kind in the world.

Ten unborn calves brought $111,200 at the auction. Top dollar paid for an embryo was $20,000. Belle Point Ranch of Ft. Smith, AK bought the unborn calf. Cobble Pond Farm, Sharon, CT, consigned the embryo. The embryo's dam is Gunston Senorita and the sire is Harrison.

A one-half interest of an unborn calf brought $15,000. Northcote Angus Farm of Forest, VA purchased the embryo. B&L Ranch of Fairfield, CA consigned the embryo. The embryo's dam is Windac Tiara and the sire is Cobble Pond New Yorker, 1984's All American Angus Futurity's Supreme Champion.

The sale average at the Embryo Auction was $11,705.

Tom Burke, Platte City, MO, Chairman of the All American Angus Futurity, was not surprised by the high prices paid for embryos. Said Burke, "The embryos auctioned at the Futurity are of the finest Angus stock in the country."

Hairy vetch is a forage alternative

NEW HOLLAND – Hairy vetch is worth considering if you plan to grow wheat, barley or rye for 1986 Spring silage harvest ahead of corn. The vetch adds bulk and boosts protein content, says Joe Weicksel of Sperry New Holland. Fall is seeding time.

Hairy vetch is a lady with a reputation. It's the plant called "tares" in the parable of the Wheat and Tares in St. Matthew 13. That reputation followed the crop all the way to the 20th Century in the minds of wheat growers. But broad-leaf herbicides wipe it right out of wheat so it can be safely considered in a livestock forage program. It's not a potential weed problem any more.

As a forage crop it's hard to beat, if you cut early. A very high quality forage that can test up to 27% protein, vetch takes off in early spring well ahead of alfalfa. Mixed with wheat or barley, it will be just hitting its stride when the grain is in the so-called boot stage and at its highest feed quality.

With old-style mowers vetch often presented a cutting problem. But modern Haybine® mower-conditioners and disc-type mowers move right through it without difficulty.

A native of the Mediterranean, hairy vetch is preferred over alfalfa for forage in Israel because it requires less water than alfalfa. An annual, it is harvested in a single cutting. Since it is seeded in the late summer or early fall and harvested in the spring or early summer, most of the forage is produced on winter moisture.

Unlike alfalfa, hairy vetch has an extended blossom pattern. Where alfalfa blooms at a uniform time across a field, vetch blossoms string out over much of the summer. Some seed pods will be nearly ripe while new blossoms are still forming. This makes it difficult to determine the best time to harvest for a good balance between volume and quality.

The problem of when to harvest vetch is solved when it is grown with barley or wheat for spring silage, because harvest date is determined by the grain crop in the mixture. Normally, this is earlier than the peak value stage for the vetch.

Where vetch is grown with rye as a cover crop for no-till corn, there may be a problem of too much crop volume. Unless the mixture is killed and allowed to wilt before the planter moves in, it may present a problem for the planter coulters.

But this isn't a problem if the crop is removed for hay or silage before following with the planter As hay, the mixture may yield over 100 bales per acre. Depending on the growth stage of the rye, hay made from the mixture may rival alfalfa in protein value.

Angus Journal names editor

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. – Jim Cotton of Lindsborg, Kansas, has been named editor of the Angus Journal, effective September 3, reports Richard Spader, executive vice president of the American Angus Association.

He joins the Angus Journal staff with a broad background in journalism and is presently the editor/publisher of the Simmental Shield.

Cotton graduated from Allegheny College at Meadville, Pa., in 1963 with a B.A. in pre-law. Upon graduation, he served in the U.S. Air Force as captain for four years. After his service duties were up, he continued his education at the University of Arizona, Tucson. There he studied animal science and agribusiness.

As editor of the Angus Journal, Cotton will be responsible for all editorial content in the magazine, and in charge of the editorial staff.

He and his wife, Janene and their four sons, Brent, Clinton, Ladd and Adam will make their home in St. Joseph.

Big E' features New England's biggest horse show

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. – Top horses and riders will compete in one of the nation's largest and most prestigious equestrian events - and the biggest championship horse show in New England - when the "A"-rated Eastern States Horse Show opens at this year's Big E.

The five-day show starts September 18 on the West Springfield, MA fairgrounds and is part of the 12-day Big E's free entertainment lineup.

Championship horses will compete for top place in a variety of classes for working hunters, fine harness horses, hackney harness ponies, jumpers, pony hunters, roadsters, Morgans, junior hackney ponies, and also high-stepping three and five-gaited American Saddlebred horses, considered the "peacocks" of the horse world. In addition, expert riders will also compete for trophies, ribbons and cash prizes in various saddle seat and hunter seat equitation events.

Some 500 horses and their entourages of owners, riders, drivers, handlers, trainers and grooms are expected to compete for more than $25,000 in cash and trophies, plus the designation "Big E Champion."

The Eastern States Horse Show was first held in 1916 in conjunction with the National Dairy Show which was brought here from Chicago. Today, more than a half-century later, this equestrian show is one of the oldest, biggest and also most prominent in the nation

Besides the Horse Show, this year's Big E will also feature a wide variety of other free entertainment, including Budweiser's SuperCircus '85 (September 11-17), The Judds (September 14-16), Reba McEntire (September 17-19), The Glenn Miller Orchestra (September 20-22), other top-notch performers, plus a host of exciting and educational agricultural exhibits and competitions.

This year's Big E - "New England's Great State Fair" - is scheduled Septembher 11-22.

Cows need potassium, magnesium and sulfur

MUNDELEIN, IL – Potassium, magnesium and sulfur are important to the dairy cow because they are involved in milk and butterfat production, feed intake (appetite control), feed efficiency, growth, fiber digestion, nitrogen utilization, reproduction and stress resistance. Dynamate and Dyna-K from IMC are economical and readily available sources of these three life-essential nutrients.

Potassium is the most abundant mineral nutrient in cow's milk. Milk contains 50% more potassium than phosphorus and 25% more potassium than calcium. It has been demonstrated that 15%-40% of the potassium consumed by dairy cows winds up in the milk pail the following day.

A shortage of potassium can limit a cow's milk production. It helps stimluate her appetite, improve her utilization of feed, use of nitrogen and her reproductive performance. Potassium is involved in the cow's enzyme systems and in the electrical activity of nerve and muscle cells. It may also have a quieting effect and help make her a more "contented cow." Very little potassium is stored by the cow so she needs an ample amount of this nutrient in her diet every day.

Recent work by Dr. Dave Beede (Florida) showed that dairy cows respond to elevated levels of potassium under conditions of high summer temperatures. Dr. Beede recommended 1.5%-1.8% potassium in dairy cow feed along with 0.4%-0.6% sodium to protect them from heat stress.

Magnesium influences milk production and butterfat levels on low fiber diets. It also effects feed intake, reproduction, resistance to stress and utilization of nitrogen, one of the more costly nutrients in any feed. Magnesium's involvement in nerve health may also cause a calming effect on the "contented cow."

Since most of her magnesium is tied up in the bones of a producing dairy cow (only 2% is retrievable and mobilizable), she needs her requirement every day in every pound of feed she eats.

Sulfur is directly involved in protein formation. The dairy cow needs protein to produce milk, meat and her calf. Sulfur also effects her efficient use of feed, fiber and that costly nutrient, nitrogen. Sulfur is also needed by the cow for the production of enzymes, hormones, hemoglobin, connective tissue and vitamins

According to world recognized scientists, the proper feed ratio of nitrogen to sulfur should be about 10:1 for efficient utilization of both elements by ruminants. Most ingredients used in feeds have wider N:S ratios, so supplementation with sulfur is necessary in many dairy feeds.

Dairy nutritionists recommend 0.2%-0.25% sulfur, 0.2% magnesium and 0.8%:1.0% potassium in the dairy ration Dynamate and Dyna-K, from IMC, are economical, palatable and readily available sources of these three nutrients.

Consider the economics of potassium, magnesium and sulfur and their influence on the profitability of dairy production. Can you afford to be without proper levels of any one of them in your dairy feeds?

Noah Kreider, left, explains an aspect of his operations to Neil Crane of Maine, center, and John Hansen of Idaho, right, during a full-day farm and coal mine tour hosted by the Pennsylvania Cooperative Potato Growers. The Potato Board Administrative Committee was in Harrisburg for a meeting called by President Keith Masser of Sacramento, Pa. In the morning the group toured the Kreider dairy and egg operations followed by lunch at Kreider's restaurant in Manheim. That afternoon they toured a coal mine, a mining museum and finished the day with dinner at the Masser home in Sacramento.

Wenger speaks at convention

PHILADELPHIA – The volume of agricultural equipment sold at auction annually in the United States exceeds $10 billion, according to Glenn T. Wenger, Vice President and General Manager of Wengers Farm Machinery, Inc. of Myerstown.

Wenger outlined the massive scope of ag equipment auction activity at the annual convention of the National Auctioneers Association at Franklin Plaza Hotel recently.

More than 500 auctioneers from throughout the country attended the convention, July 23-28 in Philadelphia.

Wenger shared the podium with Walter Vilsmeier, of Vilsmeier Auction Co. Inc., of Montgomeryville, for a presentation on farm and industrial auctions. "Farm auctions can be divided into four major categories," Wenger said, "and together they represent an annual sale dollar volume of $13.2 billion." The four categories include the regular biweekly or monthly auction held by an auction company, the semi-annual or annual sale, the consignment auction and the farm liquidation.

"The farm liquidation category is by far the largest and alone represents some $10 billion in equipment sales a year," Wenger explained.

In addition to outlining the overall scope of ag equipment auction activity, Wenger explained the diversity of machinery that is sold, depending on the region and variety of crops or livestock produced.

Vilsmeier outlined the proper procedure for conducting an auction. Vilsmeier covered such important components of a successful auctin as appraisal, advertising, timing, organizatin and catalog. "Planning and execution of each of these elements is important," he said, "and together will help insure having a successful and profitable sale."

One of the leading auction companies in the U.S., Vilsmeier specializes in construction, utility and industrial equipment. The firm conducts large-scale auctions throughout the country.

Wengers Farm Machinery Inc., of Myerstown, is one of the largest centers for new and used farm and industrial machinery and parts in the Eastern United States.

Wengers buyers attend machinery auctions throughout the country and the Myerstown location recently was the site of one of the largest farm equipment auctions in Pennsylvania.

Glenn T. Wenger is a licensed auctioneer and a graduate of Reppert School of Auctioneering, in Indiana. He is a former State FFA Vice President.

Pioneer debuts new alfalfa varieties

MOUNTVILLE – Though the tobacco harvest and hay making were in full swing, more than 100 alfalfa growers attended Pioneer's field day on Aug. 13.

Held at the Guy Eshelman farm near Mountville, Lancaster Co., the event showcased two new alfalfa varieties, as well as the latest alfalfa management techniques.

"When people think of Pioneer, they think of corn, and we're happy about that because we're in the corn business," said Pioneer regional sales manager John Weidman during opening field day remarks. But Weidman went on to emphasize that the Indiana-based seed company also produces an extensive line of alfalfa, sorghum, wheat and soybean seeds, as well as silage inoculant.

Touring numerous research plots on the Eshelman farm, farmers were introduced to the new alfalfa varieties that will be available in limited quantities for spring planting, according to Pioneer product manager Vance York.

An early maturing alfalfa, XAR-32 can be harvested every 28 to 30 days, York said. Bred for resistance to fusarium rot, bacterial wilt and phytophthora root rot, XAR-32 has produced a three to five-percent yield boost over the company's 532 variety, York said.

The company's later maturing XAF-31 should be ready for first cutting about Memorial Day, with additional cuttings made at 35-day intervals. In addition to resistance to the same diseases listed above, XAF-31 is a winter hardy plant with excellent resistance to verticillium wilt, York pointed out. "It's going to give us a five-percent yield boost over 526," he added.

Established in 1979, the Mountville research station, is one of 12 Pioneer alfalfa research facilities located in Pennsylvania, Michigan, Wisconsin and Iowa, York explained.

"We're putting more effort into multiple disease resistance," the product manager noted, adding that the firm plans to expand its Mountville station this fall.

Following their development, Pioneer alfalfa varieties undergo five years of testing before being released.

SPRINGFIELD, IL. – The State of Illinois will purchase eight new Ford tractors, powered 100 percent by ethanol, for use on an experimental basis in maintenance of the state's highways and roads.

The purchase was announced today by Governor James R. Thompson at the Illinois State Fair here. The tractors are 4810 models, derivatives of the 4610 models in Ford's popular Series 10 agricultural tractor lineup.

Ford Motor Company's Tractor Operations began producing ethanol-powered units in Brazil in 1979 on a test basis. Forty prototype tractors have accumulated more than 40,000 hours of field use. Based on this successful test, Ford started mass-producing the 4810 models this month in Brazil for sale there.

The eight tractors for Illinois will be manufactured at Ford's Romeo, MI., assembly plant, using the 4610 model chassis and ethanol engine components from Brazil. There currently are no plans to mass-produce or sell ethanol-fueled tractors to farmers in North America.

Each of the tractors for Illinois will have a three-cylinder engine, electronic ignition and a gasoline cold-starting system. Ford Tractor engineers point out that an ethanol tractor achieves better horsepower than similar diesel models–from 52 power takeoff (PTO) horsepower on the 4610 model to 62 PTO hp on the 4810 model.

"We are pleased that the State of Illinois will become the first purchaser of a fleet of our ethanol-powered tractors," said John N Chuchman, marketing manager of Ford Tractor's North American Sales Operations. "And it's very appropriate that the announcement is being made on Agricultural Day here at the State Fair. We look forward to working with officials of the Illinois Departments of Agriculture and Transportation on this project

"We also welcome the support of the members of the Illinois Corn Growers Association. In view of the fact that corn is used to produce ethanol, the Corn Growers Association plays an integral role in the project."

Ford Tractor Operations will deliver the eight units to the State of Illinois next April.

Bush Hog markets new posthole digger

MOBILE, AL – The 720-pound working pressure available on Bush Hog's new model 2103 PTO-driven posthole digger makes digging holes under even the toughest soil conditions a fast and easy one-man operation, according to Robert O. Moore, vice president-sales.

In the 2103's standard configuration, the auger and gearbox provide a working pressure of 170 pounds. This can be increased to 720 pounds with the addition of an optional down-pressure kit which has a two-inch bore by eight-inch stroke cylinder.

"The 2103 is an excellent tool for a wide range of commercial and industrial uses, including construction, landscaping, fence installation, nursery work or rental operations," said Moore. "Its 75 HP gearbox, which is provided with slip clutch protection against excessive strain, is one of the strongest on the market."

Augers for the 2103 are 48 inches in length and are available in 9-inch, 12-inch, 15-inch, 18-inch and 24-inch diameters. These are interchangeable with the augers for the Bush Hog model 2102 posthole digger.

Kline's Farm: Creating a modern, computerized dairy

BIRDSBORO — To stay in the dairy business these days, you've got to keep up with the latest innovations. Either stay abreast of the advances in dairying, or decide to sell out now.

That's the choice that loomed before the partners in Kline's Farm a few years ago, and they chose to go with the latest innovations and guarantee their place in the dairy industry.

With a computer feeding set-up in their barn and a state-of-the-art milk monitoring system now in place in their double-six parlor, they aren't going to turn back now from their decision to create a modern dairy operation.

In June, 1984, says Robert Kline, they purchased - a Surge Infarmation Feed Manager. And now, satisfied with the results from the computer feeder, they've just put in Surge's milk monitoring system in their parlor.

"It has to save three hours a day, and the animals are so much more at ease," says Kline about their new feeding and milk systems. Kline, along with brother, John, and brothers-in-law, Bob Weiler and Charles Fick make up the Kline's Farm partnership.

They inherited from their father an 86-cow herd housed in a stanchion barn. But herd production was off so much, that it couldn't go much lower, unless they were going to sell out.

"You won't believe this," says Kline, "but when we took over from my dad, we were at 12½ pounds per cow. He just wouldn't get rid of any cows."

Four feed stations dispense rations from the Surge Infarmation computer feeding system.

He also wouldn't send any calves, and with no herd records, inbreeding was a serious problem with the herd. Although Kline says he doesn't want to criticize his father, there was no doubt that they had to make some changes if they were to continue

When the partners took over, they culled hard, began keeping records and using artificial breeding, and invested in new facilities. They converted the stall barn to a free-stall and milking parlor set-up, which has given them labor savings, a cleaner environment, and production increases.

"Milking with a pipeline in a stall barn was bad news for the guys' legs and backs," says Kline. Not only is the parlor more comfortable to milk in, it saves them time. They're now milking 100 cows in much less time, freeing them up for field work.

The Klines farm nearly 1,150 acres of owned and rented ground. They grow about 750 acres of corn, and a variety of hay and small grains.

"Previously we had a lot of problems with mastitis," he adds about the health status of the herd While their somatic cell counts used to be in the 700,000 to 800,000 range, now they're down to a manageable 230,000

And production? "We used to send 5,200 pounds of milk every two days, and now we're at 4,800 pounds of milk every day," states Kline. Butterfat production is now between 3.8 and 3.9 percent, too

Onto the original barn the partners at Kline's Farm added a double-six parlor, converting from a stall-barn operation to a free-stall set-up.

The Kline's feed a complete mix of a 38-percent pellet, rolled corn, crimped oats and minerals. The 90 to 100 pound producers receive 39 pounds of feed a day.

Silage is fed twice a day in a bunk, and hay fed free choice. The alfalfa haylage, ryelage, and corn silage is analyzed regularly, so that the cows are always receiving a proper energy and protein balance.

When they first put in the computer feeding system, says Kline, they were really leery about whether it would give them a return on their investment. But the partners agree that it's saved them lot of feed, and they know they're not overfeeding the cows.

The Surge Infarmation system feeds each cow according to her production, and each morning Kline has a read-out at his fingertips that tells him what percentage of her daily allocation each cow has eaten.

It was the feed savings, says Kline, that actually sold him on the "Milk Managers," Surge's milk monitoring system in the parlor.

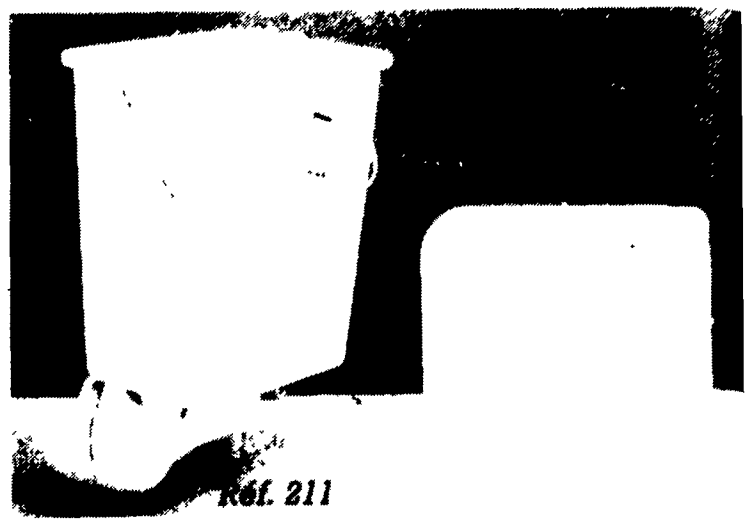
The electronic monitoring equipment has only been up and working for a few weeks at Klines, but they've already found it useful. About once a week, Robert Kline takes the milk weights for each cow and punches them into the computer to adjust her feed ration.

Of course, Kline is anxious to install the next step in the parlor computerization — an automatic identification system. But, for now, he's happy to be working with Longaere Electric, who installed the set-up, the first of its kind in the area

"So many people have come to look at this system," says Kline, almost unbelieving that they have seen such a turn-around in the operation.

When they first started to make the investments in up-dating the dairy, he remembers, one of the agri-businessmen they were working with asked them, "Do you guys really want to continue?"

They were sure they did, and with the changes they've made, they're ensuring that they'll be in the dairy business in the future.



The new baby pig milk dispenser from Hammer's, Inc.

Hammer's adds dispenser

UNION, IA. — Hammer's Inc. has introduced a new baby pig milk dispenser designed for use in the creep area of a farrowing crate or a small pre-nursery deck.

The milk dispenser, model CF4R, has a paddle-type cup mounted below a 4 gallon reservoir. Made of durable plastic, it is designed for any type of baby pig milk replacer, even the corrosive acidified milk replacers that are commonly used.

The large reservoir allows the producer to mix up the milk right in the reservoir to cut down on cleaning time of a separate container. Because of its design it limits wasted space in the creep area or nursery pen.

The specially designed drinking cup has a pivoting flap that allows a low rate of milk flow when pressed. Excessive pressure of the flap cuts off the milk flow. This unique feature prevents costly milk wastage.

The new Hammer's milk dispenser comes with a convenient handle for carrying, a simple bracket for easy attachment, and is available with one or two cups

Hesston backs rodeo tour

HESSTON, KN – Hesston Corporation, which has played a major role in promoting rodeo through its yearly telecasts of the National Finals Rodeo, is now sponsoring the Hesston Outfit, a team of ProRodeo athletes that will compete in a series of "tournament-style" rodeos established by the Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association's ProTour Division.

The Winston Tour is a new concept in rodeo initiated by the P.R.C.A. and its ProTour Division (PTD). The 1985 tour consists of six special tournament style, or "head-to-head" competition rodeos held from September through November. These new elimination-style rodeos are taking place in Austin, Texas; Lexington, Ky.; Reno, Nev.; Casper, Wyo.; Wichita, Kan.; and Spokane, Wash.

The competitors at each of these rodeos are members of special teams called "Outfits," with each Outfit bearing the brand of a corporate sponsor. Members of the Outfits were selected in June of this year at the P.R.C.A.'s first-ever "draft," similar to other major league sports.

Only top-ranked pro rodeo contestants are eligible for the tour, based on official 1984 year-end standings. Members of each Outfit have qualified for the tour by finishing among the sport's top 24 in 1984.

The Hesston Outfit, like others, is comprised of one contestant in each of six standard events plus two team ropers. They compete to win prize money in their individual contest events and to earn recognition as the winning OUTFIT at each tour rodeo.

The large purse committed to each tour rodeo, combined with Outfits made up of top-ranked pro rodeo athletes, competing head-to-head, promises to make the tour an exciting new sports concept.

The Hesston Outfit consists of the following pro rodeo competitors: Bruce Ford, Kersey, Ohio, bareback bronc rider and three-time World Champion; Butch Myers, Welda, Kan., steer wrestler and 1980 World Champion; team ropers Jay and Mark Simon, Florence, Ariz.; saddle bronc rider Derek Clark, Colcord,Okla.; Joe Parsons, Marana, Ariz., calf roper; Martha Josey, Karnack, Texas, barrel racer and World Champion in 1980; and Joe Gaskin, Ft. Worth, Texas, bull rider.

To commemorate this new rodeo series, and the Hesston Outfit, Hesston Corporation has also commissioned a special limited-edition belt buckle.

The ProTour Division (PTD) rodeo series is sanctioned by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association and prize money won on the tour will count toward official P.R.C.A. world championship standings.

Hesston Corporation will be televising the World Championship National Finals Rodeo this December from Las Vegas. This is the 12th consecutive year that Hesston has telecast the National Finals, often called the "World Series" of pro rodeo.

New Gehl Round Balers with TDC®:

Quality at feeding time makes the difference!

If you believe all round balers are pretty much alike, take a closer look at a new Gehl Then compare it to the competition

Only Gehl round balers with TDC® (Total Density Control) give you total control over the type of bale you make—small core, large core, less dense, more dense, or anywhere in between By matching core and density to moisture conditions you preserve more valuable nutrients And higher feed value pays off big at feeding time

If you re looking for the ideal balage bale, our new 1460 can give you what the competition can't soft core for easy spearing and high density wrap for nutrient retention

Gehl "air-draulics"

The TDC® system is composed of two systems—one that controls core size and one that controls the density of the outer wrap This self-contained air and hydraulic system—Gehl calls it an air-draulic ' system—lets you make the core anywhere from a few inches to over 3½ feet in diameter on the Model 1860 And, by adjusting the pressure on the system, you can select the ideal density

To finish off your bale quickly Gehl's optional Auto-Electric Wrap ensures a uniform twine wrap automatically

Higher speed, more capacity

Looking for a starting system that pulls in the crop fast? Then look at Gehl's new super-start lower bale forming rollers that give you quick easy starts every time The large opening of the powered infeed area also increases the baling capacity to handle the biggest windrows at a faster speed than any competitive machine Whether you're working in the toughest hay slippery straw or tangled and shredded cornstalks, Gehl's new 1460 and 1860 round balers come through no excuses! And they're misers on power consumption

If you believe these are pretty big claims, you re right We re talking about one heck of a machine But don't take our word for it Talk to your Gehl dealer and make us prove it with a demonstration!

Your Haytools Headquarters

Let your Gehl dealer be your complete haymaking headquarters Whether it's cutting, conditioning, chopping raking, baling hauling or blowing you can do it better with a Gehl Choose the models that best fit your needs

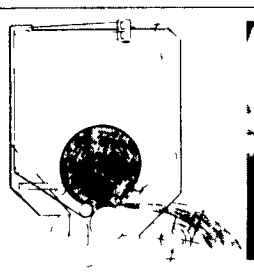
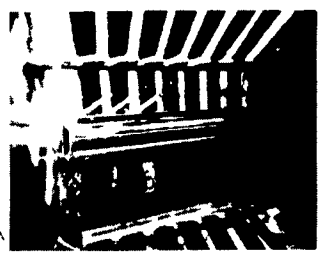
Gehl Company West Bend WI 53095



Ribbed steel lower rollers grab the crop and start bales rolling instantly They continue to apply pressure as the upper belts shape the bale—more uniformly and gently than chains



The key to Gehl s new starting system is the powered infeed and the bottom ribbed steel rollers that start bales fast and take your heaviest windrows

Helicopter seeding offered to S-U-N area farmers

SUNBURY – Farmers in the S-U-N area can take advantage of a helicopter seeding program that is being jointly sponsored by the Northumberland, Union, and Snyder County Conservation Districts.

The program is being conducted to promote the establishment of winter cover crops. According to Robert Pardoe, Jr., chairman of the Northumberland County Conservation District, the purpose of a cover crop is to protect and improve the soil between periods of cash crop production. Cover crops add organic matter to the soil and increase the water holding capacity of soil. Last year, over 1700 acres of standing corn and soybeans were seeded with rye grain, wheat, and hairy vetch by helicopter in the three-county area.

For the fourth straight year, Helicopter Applicators, a Maryland firm, has submitted the lowest bid for the work. The charge for the service will be 7 cents per pound of seed. This charge is for the helicopter service only and does not include the seed which must be supplied by the farmer. The minimum acreage that can be signed up is 10 acres.

One possible change is being considered in this year's program. If there is enough interest, the contractor will do the seeding at two different times. As usual, rye grain will be aerial seeded into corn for winter cover during the first week of September. Farmers interested in seeding wheat into soybeans for next year's crop may want to wait until the third week of September to do the work.

Farmers in Northumberland County should call the conservation district office at 988-4224 to sign up for the program. Union and Snyder County farmers should contact their conservation district offices.

PROTECT YOUR CATTLE WHEN THEY DINE.

USE THE SNATCHER

A Stainless Steel Feed Hopper, loaded with magnets designed to draw metal from Silage and Grain Feed.

There are more cattle lost by metal penetrating the stomach than most farmers realize. The cost of just one 1-1200 lb. animal would equal the cost of several Snatcher Feed Hoppers.

Aer Way™

THE BETTER WAY
TO REVITALIZE THE SOIL AND INCREASE YIELD

The AER-WAY is an utility implement that relieves compaction, aerates, cultivates and renovates. It can function as a rotary hoe, a disc, a roller and a harrow. It saves fuel, time and fertilizer. It increases water percolation, bacterial life and root growth. it is an implement for pastureland, grassland, horse paddocks, general field crops, vegetable production, orchards, vineyards and turfgrass. The AER-WAY will increase your profits through lower costs and higher yields.

JIM ASCHMANN, Adams N Y
I could feel the difference with the 7000 planter after the Aer way had made just one pass Planting no till without the Aer way is like trying to dig a ditch with a shovel that has no handle

A NEW TWIST FOR NO-TILL CORN
SEEING IS BELIEVING

Waist high 3901 Pioneer planted May 15th Second year no till from mixed hay sod No aeration of the root zone was performed

Same variety same fertility same field same planting date same girl on the same day The difference? One aeration at preplant one aeration at the third leaf stage (June 9th)

Fast Facts

- Durable Patz hook-and-eye link chain allows easy maintenance Progression forging builds extra strength into hook-and-eye link contact points. Final heat treating increases hardness, strength and wear resistance.
- Choice of two link sizes to match gutter length.
- Four-tooth sprocket drives every link. Each sprocket tooth drives each link behind the hook–the link's thickest and strongest point.
- Flexibility for various layouts.
- Select 2" steel angle flites for solid manure or 4" high flites for slurry manure. Flites are welded to Patz links.
- Three drive unit sizes match your gutter length and allow expansion.
- Corner wheel top-and-bottom flanges guide the chain around the corner. Corner wheel assemblies remove easily for service without concrete breakout.
- Automatic chain tightener.
- Heavy-gauge steel slide with steel center beam for added strength.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Most common way to start

For years the most common way for a young farmer to start in an established business has been through a partnership.

It is still a good way to get in on the ground floor, but does have its limitations. The most prominent one obviously being finding someone willing to take in a partner.

For a partnership to work there must be some need on the part of all parties involved.

Of course it never hurts to either be a child of a farmer or marry the child of a farmer. Even then a partnership may require that the junior member serve some sort of apprenticeship.

Today a number of potential junior partners are starting with a working contract or some other form of apprenticeship to gain experience, equity, responsibility, and respect. This last item is of great importance if the arrangement is to be a true partnership.

Sometimes I become concerned as to whether a partnership is truly a partnership or just a way to keep a child on the farm I become especially concerned when they say all decisions will be made by both parties or each one shall be equally responsible for each phase of the business

Too often it means that the junior partner never does learn to make management decisions

The senior partner, who has been making them all along, continues to make them. Occasionally when the senior partner is stumped for an answer, he may ask the junior partner for an opinion. On many farms that is a rare happening This is where an apprenticeship with the junior partner gaining some seasoning prior to becoming a partner could prove his or her value to the business.

A partnership is the most formal of the arrangements discussed so far. It is much like a marriage. Each partner owns an interest in the business itself rather than specific assets used by the business. This interest may be unequal or equal depending on the previous ownership of assets or the amount of debt against one or more of the prospective partners.

Before assigning personal debt to a partnership, the prospective partners should consult with a tax specialist. If the value of the debt is in excess of the cost basis of the contributed assets there may be income tax implications for the donor partner.

There are publications available that go into more detail on partnerships. If you are interested in exploring partnerships for your situation, ask your County Cooperative Extension Agricultural Agent for Special Circular 265, Drafting a Partnership Agreement

In Summation

There are ways to enter the field of farming other than going overboard in debt. Depending on your present experience and collection of assets, you could start with an apprenticeship or working contract.

Advantages are low requirement for capital outlay, a possibility for a buildup of assets while you work, learning management skills as you work, and learning to work with others.

Disadvantages are it may take you a long time to build up to the level of assets you need to start on your own, agitation at having to progress at someone else's pace, and limit on the total farm assets (livestock and machinery) you can acquire.

Joint ventures are a good way for a person with experience to get into farming. It permits that person to invest into one enterprise (such as dairy or hogs) or one item (such as a combine).

Advantages are lower capital requirement than for a full farm complex, faster buildup of equity assets than the working contract, nearly full control of management of assets, opportunity to master one phase of the farm business in detail, and a sharing of financial risk with someone else (somewhat protected on feed cost changes for livestock enterprises).

There are disadvantages: part of your management is usurped by someone else (farm owner has control at harvest time), you may develop sloppy habits in the use of feed because there is no direct cost to you, you may feel frustrated because your superior management benefits someone else, and you may find income is too low for your needs (this is a problem that is endemic for all farm enterprises)

Share farming is a reviving form of farm startup. It gives a potential farmer the opportunity to get a start with reduced capital, reduced operating expense, and reduced capital and operating risks. It may be frustrating to the good manager because of the lower amount of return he would receive for efforts expended.

Total rent of all assets is one type of share farming but requires virtually no capital risk. It has the same advantages and disadvantages as other share farming. Probably the biggest difference is that this form will not allow the potential farmer to gain any farm assets unless it is spelled out in the contract.

Partnerships are a formal way to get started but are not problem free. As stated above, anyone seriously considering a partnership should explore the ramifications in great detail At least read the above named publication all of the problems of farming before you jump in–be prepared to live on a standard of living that is below what it could be with the same effort and investment spent elsewhere–remember that farm income must pay all farm operating expenses, all debt payment, and all family living

The complete Case International tractor line also includes 40-85 PTO horsepower general purpose tractors, over-90 PTO horsepower two-wheel-drive tractors, and four-wheel-drive tractors up to 400 gross engine horsepower.

Model 385

This 35 PTO horsepower Utility model is equipped with an 8-speed synchro transmission and weighs 1,000 to 1,500 pounds more than most tractors in its power category, which allows better field performance and more stability. The 385 also has hydrostatic power steering, hydraulic wet disk brakes, independent PTO, as well as other features of higher horsepower Case International tractors. There is an extensive line of implements sized to fit this 35 PTO horsepower model.

Model 284

Available in two-wheel-drive or MFD for added traction, the 30 engine horsepower Model 284 is compact, yet powerful enough for any job from small-scale farming to grounds maintenance. It has a standard 8-speed transmission, position control hydraulics, Category I 3-point hitch, power take-off and a two-post ROPS frame.

Model 274 Offset

Built for farmers who raise vegetables, flowers, tobacco or other specialty crops, the 30 engine horsepower Model 274 has an engine offset to the left. The offset design gives the operator a clear view of the cultivator and row, making it easier to cultivate carefully and closely without damaging delicate crops. Standard features are 8-speed transmission, 23-inch (584 mm) clearance under the front axle and a ROPS frame. A variety of implements are available for the Model 274 including center-mounted mowers, one-row mid-mounted cultivator and rear section with two spring trips, and a wide selection of ground tools.

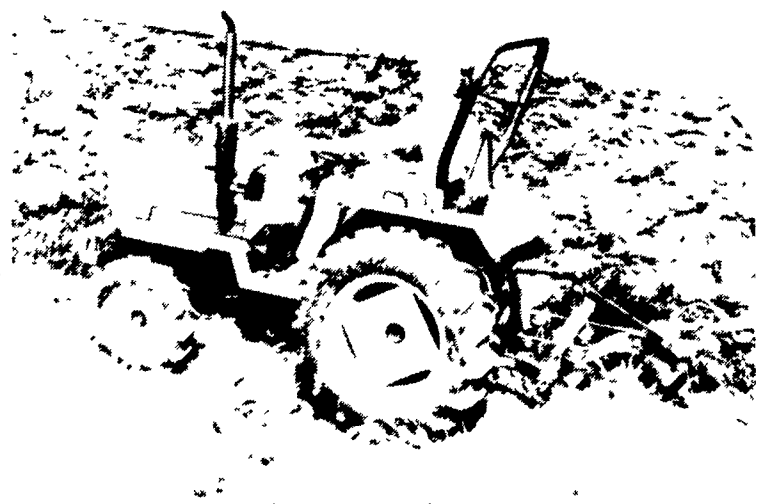
Model 254

Used primarily as a chore machine on larger farms or as the major tractor on small-acreage or truck farms, the 24 engine horsepower Model 254 has an efficient injection and piston displacement system for increased lugging ability. It features two-wheel-drive or MFD, nine forward and three reverse speeds, ROPS frame, hydraulic 3-point hitch with outside stabilizers and rear wheels adjustable from 36.2 to 48.0 inches (920 to 1220 mm). Options include adjustable front axle on the two-wheel-drive model, 9-speed synchronized transmission, hydraulic draft control and power steering. Typical attachments include moldboard plow, disk harrow, box scraper, sickle-bar mower and front-mounted blade.

Model 244

The 21 engine horsepower Model 244 can operate in tight spots normally barred to larger tractors, providing a 7.60 foot (2316 mm) turning radius. Maneuverability is aided by nine forward and three reverse speeds.

Available in two-wheel-drive or MFD, standard features on this tractor include differential lock, power take-off with over-running clutch. Options include power steering, synchronized transmission and draft control. Typical attachments include rotary tiller, disk harrow, rear blade and rotary mower.



The Case International tractor line now includes seven under-40 horsepower models designed for small farms, specialty crops and general chores. Shown with a Case International Model 420 moldboard plow, the Model 254 tractor is rated at 24 gross engine horsepower (17.9 kW) and features two-wheel-drive or mechanical front drive (MFD), with adjustable rear wheels.

Convenient 6-speed transmission, 18 engine horsepower and sharp turning radius permits loading or mowing in tight quarters with Models 234 Gear and 234 Hydro. These models are available in two-wheel-drive or MFD for improved traction. Power take-off with over-running clutch is standard. Typical attachments include loader, snow blower, rotary tiller, harrow and front blade.

The 234 Hydro is eqiupped with the same features, plus a hydrostatic drive transmission for infinite speed control and convenient operation while maintaining full horsepower, hydraulic power and PTO speed.

Patz

Reliable Feeding

Hard-packed and frozen silage makes feeding more than a routine chore
Patz gives you two solutions to the problem — the RD-820 ring-drive silo unloader and the 98B surface-drive silo unloader Both have a double-hook gathering chain with hardened steel cutters and claws that cut through frozen and packed silage

- Spring-tensioned powered cutter keeps silo walls free of buildup
- Preset depth-of-cut control makes feeding truly automatic (98B)
- Powerful blowers with adjustable impeller blades do the job

We'll show you how to get the most performance for your money

Our August Sale has always been a good source of base milk and this year's sale is no exception with many young cows & bred heifers being summer and fall freshening. There is work being done with existing milk markets to change to a high solids pricing system. Now is the time to invest in high protein, high solids, high testing Guernsey cows. It is the quality of the milk you ship that will add dollars to your milk check as well as the quantity. Also in the sale are 3 well pedigreed young bulls whose dams are proven producers.

High Octane® Hog Chow®
brand rations

2.6

For feed conversion below the 3.0 barrier.

You thought 3.5 was good, 3.0 was great, and any rate below that was a breakthrough. High Octane® Hog Chow® 2.6 brand rations bring that breakthrough to your farm.

No other feed can match the new 2.6 feed conversion standard. Today, 2.6 is fast becoming the goal for top producers. New High Octane 2.6 beat previous high energy leaders by 9% in feed conversion and 4% in average daily gain.

With High Octane 2.6 growing and finishing rations you're always assured of the highest energy levels available. So hogs achieve optimum gains on about one-third less feed. And they get to market faster for a higher head turnover in the same space.

See your Purina Dealer for information on High Octane 2.6. He can help with any questions and provide your hogs with the balanced ration they need to break the 3.0 feed conversion barrier. High Octane Hog Chow 2.6, the highest energy available for your hogs' optimum gains. And yours, too.
